

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The electric railway now in successful operation at Berlin is six miles in length. An ordinary tram-car was used, with a battery concealed beneath the wheels, the principal battery being at the station. A speed of only eighteen miles an hour is allowed by the authorities.

Phebe Ann Allen, of Newark, celebrated the anniversary of her one hundredth birthday on the Fourth of July. This centenarian retains her faculties remarkably well, and is fond of talking of old times. Her father, a builder, named Seelye, constructed the second house ever built in Hoboken, and Mrs. Allen lived there until fifty-three years ago next Monday, when the house was destroyed by fire. The old lady is now living with a daughter who was a babe in arms at that time.

Woman's cause is progressing even in the strongholds of orthodoxy and prejudice. The young women's colleges at Cambridge, England, are full of pupils, and the authorities have more applications for admission than they can accept. The students go in carriages to the university lectures. There is not the slightest opposition to the college among the professors and students of the university. The majority of the ladies who have been educated at the Cambridge colleges have become successful teachers.

The relation between brain structure and mental function has been claimed by scientists to be definite and intimate. But this is beginning to be doubted by careful thinkers. The revolutionists are very positive and dogmatic, but they receive many setbacks. For instance, Sir J. Lubbock has pointed out that, though the anthropoid apes rank next to man in bodily structure, none claimed that place in the scale of intelligence. Once he had watched an ant working, and it worked from six in the morning to ten at night without intermission, carrying 187 larvae to its nest. Professor Calderwood says that it becomes apparent that anatomical structure is not in itself an adequate guide in determining comparative importance in the scale of organic existence, and that even comparative brain structure cannot be taken as a sole test of the measure of intelligence. The whole order of ant presents quite exceptional difficulties for the theory of evolution, and also for the theory of intelligence which seeks to account for it by complexity of brain structure.

GIVE US A CHANGE.

The Cincinnati Times-Star ridicules the silly story that the "Mormon" contemplate assertion of their independence of the United States Government by a general uprising against the Federal authority, and shows the folly of such absurd reports. But after taking this sensible position, that paper, as if fearful of being accused of saying something favorable about the "Mormons," adds:

"There is plenty of evidence, however, that the Mormons would secede, and set up civil institutions for themselves in the West, if they had the power. Every leader in the Church, for the last twenty years at least, has been the avowed and violent enemy of the Republic. The whole community is radically disloyal."

Will the Times-Star be kind enough to furnish the public with some proof of these "proved assertions"? Reference to polygamy, let it be borne in mind, will not help in evidence. Our views and acts as to the law of 1882 do not affect the question of our alleged "disloyalty" and "enmity to the Republic." The questions are separate and dissimilar. We admit that we think the anti-polygamy law does violence to the Constitution, and that the decision of the Supreme Court on that question is illegal and absurd; but we deny that our leaders are enemies to the Republic and that the community is radically disloyal. And we defy the Times-Star to substantiate the accusations by anything that calm and rational minds could consistently regard as satisfactory. The very genius of our creed improves the common calumny. The actions of our leaders and our people are against it. We believe that the Constitution was inspired by the Almighty; we believe that it is the destiny of our Elders to maintain it intact when demagogues have so injured the Republic that many seek its destruction. We have never asked the Republic yet when a call has been made upon us, and many have risen have been ready to our leaders which have been thankfully recognized by the Government.

PROVIDENCE AND THE PRESIDENT.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD, who is suffering from the bullet of the assassin Guitierrez, is a religiously inclined man and a member of the society commonly known as Campbellites. His faith with that of his wife in his recovery from the attack upon his life, will add greatly to the success of his restoration. The news of his condition continues to be favorable, and the whole country rejoices in the prospect of his deliverance. As a proof that the President believes in Providence, in the "Mormon" doctrine, that the "hand of the Lord should be acknowledged in all things," we copy the following from the Cleveland Herald. It was related by Hon. James Monroe, in a speech at Oberlin on the 4th of July, and at the present juncture will be read with general interest.

"It was on that eventful day at Chicago, when the weary journey was ended, and the nomination so satisfactory to all finally made. One of Mr. Moody's young men was standing on the floor of the convention distributing leaves of the New Testament. Many passed him with a sneer or with the remark that Bibles were plenty at home; but the General, hurriedly passing out on business, politely took the leaf and thrust it in his breast pocket. The excitement increased, and Garfield was nominated. And now telegrams of congratulation began to pour in so rapidly that to read them was impossible. In the hurry these, too, were thrust into the breast pocket till it was crowded with papers. Not till the rush was over, alone and in his room with his private secretary, could the man be taken out for examination. And last of all, from the depths of the pocket the General took out a little crumpled wad. It was worn beyond the possibility of being deciphered and pressed into the shape of a small oval. It was a leaf from the New Testament, but on the outside, in a little hollow, these words from Matthew were could just be discerned: 'The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner. This is the Lord's doing, and it is marvelous in our eyes.'"

