DESERET EVENING NEWS: SATURDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1904.

Considerable excitement was stirred up at this place last Sunday evening by word which was sent to Marshal Mauss of what we thought to be a plot to commit a robbery. Mrs. Isabell Lamb, who has just recovered from the typhoid fever, and is living with Mrs. Whitehead on Atwood street, over-heard two men talking early in the evening. She heard them lay their plans as to which houses they would attempt to rob that evening. The offi-cers were notified and searched that cers were notified and searched that place and surrounding districts, but nothing could be found of the plotters, CITY COUNCIL SESSION. Considerable routine business was Considerable routine business was transacted at the vouncil session held Dec. 6. The fees for impounding and posting up notices, etc., are so small it was suggested by the mayor that the ordinance be amended, after being thos-oughly discussed, the same, with the estray pound keeper's request for com-pensation was laid over for two weeks. It was decided that the sprinkling of the streets be cut down to one-half Cahoon, who has just recently erected a business block on Main street, has built the platform, on the sidewalk, about eight inches above the established grade. The street supervisor was instructed to notify Mr. Caboon established grade. The street supervisor was instructed to notify Mr. Caboon to put said platform down to the grade. The clerk was instructed to write Mrs. Henry Harker and ask her to have the platform, which is in front of the Mur-ray Mercantile company block, put down to the established grade as re-quested, or the city council will take to take action in the matter. ake action in the matter.

The street supervisor reported that E. J. Warenski agreed to furnish well piping sufficient to extend about 14 or 16 feet to the street, for a public watering trough, provided the city would meet the expense of building the trough, and on motion of Councilman

Birch the proposition was accepted. The official bond of James H. White, to act as assistant deputy marshal, was pproved by the mayor and accepted by the council.
