WHY ATTORNEY IS RILED

Knights of the Royal Arch Prepared
To Enter Lists With Unheated
Swords Against Jurist.

Harper J. Dinny, who was re-elected city attorney last Tuesday, is out-fighting his fight against the liquor interests for the next two years for personal reasons. In the recent election, the Knights of the Royal Arch named a ticket and passed printed slips about saloons with purported instructions to voters to vote for Dinny. Dinny was scratched on the saloon men's ticket and as a result Dinny almost got out. Now Dinny holds a whip hand and he declares that he will use the city court which he will handle by Dinny and he declares that he will make the saloon men sit up and take notice before his term expires.

Dinny is making a study of the present ordinance in all of the principal cities of the country and declares that he intends to draw some amendments to the present liquor ordinance which will be enough upon the domain of the old "blue laws" and all for personal spite, too.

In the council for the next two years, there is a majority of five and if Dinny cannot succeed in getting an "American" party councilman to introduce his amendments he will turn over to the members of the majority and put the other councilman in the "hole."

When Dinny was called on to speak at the "American" party last Tuesday night he attacked Martin E. Mulvey, the saloonkeeper-saloon from the fifth ward, declaring that he was not fit to sit on the committee which was charged with the liquor legislation. Dinny's speech created a sensation at the time and it was decided to make the matter up. From a reliable source it is stated that Dinny made the following charges:

"I deprecate church interference in politics and I likewise deprecate the interference of any fraternal or other organized body. I am referring to the Knights of the Royal Arch, which had the temerity to name its own ticket and circulate it among the saloons and friends of saloons in Salt Lake prior to the recent election."

"I do not believe that it is wisdom to permit a successful candidate who has been the head and front of this Royal Arch organization to participate in the vital actions of the city council relating to liquor legislation, nor do I believe that that candidate should serve on the police and prison committee. However, now that he is elected, he shall undoubtedly fill his duties in the council, but I, for one, shall use my influence and best efforts to prevent him from being appointed on either of these committees."

Dinny made himself unpopular for some unknown reason with the saloon men and with the remainder of the hour administration. He supported Brown up until the day of the convention and then switched when he saw that the convention was almost unanimous for Bransford. He secured his place on the ticket through a trade, but the saloonmen refused to support him.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

The Froebel society has elected Miss Mary Fox as president, Miss Lulu Snow vice-president, and Miss Bonnie Jones secretary-treasurer. The members of the program committee are Miss Mary Fox, Miss Sallie Snow, and Miss Bassett. The ladies in charge of the refreshments are to be Mrs. Lulu Snow, Mrs. George Hardy, and Miss Nellie Sherman.

The university orators are beginning to get into trim for the "debate" which is to be held with Oregon in January. The question is: "Resolved, that all corporations engaged in interstate business should be required to incorporate under federal law, it being mutually conceded that a system of federal license shall not be available as an alternative solution." It has been decided to hold three preliminary debates, the first of which, open to all, on Nov. 18. Ten men will be chosen from this for the second tryout and as a result of this six will be chosen to compete in the annual John R. Park debate on Dec. 16. The two best men in this will represent the university against Oregon.

There are trials and tribulations in the camp of the grave and reverend seniors at the university these days, for the news has arrived from the faculty that the pretty "1910" which decorates the very top of the boiler house chimney must come down. It all came about because the sophomores, in emulation, carved their numerals upon the new concrete chimney which has been erected in connection with the mechanical laboratory. The "soph" were not artists and the work was so poor that the faculty would not "stand for it." Now comes the edict that all numerals must be erased and nothing doing in this line in the future.

The sophomores gave the second complimentary dance of the season yesterday afternoon in museum hall. It was held at 5 o'clock and one of the largest crowds of the season was present.

The regular program meeting of the Scribblers was held last night. Papers were read by Ashby, Anderson, and Draper, two of whom are new members of the club.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

There was some hard boning for the tests at the school yesterday among the football men when it became known that all of the gridiron heroes must be up in their school work before entering the Granite game. About a third of the team was behind, but all have made good.

It has been decided to discontinue the cover design contest of the Red and Black. The remaining contests will be continued.

The membership cards of the Girls' Athletic association have been given out during the week. It is thought that when the basketball season begins there will be a marked increase in membership.