Said Mr. Monroe: "When I visited President Garfield at Washington, he showed me a little wad of paper, crumpled in his hat, and telling me its history, asked me what I thought of it. Visitors were passing, and I had no time to tell him what I thought of it or to learn what he thought of it, but I can easily imagine that he felt deeply the reverence due to Him who ruleth all things, and a deep sense of gratefulness that His hand is over all. That all, even to a political election, is 'The Lord's doing.'"

REMARKS BY PRESIDENT A. M. CANNON.

His remarks of President A. M. Cannon, which were delivered on Sunday morning following those of Bishop James Crane, were inadvertently omitted by the clerk from the conference minutes published last evening. Following is a synopsis of his discourse:

He wished to make a few remarks with regard to the duties of those who labor in the ministry in this State of Zion. He felt grieved to learn that the city that morning on the trains and in teams for amusements, etc., instead of coming to the Conference. He trusted that none had gone on any such excursions who are called to preside over quorums, over wards, or who had been called to labor as Teachers unto the people of God in the several districts of the State, for if they had, a still greater responsibility would be found to rest upon them. The Sabbath day was a day set apart for the worship of God, and that the people might receive instruction from those who presided over them. He deprecated the small attendance at the conference on Saturday and Sunday mornings and urged that it was the duty of the Saints when it was in their power to be diligent in attending their meetings. He trusted there were no Bishops or Bishops' Counselors, or any presidents of quorums, or their counselors, or Home Missionaries that were absent from the Conference that day; he trusted that none of them had gone out on excursions upon the Sabbath day. The speaker referred to the prosperous times we were at present enjoying and counseled the people to draw up their purses strings and be economical, to pay their just debts and keep out of debt, and thus maintain their credit in the midst of the people of God and in the midst of the world. As servants of God, they should be untrammelled financially and otherwise, so that they might with consistency speak the truth to all men fearlessly. And in this connection he counseled the brethren who had places of resort not to open them upon days that had a tendency to draw people from worship, and suggested that the several places of recreation, owned by the brethren of the Priesthood should be closed when darkness came on, that young girls might not be led astray, and otherwise to trace their downfall to such places of amusement. The speaker next referred to the indebtedness remaining in the Assembly Hall, and again urged upon the people its settlement by their covenant, to help the committee to pay off the indebtedness still due on the building. He also referred with regret to the negligence of some of the brethren holding positions in several wards of the State, and counseled such that it would be better for them to hand in their resignations than to be slumbering blocks in the way of the people. His priesthood is to assist blocks before his people; we must neglect none of the duties of our calling. He regretted having to allude to these things, but felt it to be his duty to do so. The speaker concluded by exhorting the Saints to be faithful to every duty entrusted to their charge, that by that means, not only the building, but the Kingdom of God on earth, would be advanced by the world, we might gain the favor and approbation of God.

BY TELEGRAPH.

THE PRESIDENT'S CONDITION.

WASHINGTON, 12.—Last night's bulletin, showing the temperature of the President 102.6-10, caused some uneasiness outside of the White House, as that was the highest figure it had yet reached. A telegram called upon Dr. Woodward to ask what the surgeons thought of it. He said the doctors did not regard it as an alarming sign, that the increase was caused by hammering and other noise which somewhat excited the President and caused some increase of his fever. Dr. Woodward said no other alarming symptoms appeared with this increase of fever, the wound was doing well, the pulse was normal, and the patient was termed healthy. No signs of any of the dangers that have been feared were apparent. The reporter declares all agreed in attributing the increase of temperature to excitement and annoyance of the President by noise. Dr. Woodward was very positive as to this theory, and hence did not feel alarmed. The other surgeons all agreed in this opinion, and as the President's condition was so comfortable, the fever was not regarded as dangerous. The temperature began to recede by 9 o'clock to-night, and at 10 o'clock had fallen six tenths to 102, and temperature and pulse also began to recede, and the doctors expressed their confidence by the early morning hours the fever will be down as low as usual. The fever rises again, it is caused by the heat and disturbance of the day and declines every night when the atmosphere becomes cool and everything is quiet. The surgeons are so hopeful of the President's recovery to-night as they have been.

SAYINGS OF THE DOCTORS.

New York, 11.—Dr. Frank H. Hamilton said this morning that the latest symptoms in the President's case indicate nothing but a radical improvement. Referring to a Washington dispatch printed in the Evening Post of Saturday, in which the President's symptoms were spoken of as more serious than the public supposed, Dr. Hamilton said: "The account was exaggerated. President Garfield was not a well man by any means, but the present symptoms were not alarming. The surgeons took more precautions to prevent excitement in the case of the President than in an ordinary case, and these precautions are what may calm laymen, but the President is getting along well, and nature may be expected to do almost all that remains to be done. There will be no necessity for probing unless the healing of the wound is not healthful and indicates internal abscesses or concealed suppuration. If the healing of the wound is healthy, calm, rational and healthful, nothing need be done."

