Dringed with Offers of Harriage.

Miss Lillian Almonte Lathrup, the young woman to whose presence of mind and heroism seven children of Huffale, N. Y., owe their lives, has found that there is a bitter as well as a were! taske in the cup of fame. She is now a resident of Chicago, and the recent story of her heavery has brought her numerous naweleone offers, both matrimonial and professional. She does not care to marry yet, and the proposals made her to resume a stage curver hardly insed her requirements as an actres. She said the other day, regarding the report that a testimunial purse of $500 awaited her at Buffale, that the story was without foundation.