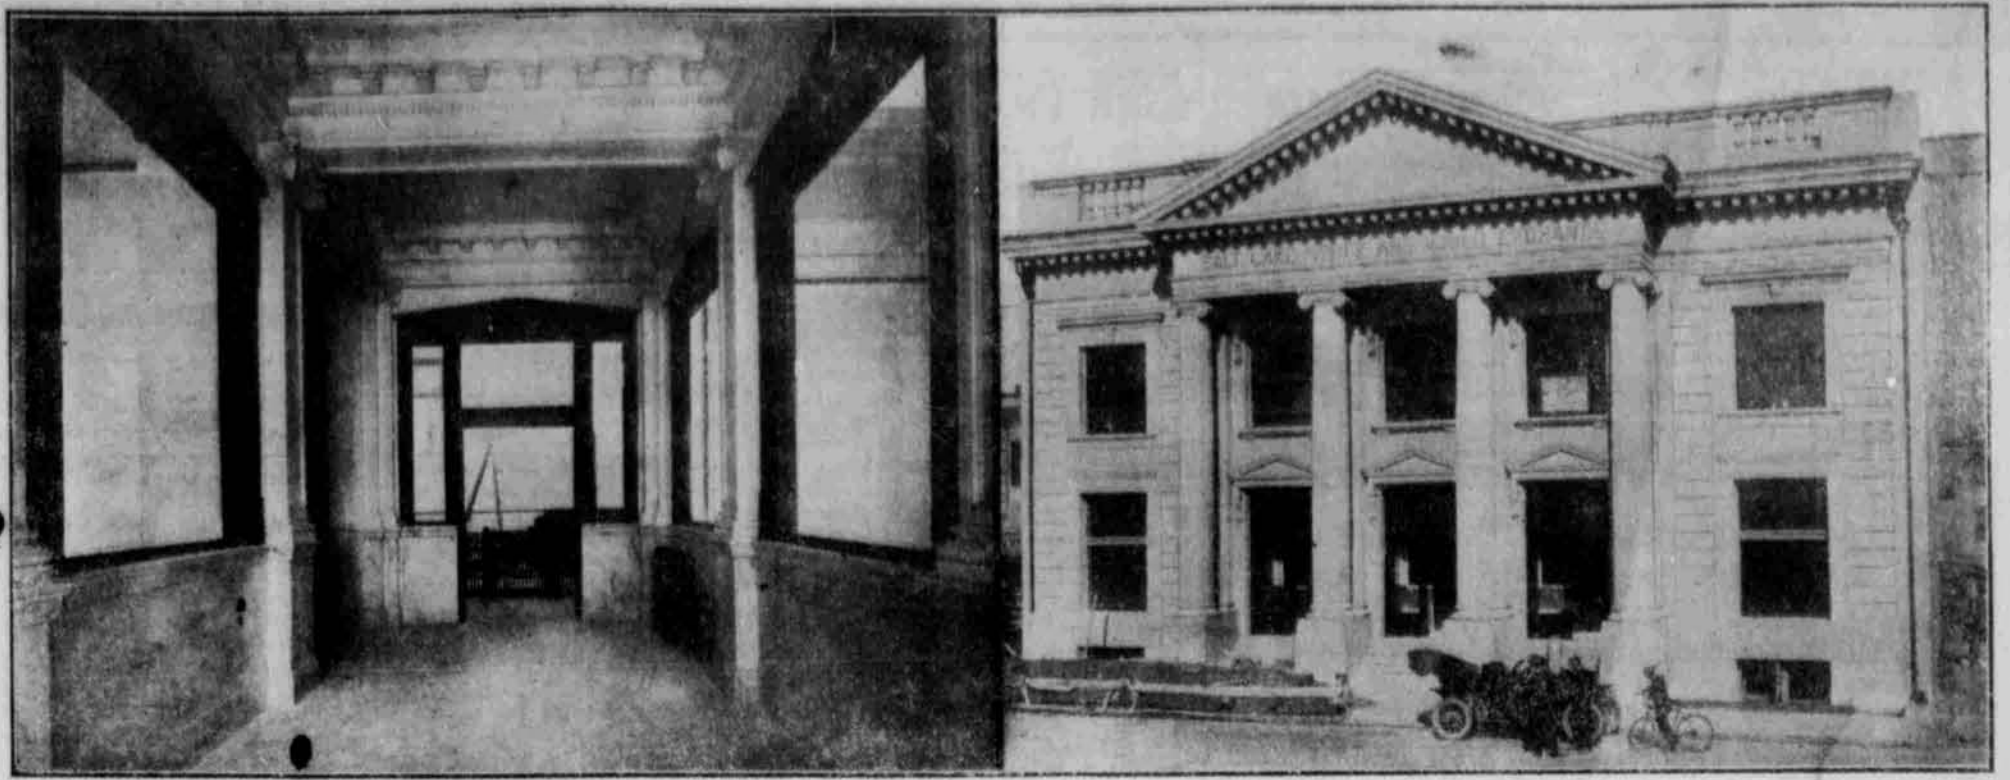

The members of the commercial class are on pins and needles these days. In the first place, they are eagerly awaiting their class pins, which are beautiful costing $2, and then, again, the first dance is billed to arrive in just about two weeks.

SALT LAKE'S NEW MINING AND STOCK EXCHANGE.