Dr. Samuel D. Weiss said this morning that a case of misapprehension existed concerning the objects of his experiments upon a dead body in the dissecting room of the University medical college. He did not fire balls into bodies in order to see if such balls would make a mortal wound; all that he desired was to have some notion of the penetrating power of such a ball when deflected by a bone, of course it is impossible to know what kind of deflection the ball was given by its contact with Garfield's tenth rib. The chief object of his experiments was to find out whether a ball of that size could enter a body at that point where Garfield was wounded and be deflected in such a way as not to injure the peritoneum and liver. The conclusions reached were, that such a thing was perfectly possible. He had done with such experiments, having accomplished all that I set out to do, having shown to the satisfaction of Dr. Hamilton and the surgeons that it was possible for a ball to enter a body between the tenth and eleventh ribs four inches from the spinal column and yet produce no fatal injury."

Dr. Cammahan said to-day, nothing could be more satisfactory than the way in which the President is doing. The pulse and temperature sometimes run up denote nothing unusual so long as the pulse does not run higher than 110 there is no reason for anxiety. He has passed the critical periods and is now on the highway to recovery.

A Washington special has the following: Dr. Reyburn upon being shown the statement of Dr. Bliss published this morning to the effect that strong indications existed by which it was believed that the President would be exactly determined very soon if they continue, said that such was the fact, or at least that the suspicious heretofore entertained of his course were greatly strengthened. He declined for professional reasons to enter at length into a description of these indications. It was thought, however, that further developments of them before they enforce the theory upon which the case has been conducted from the beginning. Will Garfield's body be so extracted that the ball can be taken out? It is not likely to give us any trouble at present. Does it give the President pain when it is hit? The President's body is just now in pretty sore from head to toes, his feet and legs pain him.

GEORGE FRANCIS TRAIN.

This morning Train heard from Corkhill received a communication written on a postal card, dated Madison Square, New York, July 9th, addressed to George Francis Train, as follows: Having saved a party from Cabinet and State Routes, smashed Stalwartism, killed Democracy, immortalized Garfield, smothered Grant, Arthur and Conkling, collapsed Depew bought, Planets tears to the White House, obtained a quarter million gift for the family, the President should pardon you as his best friend. In the name of Zion you saved Zion. Six months in the Toombs for quoting three columns of the Bible before its revision to save words from Deacons. Declared unsound of mind. Thought harmless by highest medical experts. Cautioned Morey, and have been declared responsible for his actions by a jury. As no one seems your friend will you accept my services as Counsel. Success guaranteed.

THE SHOOTING MATCH AT WIMBLEDON.

The Herald's special says: The shooting at Wimbledon began to-day although the weather was very unsettled. The match was a slight mishap occurred, owing to the fumes having been ignited from a fire at which some Scotch riflemen were cooking. An order was accordingly issued that henceforth no small camp fires are to be used beyond the boundaries of tents, but only regulation cooking stoves. Scotchmen are very wrath in consequence, and swearing in choice Gaelic is heard, because they cannot now toast their own inexpensive bacon nor have their national hot today at night. The Canadian (two numbers) twenty men, commanded by Col. Gobson, who accounted the best shot in Canada. This is his third visit to Wimbledon. In 1879 he was winner of the Prince of Wales prize, the highest of the team is Capt. Currier. The interest of day centered in the Alfred and Alexandria contests and Inter-University match. The latter was not finished. At gun fire the advantage was in favor of Oxford. The other two matches were finished, but the result will not be known until to-morrow. Sir John MacDonald is much improved in health and will be at the camp in a few days, and also at the Lord Mayor's banquet to the colonial representatives.

TO-DAY'S BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, 12.—Unofficial bulletin: Executive Mansion, 5.15 a.m., July 12. The President's condition remains unchanged from last bulletin, date 1.30 a.m.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, 8 a.m.

Unofficial bulletin: The unfavorable symptoms which made their appearance yesterday afternoon have entirely subsided. The President passed a very comfortable night, and at 10 o'clock his pulse is 96, temperature 99.6. This would seem to indicate that the increased pulse and temperature of last evening was merely a temporary fluctuation due, as the surgeons supposed at the time, to some momentary tax upon his nervous system rather than to any permanent unfavorable symptoms.

Executive Mansion, 8 a.m.—The President is comfortable this a.m. The rise in the temperature noted in last evening's bulletin began to abate an hour later.

Executive Mansion, 1 p.m.—The President is passing a comfortable day. Pulse 100, temperature 100.5, respiration 24.
