DESERET EVENING NEWS SATURDAY OCTOBER 20 1906

Another of Utah's early settlers went to her eternal rest last evening, when Mrs. Emily Hill Woodmansee breathed her last, after a somewhat lingering and painful illness. Her health had been failing for two or three years past, but it was not until recently that the disease began to make rapid inroads upon the never robust constitution, and Mrs. Woodmansee suffered extremely, though with the utmost patience until the end came.

Mrs. Woodmansee was a writer of much ability, both in poetry and in prose. For many years the products of her pen found their way into public journals, in Utah and elsewhere, and ere very extensively read and appre-lated. Her writings breathed a spirit ciated. of truth and liberty, and they but ex-pressed the feelings of her heart, for the author was of a truly religious and patriotic nature. The trials of her life were many, but she bore suffering with heroic fortitude and resignation, and she was known for the tenderness and purity that characterized every phase her existence. When the deceased was twelve years

When the deceased was twelve years of age she heard the principles of the Latter-day Saints advocated, and sur-prised her family and friends by firm-ly announcing that she knew the doc-trines to be true and would accept of them when she was old enough. This she subsequently did, and came to Utah in 1856, accompanied by her sister, af-termented them tolls by her soft the in 1856, accoupanied by her sister, at-terwards Mrs. Julia Ivins, in one of the handcart companies, the members of which pulled their eartfuly possessions thirteen hundred miles across the plains. Mrs. Woodmansee made her home in this city, where she resided continuously up to the time of her death. She was born at Warminster, England, March 26, 1836, and was there-fore in her seventy-first year when she died. She is survived by five children, namely Mrs. A. E. Saville, Mrs. G. E. Green, Frank H., Walter and Pearl Woodmansee. Mrs. Saville and Wal-ter are in Mexico, and the time and place of their mother's funeral will not be announced until they can be heard from.

not be announced until they can be heard from. Last Tuesday evening, in the Eigh-teenth ward chapel, the poems of Mrs. Woodmansee formed a considerable part of an interesting program. One of her daughters hastened to the sick room to tell her mother of ft, thinking that it would please her, but the suf-ferer had lapsed into unconsciousness, in which condition she remained for the most part until death. hief Sheets Failed to Make Return In Habcas Corpus Proceedings. Owing to the failure of Chief of Po-lice Sheets to make a return in the habeas corpus proceedings filed by Jo-seph Ware and Sarah Yarber, those two important witnesses in the case of A. T. Day, charged with the murder of Horace H. Voss, were ordered re-leased from custody last night by Judge Armstrong, who granted their petition. The writ was issued against Chief Sheets, in whose custody the col-ored people have been since the mur-der last Sunday. They are important witnesses for the state. After being served with the writ, Chief Sheets made no return to the county attorney, so the writ of habeas corpus was granted by default. The Mutual Improvement lecture course, which was started two years ago with a view of bringing to Salt Lake some of the more active thinkers of the nation, and of securing a chance to meet those who happened to be passing through, has arranged a course for this winter.

The committee in charge is elected from the M. I. A. membership, and none of its members receive compensation. All revenues received go into a fund for the securing of better talent each succeeding year, and the price of tickets is made as low as it consistent-ly can be to keep the course in existence. The first lecture this year comes on Nov. 12, when Senator Robert Lafol-lette speaks on "Current Political Is-sues." Senator La Follette is one of the new type of men in politics who have been created as political fac-tors by recent economic problems. He is followed Monday, Nov. 26, by the Bostonia Sextet, and on Friday, Dec. 7, by John Kendrick Bangs, editor of Puck. The course will continue through the winter until April 1.
