

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The New York Herald commenting on the passage by the State Senate of the woman's suffrage bill says: "The public will enjoy the rare spectacle of a measure without any money in it going through both houses." This is a feather in the cap of the woman's rights movement, but a sad reflection on the motives that usually govern the New York State legislators.

Harper's Magazine for June is out and is equal to its predecessors in interest and value. All the departments are brisk and entertaining and this first class monthly continues in the front rank of living literature. No other magazine can take the place of Harper's while it remains in its present condition of excellence. Harper & Brothers, New York; James Dwyer, Salt Lake.

Scribner's for June contains an article on sun spots and their fancied relation to financial panics, from the able pen of Richard A. Proctor, which will be read with interest at this juncture. "Rocky Mountain Nights" will be appreciated by the denizens of these regions. "The Dominion of Canada" gives acceptable information as to the social and political history of our northern neighbor. "The Philadelphia Convention of 1890" is specially attractive to politicians, and many other papers are worthy of special mention. The light rendering is of the best kind and the engravings are first-class. Scribner & Co., New York.

Many persons point with great pride to blossoms upon very young trees, and consider early fruit-bearing an evidence of extraordinary thrift and excellence. But experienced fruit growers pronounce it indicative of weakness rather than vigor. The Evening News says on this point: "Our readers will find that if they suffer young trees to mature fruit the first or second year, their vigor will, in most cases, be impaired for ever after, and having borne at this early age, they will not, as a rule, bear again in five or six years afterwards. The temptation to inexperienced fruit growers to see their young trees in fruit as soon as possible, is considerable. It is because we yielded to such temptations, that we are now able to guard our readers against falling into the same error. Fruit-bearing is an exhausting process, and only trees that have arrived at a certain age or maturity can exercise the function without endangering their health and strength."

When Cadet Andrus, during the investigation into the Whitaker "outrage," or "hoax," or whatever it may rightly be called, acknowledged his prejudice against the colored race, and his objection to "falling in" with a colored cadet, the circumstance was pointed out by many papers as evidence of Southern hatred of the nigger and Democratic opposition to the rights of colored citizens. For it was assumed that Andrus was from the South, and alleged that his father was a rebel soldier. But it turns out that he hails from the North and that his father is a "Christian" minister and a pronounced Republican. It will generally be found that those who clamor most for equal rights to all races are in practice the least willing to recognize the social equality of white folks and people of color.

Many encomiums are published on Judge Field as a candidate for the Presidency. The Philadelphia Times says: "He has the independence, the intrepidity, the solid basis of personal conviction, and the downright grit which belong to the best type of American character. He has distinguished himself as Judge by the boldness of his rulings, his clear-sighted perception of the meaning and spirit of the Constitution, and its specific application to the cases at issue. He is a Democrat through and through, and has shown his loyalty in opinions which will make his name historic. It is easy to account for his popularity and strength in the Pacific States, and the general confidence in him throughout the Union. There is no question that he would make a grand President of the United States. Jackson school, were he elected to the office, and he would be elected were he nominated, and would take the office were he chosen."

MURDER AT A HORSE RACE.
 SAN FRANCISCO, 23.—A Colton dispatch says: At a horse race today the American beat a Mexican named Orrego, and received the stakes from the holder, Edward Sixty. Orrego drew a pistol, fired at Sixty, who fell. Both were mounted and Orrego pursued shot his victim dead and escaped, but a party is in pursuit, and his capture is deemed certain. A number of Orrego's Mexican friends fled into the crowd but without effect.

"INDIAN" RELICS.
 WHILE interesting discoveries of archeological treasures are being made in various parts of the United States and in Central and South America, Utah is not without her contributions to the collection of relics of the remarkable civilization that once flourished upon the Western Continent. Some of these are stored in the Desert Museum and others have been secured by antiquarians and placed in eastern and European repositories.

It has been stated by noted archeologists that no iron instrument has ever been found in the Indian mounds of this region. But an iron sword was found some time ago in a mound near Fillmore, Millard County, in this Territory, and it is desired that authentic information concerning it may be obtained. Professor Barfoot, curator of the Desert Museum, would be glad to learn full particulars of such a discovery and would be thankful for accurate details. We therefore request our friends in the south who are acquainted with the facts to send them to us or to Professor Barfoot at the Museum.

And we suggest that any specimens of ancient art, or any relics of the buried past, that may be examined by our settlers in any part of this Territory or the surrounding regions, be carefully preserved and an account be recorded of their discovery, and that the articles found be sent to the Desert Museum and the particulars to the Deseret News for publication.

A GOOD BREED OF SHEEP.

