NUMBER 268.

GREAT DISASTER AT BALANGIGA.

Three Officers Were Killed—Gen. Hughes Will Take Field—Murder Society Discovered at Tarlac.

Washington, Sept. 29.—In addition to the enlisted men, three commissioned officers of company C, Ninth infantry, are supposed now to have been killed in the action at Samar, Philippine islands, last Saturday.

The officers are:

Capt. Thomas W. Connell.

First Lieut. Edward A. Bumpus.

Major Surgeon R. S. Griswold.

A question has arisen as to the accuracy of the cablegram received at the war department from Gen. Chaffee, the cable company was directed to repeat it. The repetition disclosed some inaccuracies that materially change the message. As corrected the dispatch reads:

"Manila, Sept. 29.—Adjutant-General, Washington: Hughes reports following from Bataan, southern Samar: 'Twenty-four men, company C, Ninth regiment, United States infantry, eleven wounded, have just arrived from Balangiga; remainder company killed. Insurgents secured all company supplies and all offices except three. Company was attacked during breakfast morning September 28; company seventy-two strong; officers, Thomas W. Connell, captain; Edward A. Bumpus, first lieutenant; Dr. R. S. Griswold, major surgeon.'"

"CHAFFEE."

As corrected, the dispatch shows that company C, of the Ninth infantry, suffered the disaster. No company was mentioned in the dispatch made public yesterday. The serious discrepancy between the original and the corrected dispatches, however, is that the officers here are unable at this time to confirm the information.

VARIAN TAKES STRONG STAND.

Insists Upon Direct Answers to Cross-Questions to Van Kuran.

JUDGE POWERS OBJECTS.

Prosecution's Attempt to Gain Advantage Failed to Shake the Defendant's Testimony.

The Van Kuran embezzlement trial is still progressing slowly before Judge Stewart and a jury. The entire morning today was occupied in the cross-examination of Mr. Van Kuran, the defendant, by Judge Varian, who, however, unable to any material extent to shake his testimony.

CROSS-EXAMINATION.

Mr. Van Kuran stated that he was well known in Omaha. He was acquainted with Superintendent Dickinson of the Union Pacific railroad. His sister had married Mr. Van Kuran's brother. Mr. Van Kuran said that he had general supervision of all the office hours were from about 9:30 to 5:00 p. m.

Did you at times keep money in the office, that was received on outstanding accounts, asked Mr. Varian.

"Yes," answered Mr. Van Kuran.

"Because it was not desirable to show the amount received on the bank books until the matter had settled a month," he said.

"You were receiving $250 a month, were you not?"

"Part of the time, and part of the time less."

"You came here involved and you were not living within your salary and had arranged to pay off a judgment at so much a month?"

Judge Powers objected to it as not being direct cross-examination. Judge Varian argued that such questions were admissible as bearing on the credibility and past life of the witness. Judge Powers maintained that the corpus delicti had not been proven and therefore such questions were at present inadmissible. The court allowed the question to be answered and the defense again noted an exception.

"You were executor for O'Melveny, who was killed by Mills, and had to make a settlement as executor later?"

Judge Powers again objected, and the question was ruled out.

"When your attention was first called to a shortage in your books, what did you say?"

"I said that I was not aware of it," replied Mr. Van Kuran.

"Why didn't you say to Mr. Hills and Mr. Bancroft, your friends and co-workers, it's an error and I would like to see the books and find out where the error is?"

Counsel, Powers and Varian, had quite a tilt over this question. Mr. Varian demanded a direct answer to his question, and Mr. Powers argued that he might answer the question in his own way.

Mr. Van Kuran finally answered that he said to Mr. Hills: "How do you know that there is a shortage? Have you checked up the accounts? Mr. Hills said he had not and that there was nothing further to say."

From a glance at the grounds and the interior of the State Fair building this afternoon there is a decided promise that the twenty-fourth exhibition of the Deseret Agricultural and Manufacturing society will indeed rank ahead of all its predecessors.

