Ist of bills upon more part they are tech-nical ameniments to existing laws, cal-culated to make the machinery of state run smoother. The biggest problem handled got off without settlement. Bendion wanted it handled "without gloves." but the Agricultural college-University merger problem went over to another fight just such as character-ized the closing week of this session. There did not seem to be such a differ-ence of opinion on the question of merging, as there was an unwillingness to sirtke the blow that would decide ft. Callister, Johnson, Loose and Wal-ton of the senate, wanted the thing, and said so frankly, but although they were coaxed for a week by the advo-cates of the gloveless encounter, they could not be led to the ballot. Of the bills indiroduced a surprising-by few passed. In the senate only one

Of the bills indiroduced a sufficient y few passed. In the senate only one party measure went through—the As-excited Press bill. The city extension bill and other measures prominently advocated for political advantage were unfed with decision and by a strong conduct yote. Appointments, too, were knifed with decision and by a strong majority vote. Appointments, too, were handled without consideration for the wishes of those who made them. One good bill went through by the grace of the governor, who urged its passage in a special message. This was the juvenile court bill, which is con-ceded to be one of the best new meas-ures to go upon the statutes. The bill the jordina of the best new meas-ures to go upon the statutes. The bill was once vetoed and upon the house re-fusing to submit another ofte with the objections of the governor removed he made the special request that brought the bill back to life in the last hours of the session. Good bills there were that met death in the shuffle, due, it is affirmed by some, to the ill feeling between the senate and the house. In such a juggle Hollingsworth's boundary bill was cought, as well as Lawrence's eminent domain measure.

formain measure. Of the 238 bills introduced in the house during the session, 75 have been approved by the governor and are now hw. Eighty-eight were killed to approved by the governor and are now law. Eighty-eight were killed in com-miltee, 19 in the house, 44 in the senate, four were vetoed by the governor, six were withdrawn, while the remainder are now pending executive approval. Marks of Salt Lake introduced more bills than either of his colleagues. Twenty-one of these went through, al-though it may be said that most of them were but trifting amendments to existing laws. Kinney succeeded with It bills, pertaining chiefly to legal mat-ters, while Hawley has eight to his
