zens, and in many cases choice trees have been entirely stripped of fruit. Now there is plenty of fruit in the City and we do not doubt if those soldiers would be considerate and gentlemanly enough to ask the citizens for some fruit, that they would readily grant the request if not unreasonably large and if the favor was asked in a courteous and respectful manner. No soldier that has any self-respect will sneak into an orchard and steal fruit.

THE WILSON-TIBBITS SHOOTING CASE .-Our report of the examination of this case terminated at a point where the witness, Etiza Corbett, was giving evidence. The latter part of her statement was to the ef- Hars, Wednesday, Sept. 4, 1872. fect that while Tibbets and herself were standing under a tree outside the gate of Mr. Putnam's daughters came up, when Whiting said, "Well, we are all here," to which Tibbets replied, "Yes, d-n you, we are all here. Did you call me a G-d d-d liar?" Whiting said, "Yes, and if I did, ply to what are you going to do about it?" Tibbits raised a formidable club, which was produced in Court, saying, "This is what I am going to do," at the same time striking Whiting a blow on the side of the head, rendering him insensible and knocking him to the ground, where he lay till the affair was over. The witness said if Wilson was hit it must have been by the glancing of the stick when Whiting received his blow. This part of the statement, however, seemed rather improbable, as Whitness and the statement of the statement of ever, seemed rather improbable, as Whitning appeared to have received the full benefit of the blow on the side of the head. Future evidence in the case, however, will probably determine whether Miss Corbett's statement was correct in that particular. Witness heard the report of a pistel and saw the flash, which appeared to be in the direction of the ground.

After the first shot was fired, Wilson ran towards the southeast corner of Mr. Putnam's house, pursued by Tibbits. When at the corner of the house, and while Tibbits was within a few feet of him, Wilson turned and fired a second time. Tibbits struck Wilson after the second shot. Did not strike Wilson previous to that time. Did not see Wilson draw a pistol. Did not see the weapon in his hand. Knew it was Wilson who fired the shots because it came from the direction where he was at the time.

The witness was then cross examined by Mr. Smith, for the defense, and al-though the latter was kind and gentleman ly in his manner towards Mrs. Corbett, she, being in an excited and nervous condition, broke down several times. The cross-examination was keen and pointed and elucidated from the witness that she felt some prejudice against the prisoner; that it was the intention of the deceased to give Whiting a "mauling;" that Tibbits got the club he used in the attack from her (witnesses) fathers. (witness's) father's hay rack. She had been acquainted with deceased eight years. Tibbits was not drunk on the night of the Tibbits was not drunk on the night of the affersy.

A brother of the deceased Tibbits was next placed on the stand, the object of the prosecution in introducing him being to establish a foundation for the introduction of any statements that might have been made by the deceased. The witness stated, however, that his brother had never intimated to him that he believed his end was approaching, and this belief in the deceased before his death being necessary to enable his statement to be received as evidence, the case was continued till to-day, at two o'clock, to give time for the introduction o'clock, to give time for the introduction of a witness named Mrs. Smith, to whom, the witness on the stand said, deceased had stated at one time that a few hours would end his sufferings.

> Faial Accident. FRANKLIN, Oneida Co., Idado,

Sep. 4th, 1872. Editor Deseret News: Oa Saturday, August 31st, Joseph Mathew Martin Perkins and Jordon Hick-man were hunting and went to a thicket of cherry bushes, with the intention of plucking some berries. The last named laid his gus down whilst the first mentioned stood above the thicket in the attitude of loading above the thicket in the attitude of loading his weapon. The latter not having any caps went towards Hickman's gun with the intention of getting a cap. He laid hold of the gun by the muzzle, dragging it towards him. The piece was discharged, the ball passing through the palm of the hand and lodging in the pit of the s'omach, killing him instantly.

The deceased was the son of Joseph and Margaret Perkins, was born at North Ogden, aged 15 years, 11 months and 6 days. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him, as an exemplary boy in all his habits, and leaves a large circle of friends and acquaintances to mourn his loss. C.

from gasoline, and is manufactured by an ingenious, though simple and safe, contrivance, called the Eagle Gas Machine, made in New York, and for which Mr. Lyons is the agent. The light emitted is clear and bright, and has the advantage of only flickering for a second or two at intervals of about thirty seconds; whereas the flicker of gas from some other machines is invariably continuous.