While the fair is in no wise ready for the opening at the same time the class of exhibits that has already arrived and the general newness of the bunting and artistic displays all speak of enterprise and thoroughness. The attractions, too, which are offered the patrons are of a high order. In all five amusement companies have been engaged to entertain visitors and there will be three attractions inside the main building and two outside, which will be free to the public. As Director McDonald said this morning "the people will have a dollar show for twenty-five cents, to say nothing of the Fair, which this year will surpass all previous efforts."

Inside the exposition building today order is being evolved out of chaos. Overhead and all sides brand new bunting is in evidence, every yard of the old colored materials that have done yeoman service in days gone by has been utilized in the covering up of the unpainted walls of the stairways. Pictures, too, have been strung upon these selfsame stairs that greatly aid to the general finished appearance of the structure.

The society was fortunate in being able to buy a very low figure all the stock of decorating materials that had been shipped into this city in the anticipation of the visit of the late President McKinley to Salt Lake City. A well known party firm, the Electric Light and Chinese lanterns make a brave showing as they hang from the roof in graceful festoons and when each of the lanterns is lit up at night by the incandescent globe in the interior of the stairway, the effect is bright and cheerful. Electricity will play a big part in the effectiveness of the decorations this year. There is hardly a stall within the building but has its scores of lights nestling among the draperies of the stairways. Pictures, too, have been strung upon these selfsame stairs that greatly aid to the general finished appearance of the structure.

"No, I never saw him in my office after Saturday, the day after when I got some papers."

"You never had any conversation with Mr. Hills in which he asked you to help him to go over the books and find the error, and you refused?"

"No," I never saw him in my office after Saturday, the day after when I got some papers."

Mr. Van Kuran was still undergoing a rigid cross-examination when the noon recess was taken.

VAN KURAN'S DEFENSE.

Mr. Van Kuran was put on the stand by the defense Saturday afternoon. He made a good witness and answered in a plain, straightforward manner. In answer to questions of his counsel he defined his position as local treasurer of the Oregon Short Line Railway company.

Mr. Van Kuran said that he was 47 years old and was born in Boston. He had first come to Omaha in 1870, and was afterwards engaged in the real estate business. He started to work for the Union Pacific Railroad company in 1873. He said that he had no family. He was afterwards employed as chainman of a surveying party for the Union Pacific Railroad company, and later went into the auditor's office where he was a clerk till October, 1880. He then became a clerk in the treasurer's office, and later became chief clerk which position he occupied till March, 1897, when the Oregon Short Line Railroad company was organized and he entered its employ as local treasurer. He stated that he was elected, not appointed, to that office. He said that he had resided in Omaha since 1871, and was well acquainted there.

During his employment with the Short Line company Mr. Van Kuran had received and disbursed all moneys derived from the operation of the road. The remittances from station agents and conductors, he said, went to McCornick's and Jones' banks. There were sometimes errors in the slips sent to his office from the banks. He said that both Chief Clerk A. E. Kimball and H. S. Jayne had keys to his office and access to the various books. Kimball and he handled the money that passed through the office.

In direct examination Mr. Van Kuran stated that he had never converted or

As a special inducement to eclipse their competitors Orson Hewlett has promised that if he gets the prize he will split it up among the men who are at work upon his stall. He will have a good run for it, however. The Sugar company's exhibit promises to be very unique, with its corn, sun flower, wheat on the stalk and nodding oats as a frame. McDonald's horse stall with its palms, golden and electrical display, to say nothing about the candy, will undoubtedly be one of the attractions. Hewlett's five tons of baking powder artificially displayed amid the performance effects, also will have weight. Close competitors also are the Z. C. M. I., which occupies the northeast half of the building, and the Provo Woolen Mills on the opposite side.

This afternoon tour of crates of fruit and pumpkins, which caused and ordinary man to get black in the face to lift, began to arrive together with the art exhibits and the hanging committee.

But after all the exhibit which will undoubtedly "play to packed houses" will be that of the state fish commissioner, Mr. Sharp has placed at the disposal of the fair committee a number of tanks of fish which will undoubtedly be a joy to old and young alike. Here the disciple of Isaac Walton may feast his eyes upon the specimens of the finny tribe. In the fourth of rainbow trout, landlocked salmon, native trout, grayling, black bass, carp, suckers, mountain herring, catfish and other fish specimens. In addition to a fish tank and fountain under the vaulted glass stage, which will contain a heavy family of twenty-five different fish, there will also be a tank containing about 1000 trout fry.