The date for the house warming of Utah's first temple of the mining industry of the state has been set. Monday, November 15, is the day on which the new building of the Salt Lake Stock and Mining Exchange will begin its life of usefulness. After years of striving, push and energy, the day when the securities mart can boast of a home of its own is close at hand. When business closes in the old place in Second South street next Saturday, it will be for the last time. There will be some bitter remembrances and many pleasant ones when the horde of brokers break camp for their new abode.

The new building in Exchange Place will be completed next week. The artists have been busy with the hammer, the saw, the chisel and the mallet for many months and their completed task will be shown the public a week from Monday.

The building is one of the finest of its kind in the west. The main corridor and vestibule throughout is of marble. The lighting fixtures are of heavy bronze and harmonize artistically with the other furnishings of the place. All the woodwork throughout the building is quarter sawed golden oak. Telephone booths, galleries and the like have been planned with great nicety for the convenience of the public and brokers.

At the left of the pit is a traders' gallery, which will be open to persons receiving cards from the secretary. On each side of the pit runs a public gallery. This will be open to all. On the main floor is a well fitted up room for the governing board. To the right of the pit is the secretary's office, over which James Shorten has presided for a number of years. Near that is also another room which will eventually be used for a clearing house. This will be done as soon as the business is of sufficient size to justify it.

The pit, with its highly polished railing will be about 45x50 feet and able to care for the already large membership of the exchange. The telephone booths are all of the same design and are arranged at the back of the collar, and beneath the quotation board. Instead of running quotations across the board as is being done at present, the quotations will be run down.

The architect for the new home for the Salt Lake market was J. C. Craig, while the contract for the erection of the building was T. J. Armstrong. It is to the efficient work of James A. Pollock, William Browning, W. H. Tibbels, G. Parker Norton and William Child, composing the building and finance committee of the exchange, that great credit is due. They have made the way clear for the new building. They have been well supported by the board of governors in their work which has made their path somewhat easier.

Approximately $70,000 will be the cost of the building and the ground was the gift of Samuel Newhouse. All of the $6,000 worth of bonds that were issued for the building of the exchange have been taken up by the members of the organization.

On the first floor of the building R. K. Cobb & Co. have secured offices and De Witt B. Lowe & Co. will also maintain offices on that floor. Both of these brokerage houses have leases for five years.

On the second floor R. J. Evans and Col. George W. E. Dorsey have taken a lease on four offices. There are five more offices on that floor and it is probable that they will be filled next week.

A number of applications have been made for the cigar stand privilege on the first floor and there is also an application in for the privilege of using the basement for a rathskeller. No one of the applications has been passed upon by the committee but they will within a few days.

AN IMPOSING ARRAY OF MOTIVE POWER FOR NEW ROAD.

There are 71 Western Pacific locomotives stored on the sidings in the lower Denver & Rio Grande yards, waiting to be "connected up," "fired up," and sent out on the road; a sight never before seen in this city, and not likely to be seen again. There are four new engines besides those doing duty on the Rio Grande road helping clear up congested freight and stock cars, and two more are yet to come, making the full shipment of 75 engines, valued in round numbers at $1,400,000. They are all from the American Locomotive works, mostly from the Schenectady shops.

The locomotives are of the freight, passenger and switching classes, mostly oil burners; passenger engines 71 to 79 inclusive and four switch engines, however, burning coal. The oil burners are to operate west of Winnemucca, two divisions distant from Salt Lake. The passenger engines have 22x28 inch cylinders, piston valve motion, Walschaert valve gear, with three pairs of 67 inch driving wheels, or "10 wheelers," as they are generally called. The tenders have 7,000 gallons capacity, and each entire machine in running order, with coal or oil and water, weighs 160 tons. The freight engines have 26x30 inch cylinders, piston valve motion, Walschaert valve gear, with four pairs of coupled 57-inch drivers and pony truck, the Consolidation type.

The tenders have each 8,000 gallons capacity, and each entire outfit in running order weighs 200 tons. The boilers of the freight engines set high in their frames to admit of spreading the five boxes over the rear drivers. It is six feet between the bottom of the boilers and top of the rails. The stacks are short and squat, while those of the passenger engines are longer as the boilers do not sit so high in their frames. The 12 switch engines operate on three pairs of 36-inch coupled drivers of 12-foot wheel base, without any truck on the front end, and each weighs in full running order with tender, 115 tons.

These engines having all piston valves, they look at a distance like compounders but they are all simple acting engines. The use of the Walschaert valve gear does away with inside eccentric connections—all is on the outside, easy to reach, and the operation is more economical and satisfactory in every way than in the old style eccentrics located between the forward drivers. The Short Line has given this valve gear a series of exhaustive tests and finds it has all the advantages claimed by the inventor.

The local mechanical department of the Rio Grande has no advice as to when these engines will be wanted; but the supposition is that as soon as the road is handed over to the company by the contractors, they will be fired up and sent out to the different divisions.
