MORE FOR MORAN,

If the recommendation of Supt. of Waterworks Hines is adopted by the engineer, and there is hardly any doubt but that it will be, P. J. Moran will get another extra job in connection with the waterworks system. The extra work will consist of overhauling and repairing the Parley' canyon reservoir and putting in a new concrete bottom. The communication of the superintendent in regard to the matter Z. C. leaves no doubt as to who will get the job although the name of the contractor is not mentioned. The communication, which follows in full, was referred to the city engineer for immediate action:

There being no urgent need during this season for the water from Cotton, wood conduit, I would suggest that water be not turned into the system until the Parley's reservoir be thor-oughly overhauled, the walls repaired and the bottom concreted. By making arrangements to flume the water from the Parley's reservoir, this work could be done at any time now, I would recommend that this matter be referred to the city engineer, as the contractor is on the ground with material and this work could be done much cheaper now than by having the contractor move back.

UNSUCCESSFUL BIDDER.

City Engineer Kelsey Failed in Effort To Land Contract.

City Engineer Kelsey was an unsucessful bidder for the engineering work on the new water system at Grand Junction, Colo., recently. The contract was awarded to Young & Kelsey of this city last Thurday night. The Grand Junction Daily News has the following story in connection with the matter: The engineering firm of Keisey & Young of Salt Lake City was engaged last evening by the city council to act as consulting and constructive englneers of the mountain water extension. They will receive 4 per cent of the comalete cost of the extension for their work. This sum will include all of their expenses and the wages of a resident engineer and all incidental bills that might be contracted by the engineers uring the survey.

Before a final decision was reached y the council on the recommendation of the special water committee, the four applicants for the position, Messrs. Young, Kelsoy, Schwalbach and Rosen burg, were called before the council and each one was given five minutes to make his position or proposition clear to the members of the council.

Kelsey, city engineer of the city of Salt Lake, made a brief low-voiced statement to the effect that he had been in the engineering business for 16 years; that he had charge of the extensive works now being put in by the city of Salt Lake, and that he would give the Grand Junction proposition all f his attention and time to make it a success if possible.

Co. Willard Young then arose and to any total total the stress of the stress

He is He receeded me to that office, and with a full knowledge of the great work that Mr. I. C. Keisey has on his hands in Sali Lake at present, I y to him and to you, that his position is not here asking for your contracts but back in Sali Lake doing his work there." Mr. Young then declared that his paramer, Mr. grank Kelsee, who W They would have charge of the Grand Junetion werk, if their firm was chosen, was one of the best dydraulie engineers in the United States and considered so by all great engineers.