After the speech by Governor Wells, Colonel Winder and President Empey at the opening exercises tomorrow the public will be able to pass judgment upon the twenty-fourth exhibition of Utah's products and view the trapeze acts of Samoyanos and the wire-walking of the Japanese under the vaulted glass stage, which will contain a heavy family of twenty-five different fish, there will also be a tank containing about 1000 trout fry.

The increase in the number of exhibits, especially the center of light and manufactures, is very gratifying to the promoters of the State fair. Already nearly all the stalls have been allotted and all the livestock, with the exception of the Jersey class, is on the ground. The exhibit of the Deseret Agricultural and Manufacturing society will indeed rank ahead of all its predecessors.

STATE FAIR NOTES.

The Wasatch Orchard company comes out strong with an exhibit of canned fruit and vegetables.

Six prospective exhibitors were reluctantly turned away today on account of the lack of space.

The display of the Z. C. M. I. is made doubly attractive by the quiet effects in white and blue.

There are over two hundred entries in the livestock department that embrace horses, cattle, swine and sheep.

The Salt Lake Pressed Brick company has on exhibition a mantle which is made entirely out of red brick and tiling.

The floral exhibit of E. J. Williams, of the City Cemetery, with its palms, cacti and flowers will draw lots of attention.

Living pictures of McKinley and his associates will be one of the shows which will be exhibited in the tent in the grounds.

Held's stand was out this afternoon advertising the Fair. It was finally placed upon a street car and a tour of the city then followed.

When the Fair is thrown open tomorrow the public will see the well earned fruits of six months' hard work on the part of the committee.

There are to be four uniformed special officers on the Fair grounds, which is detailed for the occasion.

The south annex which is devoted to the dairy products and vegetables, has not been overlooked in the matter of tasteful decorations and brand new bunting.

Director McDonald with an amount of foresight, has ordered a number of chairs to be placed about the building for the use of tired mothers with their little ones.

John H. Back & Son have moved their exhibit to the west wing and have put up one of the neatest little stalls on the floor.

There is a spotless white hearse backed against the bar. The combination of the source of numerous remarks after a morning among those who had time to talk.

The beer displays are conspicuous by their absence this year and Hewlett in consequence has the corner on bottle goods in all the glitter of their contents, gaudy labels and corks.

The "Temple of St. Crispian" with its eight pillars supporting a green and white dome illuminated by 54 electric lights, will undoubtedly draw much attention. It is the exhibit of the Romney, Robinson Shoe company.

In addition to the large amount of bunting which is displayed, the general effect is considerably heightened by the placing of a Maltese cross or a colored shield at the apex of each supporting column of the gallery.

The mining exhibit this year is ahead of anything previously attempted. The majority of the specimens collected represent the work of Mr. Crismon who recently visited the various mining camps bearing a commission from the D. M. A. society.

The Weber county fruit display will occupy nearly a quarter of the space on the southeast end of the building. Two hundred and fifty boxes of choice samples of grapes, peaches, apples and all kinds of fruit grown in the State arrived this afternoon from the north.

The Consolidated Street Railway & Power company has a big force of men at work in putting the tracks in order outside the grounds. It is the intention to put on a five-minute service during the fair consequently the public never need fear that they will not be able to get up town in time.

Professor Driggs of the State school for the deaf and blind promises an exhibit from that institution which will be a drawing card. In addition to the samples of work done and work done by the students a number of blind children will give exhibitions of their accomplishments daily in the enclosure set apart for that purpose.

JURY SAYS IT WAS A SUICIDE.

Jap Purposely Threw Himself Underneath Moving Train.

SABBATH WAS VIOLATED.

Barber Makes Complaint Against Fellow Craftsman—Police Judge Adjusts Family Row.

(Special to the "News.")

