

BREVITIES.

The London omnibuses carried twenty millions passengers last year.

There are 2,000 professional thieves in Chicago, besides the unprofessionals.

Nashville is going to have a machine for compressing cotton, costing $30,000. It will reduce a bale of cotton to thirteen inches.

A factory has been opened at Norway, Maine, for the manufacture of pulp for paper from poplar wood. The pulp is to be sent to Massachusetts to be manufactured into book covers, etc.

Jenny Lind is to open a school for opera singers in Paris. She has become quite poor. Herr Goldschmidt having squandered all her property. So at least rumor sayeth.

The body of a young woman, buried in France a year ago, has been exhumed, when it was found that the unfortunate girl had torn her shroud, scratched the coffin-lid with the crucifix, and gnawed her hands, in the agony of burial alive.

Of the 851 Journals of Paris, religion has 108, law 95, agriculture and horticulture 90, fine arts and theatricals 67, and so on, while politics have but 39. The proportion would be oddly reversed on this side of the water.

Rev. Olympia Brown, pastor for nearly six years of the Universalist Church in Weymouth, Mass., preached her farewell sermon last Sunday. She goes to Bridgeport, Conn., to take charge of the Universal Church.

H. A. Budd has resigned his position as general ticket agent on the Union Pacific railroad, and Francis Colton of St. Louis, Mo., lately United States consul to Italy, has been appointed his successor.

It seems to have created a momentary flurry in the upper circles of English society that Lord Stanley has never until now permitted it to be known that he has for seven years been married to a Spanish lady.

The following inscription is on a tombstone in San Diego, Cal.: "This year is sacred to the memory of William Henry Shaker, who came to his death being shot with Colt's revolver—one of the old kind, brass mounted—and of such is the kingdom of Heaven."

Thomas Fillebrown has been a clerk in the Navy Department in Washington for the last fifty-one years; and a strange fact it is, that for the last thirty years he has never been to the Capitol except once, when he accompanied his brother to witness the last inauguration of President Lincoln.

There is a female foundling in St. Louis so beautiful that the person having the care of her is overwhelmed with offers to adopt her. He has therefore decided to put the infant up at auction and sell her to the highest bidder, the money to be placed in bank at compound interest for her benefit, and to be paid to her when she reaches the age of eighteen.

Old Father Taylor, of Boston, though aged seventy-seven, is still hale and hearty, and especially active at camp meetings. Lately at Eastham, Massachusetts, he became very much interested in a young man, for whom he prayed thus: "O Lord, perhaps you don't know who the young man is. He is Captain —, son of —, of Harwich, one of our best friends and most prominent citizens."

A little negro orphan girl in New Jersey tells a hard story of her master's conduct. Suspecting her of stealing, she says, he tied her up by the thumbs all night in the garret, whipped her until the blood flowed, hung her by the neck, hoisted her up by a rope about her waist and whipped her again, and finally kept her for eight days without food.

At a meeting of the Polytechnic Association of the American Institute, a few days ago, the chairman exhibited a letter and envelope made of sheet-iron, and yet weighed less than the regular letter rate one half ounce. The envelope measures four and seven-eighths by two and three-fourths inches, and the letter is eight by five inches. Careful measurement with a micrometer gave one five-hundredth of an inch as the thickness of the sheet. Letters have been written on sheet-iron before, and an iron book of three hundred pages which measured less than one inch in thickness was shown at the World's Fair. The book was printed with elastic type, made expressly for the purpose.

They have a queer custom in some parts of Germany, in connection with the building of a new house. A young child always drives the first nail into one of the timbers, and an inscription is made upon the wood, bearing the name and age of the child, date of erection, etc. Then, when the house is raised, a few planks are laid for flooring in an upper story, when the master builder, his workmen, and all well-disposed friends assemble to sing a song of praise to God for the safe accomplishment thus far of their undertaking. Then a band of music plays, numerous bottles of wine are drunk, and there are speeches, toasts, and huzzas from stentorian German throats.

Co-operative societies for procuring ordinary articles of consumption have been very prosperous in Germany, and have rapidly increased in numbers. In 1866 they numbered 199; in 1867, 316, and in 1868 they had increased to 555. There are now in Germany 1,558 working men's banks and loan associations, of which 875 are in Prussia, 418 in German Austria, and 288 in Bohemia. Altogether the co-operative societies which exist in Germany are estimated at about 2,600. They consist of about 1,000,000 members. Their business transactions amounted in 1868 to 220,000,000 thalers, and this they managed on a capital of 15,000,000 thalers belonging to themselves, and 42,000,000 thalers of borrowed money.

TARRANT'S

SELTZER

APERIENT.

Worse than a Red of Thorns are the miseries of indigestion. To escape them, men have committed suicide. Yet they are banished summarily, and the vigor of the stomach permanently restored by the occasional use of TARRANT'S EFFERVESCENT SELTZER APERIENT, its effect upon the digestive, secretory and excretory organs is most satisfactory. It regulates and regulates them, and is not only salutary but agreeable and refreshing.
