Children Who do Not Observe Tell What They

Imagine. CULTIVATION OF THE SENSES.

A Lesson on Fruits at the U. of U.

Shows New Uses of These Products of the Earth. versity Prof. Cummings remarked that children often have little power to discriminate between fact and fancy. The imagination of young children is often so vivid that they will give the answer they think the teacher desires, and they will imagine sufficient to frame answers which the children themselves think are facts but which are pure conjectures. A little girl one wintry morning, told, in a perfectly candid and truthful manner that she had seen a freg hopping through the snow as she came to school. She was not trying to deceive. When the teacher asked a certain question, she fancied that such an answer would please him, and then imagined she saw the frog-The habit of teiling what they perceive rather than what they imagine, is a direct result of the object lessons taken up by means of samples. Scien-tifically, fruit is the ripened seed with its coverings. It is characterized by peculiarities of color, shape, taste, size, odor and position on the plant. A lesson should be given on each of these topics, to develop, test, and train the netual sense perception of the chil-dren. Children make wonderful prog-ress in mental development before they enter school. They already have a yast fund of knowledge due to their a vast fund of knowledge due to their actual perceptions of things, and re-tain the curlosity which prompts them to continue to gain these clear percepts from sense impressions. WHAT IS A FRUIT? It is hard to define a fruit in the popular sense. There is a current saying, however, that the supreme court has decided that tomatoes are regetables; while pine-apples must be fruits, in the popular sense. Fruits, nuts, and vegetables, is the usual clas-sification; but from the botanical standpoint they are all fruits.

REASON FOR COLORS.

As to color, the samples exhibited As to color, the samples exhibited by the professor, while they presented various hues, also proved that even grown people take much more interest, in things than they do in words; for the whole class was interested in these samples. The prevailing colors were seen to be red, green and yellow. The small fruits are mostly red, as if to at-tract the birds, red being the strongest color in the sunlight. As the birds fly the red berries are conspicuous and

CITIZENS MAKE PROTEST.

To Sanitary Committee About City's Dumping Ground.

A number of residents of the extreme western part of the city appeared hefore the sanitary committee of the city council last night and entered a vigorous protest against the nulsance which now exists at the city dumping ground west of White bridge on North Temple street. In some manner the dump has cought fire and has been smoldering for a number of days and causing great annoyance to the resi-dents of that vicinity. They have tried every way to put out the five but have been unsuccessful and they cluin have been insuccessful and they claim that the odor from the burning fifth is more than they can bear. The com-mittee desided to have the firs depart-ment visit the dump today and put out the firs and give the place a thor-ough drenching so that it will not eatch fire again soon. The committee size desided to new

The committee also decided to rec-ommend the confirmation of F. L. Hansing as clerk of the board of health to succeed W. O. Norrell, resigned. Hansing has been acting clerk for some time past but his name was not submitted to the council un il Monday night. Upon motion o Hobday the appointment was sent to the sanitary committee for consideration and that committee decided to recommend his confirmation. A like action was taken on the appointment of J. E. A BOLD ROBBERY.

One evening in the fall of 1902, he tiel a handkerchief across his face and boldly walked into the residence of In Charles W. Higgins, where a daughter of the physician was enter-taining a caller. Poole pointed a gun at the young couple and calmly order-ed them to hand over their valuables. They complied with his order, and he quietly withdrew.

A day or two later he was arrested, and same of the jewelry taken from Miss Higgins was found in the fellow'r poseersion. Mirs Higgins and the young man who had called on her positely identified Poole as the robber. The latter declared that he was the vic um of a mistake, but he finally ad-mitted the crime. He was tried, con-Whited and sentenced to eight years in the state prison. He behaved fairly well in prison, and his friends worked fathfully for his release. Eleven menths ugo he received a pardon, and went to Arizona with his father.
