The people, as a rule, are kind-hearted and social, but quite obli-vious to the sound of the gospel. With the generality of them, though infidelity and atheism are fearfully prevalent, this does not arise from a disregard to the themes idea that the religion they already have is as good, if not better, than any other on the earth. By the courtesy of the trustee of the Town Hall I was enabled to leave an appointment for the even-ing of the 29th ult., and notwithstanding his expressed conviction that there would be but a poor turnout, was pleased to find and address a considerable audience, though the motive that impelled its attendance was clearly one of curiosity alone. At the close of the meeting, several gentlemen came forward and after introducing themselves, requested me to speak again, at the same time intimating that the subject of polygamy in Utah was the one that would best satisfy the minds of the people. I told them I would hold another meeting with pleasure if I could have the hall.
