It struck the vessel with great force, carrying away a portion of the bridge and the forward hatch and flooding the forward cabins and steering. Owing to the accident and fog, the Umbria was delayed about twenty hours.

Frank Rudolph Killed.

On Sunday afternoon last, the section foreman at Le Roy station, Wyoming, on the U. P. Railway, Frank Rudolph by name, was run over and killed while riding on a hand car. He had been to Piedmont, about ten miles west of the station, for his mail, and waited there until after the east and westbound express trains had passed. On starting back he took four tramps aboard to help him run the car. He expected to meet train No. 19 before reaching his destination and kept a sharp lookout for it, but when about four and a half miles from Piedmont, a special train from the west, that he did not know was coming, ran upon them. The engineer whistled and the four tramps jumped from the car, but before Rudolph was able to get off, the car was run into by the engine, throwing the unfortunate man on the track and the train passed over him, grinding the body into fragments. But few pieces of the remains were recognizable as those belonging to a human being.

Coroner Code was telegraphed for, and he in company with undertaker A. H. Bisbing, left Monday morning on an engine for the scene of the disaster, where a jury was summoned and an inquest held. After the inquest the remains were placed in the casket in as nice a manner as possible under the circumstances and interred. From papers found on the body it was discovered that he was an honorably discharged soldier, having served in a regiment of the New York volunteer infantry. The coroner was informed that the man had relatives living in Salt Lake City, and he has written to find out. Outside of this nothing is known concerning the man's relatives or friends. He had in his possession money and effects sufficient to defray the funeral expenses.—Utah Chieftain, July 28.

Star Valley.

W. H. Cazler writes from Afton, Star Valley, Utah, July 26th, as follows:

"Our valley is located on the west line of Wyoming Territory, and its general direction is northwest. It is about 26 miles in length and 5 in width, and is skirted on the east by a steep and rugged range of mountains, which form a water shed between Green and Snake rivers. The general altitude is about 6,000 feet above the level of the sea. This valley is abundantly supplied with water, which flows in large streams from both sides, emptying into what is called Salt River, and furnishing abundant water for irrigating and any other purpose to which water is usually applied. The land has a gentle slope towards the middle of the valley and consists, near the mountains, of rich, gravelly loam, which is best adapted for farming purposes, while the bottom land consists of a red and black clay loam and is reserved for grazing and meadow land.

Our valley is abundantly supplied with salt, which flows from pure and can be obtained by the process of boiling. Timber is abundant everywhere and grazing facilities are of the best. Game of all kinds abound, especially in the fall and winter. The distance from Montpelier to this valley is about fifty miles, and the road is tolerably good. The inhabitants number at this time about four hundred, and are increasing daily. Our valley offers inducements superior to those of most other sections in this region. Garden and grain crops are looking well.

Points from the Park.

A grand total of 1,489,000 pounds of ore were shipped from Park City for the week ending July 27th.

The 24th of July, or "Pioneer Day," falling on Sunday this year, the celebration was held on Monday. The day was generally observed in the Park by all the stores and public buildings closing. All our citizens who desired to take part in any festivities, went to Heber, where quite an elaborate programme had been arranged, and where a grand time was had.

Monday last three drunken cowboys started in to round up the town of Alta. For a while they had things their own way and flourished their revolvers about promiscuously and rode about the streets recklessly. The citizens finally got tired and started in to corral the "bad men" and cage them. A shooting scrape occurred, which resulted in one of the cowboys being shot through the shoulder and the whole gang striking their colors. None of the citizens were injured.

Mr. John Dodds had a narrow escape from being either killed or badly injured. It seems that he was at work oiling up the fan shaft of the fan which carries away the dust from No. 1, to No. 2 furnace, and in some manner his clothes got caught on the shaft and were nearly all stripped from his body.

He received some bad bruises and strained his left leg badly. He was taken to his home but will be around again in a few days. Mr. Dodds says that he was never undressed so quickly in his life and has no desire to repeat the performance. All this occurred Tuesday morning.—Call, July 28.

I would not be without it for any consideration. It is simply wonderful in its effect upon the nasal organs.
