Party of Merrymakers Tipped Over Into the Snow-No Casualties.

First Sleighing of the Season Made The Most of - Everything With Rungers on Put in Commission.

A lively runaway occurred yesterday afternoon on north Washington avenue. A gentleman had hired a spirited bay team from a livery stable, and had invited three lady friends to take a ride out to the Hot Springs, they were driving along at a rapid rate when the horse became frightened at some object in the road, just north of Ogden river bridge. The animals dashed down the street and became unmanagable, a rough place was struck on the side of the road, the double cutter tipped on its side and the occupants ere rolled in the snow for several feet, but all escaped any further in-jury than a few bruises. The horses jary than a few bruises. The horses continued their race down north Washington avenue, but when they stopped and and in what kind of a demolished condition the cutter was found could not be learned, neither could the names of the cutter's occupants be secured.

MERRY SLEIGHBELLS. The merry jingle of sleighbells filed the sir all day Saturday and Sunday especially yesterday. It was the first sleighing of the season and the unity was utilized to the fullest xtent. Every available sleigh, cutter, bob sled was put into use. All day and until after midnight the happy laughter and song of the sleightiders rang out on the cold frosty air. The livery stables could not readily supply the great demand for sleighs. The sleighing is fairly good today and a great many crowds have arranged for good bob sled ride tonight fearing t this may be their only opportunity to enjoy that pleasure this season. AT THE WRONG PLACE. A prominent congressman from the state of Illinois, after a long sojourn in Washington, D. C., returned to his home and started out to look a little after his political fences. At a small village hotel where he stopped for dinner, a scanty plate of fine roasting-ears was placed before him as a side-dish. Im-mediately upon discovering this plate of roasting-ears he abandoned the main bill of fare and applied himself clusively to the corn. When the plate was emptied he called for more, and again for more, and continued his feast until he had made his entire meal from this inscious Illinois product. The ho-tel-keeper noticed the array of cobs stacked upon the plate of the congressman, whose identity was unknown him, and said, "Say, stranger, what in the thunder do you want to board at a hotel for? The place for you to put up is at a livery-stable!"
