

TALK ON IRRIGATION

Utah's Representation to the Deaver Congress

DISCUSSED BY MR. WASTLAND

He Sees Some Good Points on Irrigation Matters for Utah People to Consider.

SALT LAKE CITY, August 24, 1894.

Editor Deseret News: The thanks of the irrigation commission are due to you for your editorial in yesterday's News referring to the address recently issued to the people of Utah concerning the irrigation commission to be held at Deaver during the first week in September.

It is strange but true that it seems necessary now to urge upon the people generally the importance of this question, to remind them of the progress already gained by Utah in this great work, and of the urgent necessity that now, at the critical time in the history of the new state, great advantages can be gained if we can outstrip to the lead in this direction and in formulating the plan which it is believed will soon be finally decided upon as the one great method which the mountain states are ready to support earnestly and honestly until success shall crown their efforts.

Since the convention here the question has been discussed from all standpoints and in all directions. Three years have passed and yet no actual law has been enacted upon. The best of us feel that it is necessary to bring up the great question of the irrigation, to look to the West and ask, "What are your plans? Give them to us quickly!"

We cannot now do so, three years have been taken up in discussion and people differ greatly as to methods. This subject is settled and it is hoped that the action of the Deaver congress will go far toward determining the many questions involved.

local laws and regulations for the state legislature. State commissioners are now working under this plan and reports from the several committees indicate that measures will be introduced which will be of great benefit to the people of the state.

The Deaver congress will take up these questions in a vigorous manner. New regulations of great character, all can agree upon the great importance of the general question and upon the necessity of a law which will be of benefit to the whole state.

It will be well to bear in mind that the people of the New West, among by reason of differences among themselves, prevent which are some reasonable laws. Millions of people in distant parts of the state, thousands of young men, are waiting for the law to be passed, to take up their lives here.

The new state will be a new people. They need laws in their business. Laws and Utah in particular. The new state will be a new people. They need laws in their business. Laws and Utah in particular.