MANY experiments have been made by our enterprising and intelligent stock men, for the purpose of producing the best breed of sheep to suit the requirements of this western country; that is, a kind of large size that will make good mutton, yield a heavy fleece of fine wool, and thrive well in big flocks. All these qualities are desirable because of the peculiar circumstances and conditions surrounding us in this interior locality. Many kinds which are suited to the East are not adapted to the West. Cotswolds, Leicesters, South-downs, Merinos, and other kinds have been imported and crossed with the common breed, and careful sheep raisers have made many improvements in their flocks. But there is still room for further improvement, and he who can inaugurate anything in this direction will greatly benefit the community.

A writer to the Rocky Mountain News, speaks of a new breed of sheep called the Improved Kentucky, which we do not think has yet been introduced into Utah, and which appears to combine more of the qualities desired for this region than any other we have heard of. This kind was originally bred by Mr. Robert Scott, of Frankfort, Kentucky, and is described as having wool from ten to twelve inches long, surpassing the Cotswold's in fineness, softness and the number of fibres to the square inch, the fleece being so close as to scarcely allow of any parting; sheep extremely hardy, healthy, fattening on common pastures in the shortest time, and very prolific. Mr. Scott's flock often producing a third more lambs than the number of his breeding ewes; while another authority describes them as heavy bodied, long-wooled, and producing a weighty fleece, good mutton and a heavy market lamb. They are said to have a dash of Merino blood in their make-up, and the describer thinks they would do "to mass in large flocks, while from the length of staple and density of fleece they would yield an unsurpassed clip of wool."

We bring this matter to the attention of our sheepmen that they may examine into it. We have no personal knowledge of the breed, but think it worthy of a trial by our friends, who make this business a specialty.

A NEW DISCOVERY.

By private letter from Grouse Creek we learn that coal has been discovered in the vicinity of that place, making quite a stir among the settlers. Grouse Creek is in Box Elder County, Utah, and lies to the north of the Central Pacific Railroad. It is pleasantly situated, and in addition to a fine range for stock has some excellent farming land on which a number of "Mormon" families have been for two or three years past making themselves substantial homesteads.

Our informant, Mr. B. F. Cooke, states that one vein of coal has been opened 25 feet in thickness. The coal looks well and burns briskly. The distance from the mine to L. Cline, on the Central Pacific, is about 35 miles.

If this discovery turns out to be as reliable as our correspondent is a reliable man—it will make quite a change in the prospects of the Grouse Creek people, and prove a great boon to the Central Pacific Company and the settlers along the line of the Railroad. Prospectors have sought diligently for coal through the State of Nevada, but in vain. The Central Pacific people have been to a very large extent dependent upon the Union Pacific mines for fuel for their locomotives, particularly on the eastern portion of their line, and have offered a heavy bonus for the discovery of coal within easy distance therefrom. The parties who have opened this coal bed are very fortunate, and unless specially employed by the Company are entitled to the bonus.

Employment will be furnished to many hands if the deposit proves to be of any great extent, a branch line will doubtless be run from L. Cline to the mine, and the material prosperity of our settlements in the northwest corner of the Territory will be assured. We shall look with interest for further particulars.

This place and Pelton for assistance, which was promptly secured. A crowd of sadists to-night is cast over our city. Every hotel is being turned into hospitals to receive the wounded, which will number upwards of 40. Already 18 are reported dead and others will die before morning. A number of San Francisco people were on the train at the time of the accident. It will be impossible to tell the fate of the wounded to-night as they are being cared for by all parties and are spread in various parts of the town. Some of the dead have not been identified. Physicians are working to relieve the sufferings of the wounded assisted by Sisters of Charity. No service is being held at the churches on account of the disaster.

Sand Lotors Settled.
 The Sand Lot today passed resolutions endorsing the action of the greenback wing of the State convention. An attempt was made in the board of ward presidents to condemn said action, but after an acrimonious debate the resolution was ruled out of order.

McClanahan's Case.—P. D. McClanahan, the "indignant doctor" of Provo, it will be remembered, was at last accounts in jail, unable to procure bonds, pending his examination at Springville, on a charge of indirectly causing the death of Henry Wheelan, the stranger who died at that place a few days ago. We are told by the Enquirer that on Wednesday last, McClanahan secured bonds to the required amount ($1,000) and was set at liberty. His wife and Mr. John W. Brown were his sureties. Last Friday the accused party went to Springville, accompanied by Attorney J. D. Milner and Sheriff Turner, to attend the examination. McClanahan, on account of the prejudice of the citizens of that place, moved for a change of venue. This was refused, but the case was continued until Tuesday (to-morrow) the 25th inst.