Ogden, Sept. 30.—Justice Parker J. Hall this morning summoned a jury to investigate the circumstances surrounding the death of the Japanese who was yesterday run over and killed by a Rio Grande Western train. The coroner's jury was composed of Messrs. A. T. Hestmark, W. W. Kennedy and G. A. Hansen and after due investigation returned a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to his death by throwing himself under the railway track in front of a moving Rio Grande Western train, with suicidal intent. The railway company was absolved from all responsibility.

BARBERS JANGLE.

This morning H. Brighton, a barber, swore to a complaint against another barber, Geo. Porter and Joe White, fellow craftsmen, with having fractured the sabbath in that they kept their shop open on yesterday and pled their trade as they would do upon any other day in the week. There is a city ordinance against such practice, but it is never enforced except when complaint is made by some citizen. When ever prosecutions have occurred so far they have been upon instigation of persons engaged in a similar business.

FAMILY SQUABBLE.

Upon a charge of disturbing the peace of Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. Kelley appeared in the police court this morning. The police judge plainly saw that the affair was simply a neighborhood quarrel and after a very sensible lecture to both parties and a reprimand to the defendant, the case was thrown out of court.

NEW PARAPHERNALIA.

A lot of new clubs and whistles have been received at the police department for the officers. These will be at once transferred to the persons of Ogden's "fly cop" for immediate use.

ATTACK ON GUARD DEPEND

Friends of McKinley's Family Do Not Believe Was Any Attempt to Desecrate Tomb.

Make No Attempt to Explain Strange Story—Military Authorities Very Numb.

Canton, Ohio, Sept. 30.—Friends of the family of the late President McKinley emphatically discredited belief in the idea that the shot reported fired by the Guard Depend at Westlawn cemetery last night was on account of any attempt to desecrate the tomb. They do not attempt to explain the strange story of the guard or accounts for the firing of the shot which the cemetery officials and other residents nearby say they heard, and they do not believe two men would undertake to make an attack upon the vault with seventy soldiers on guard or near at hand.

It is believed the military authorities will make a thorough investigation of the stories by the soldiers on guard Sunday night. There are unconfirmed rumors that the shot was fired on account of an accidental fall and also that it was the result of personal differences. The officers in charge early instructed soldiers not to talk of the affair.

The statements of the guard made Sunday night could not be obtained until the officers had secured their reports from them and while the officers declined to be quoted they were made with their knowledge and in their presence.

None of the officers would express an opinion as to what the object of the intruders may have been and they also instructed the men not to discuss the occurrence with outsiders.

The few persons who succeeded in gaining admission to the cemetery were directed to the officers of the guard for information and guards were told not to talk of the incident among themselves while outsiders were present. This is said to be in accordance with military regulations.

THE MERRIMAC COULD HAVE COALED

Commander James M. Miller so Testifies—

"The Sea on the 25th Was Nasty, Quite Nasty."

Washington, Sept. 30.—The bright sunshine and fresh air had the effect of bringing all the members of the Schley court of inquiry and the attendants upon it to the court building rather earlier than usual this morning. Admiral Dewey, as is his custom, was one of the first members to put in an appearance, but as early as his arrival he found Judge-Advocate Lemly and his assistant, Mr. Hanna, there in advance of himself. The admiral, as usual, wore only citizen's clothing upon his arrival, but he was soon transformed into a gallant tar by donning his service uniform. Capt. Lemly and Mr. Hanna were engaged from the early morning in preparing the program for the day. There is much in the way of detail to be done each morning, and they have fallen into the habit of coming direct to the court building, where they have their list of witnesses, files of documents, printed matter and everything else bearing upon the case. They began the day's proceedings according to custom by recalling the witnesses of previous days.

LEMLY'S PROGRAM.

Capt. Lemly's program provided that these should be followed by Commander Miller, who commanded the collier Merrimac in the early part of the Santiago campaign; Capt. Jewell, who commanded the scout Minneapolis; Lieut. Commander Sharp, who had charge of the much-talked-of Vixen, and Lieut. J. G. Donlee of the Brooklyn. It was also contemplated to call at a very early period Rear Admiral Evans, who was captain of the Iowa. Much interest was manifested in the probable appearance of the rear admiral and also in the prospect of seeing Capt. Miller, who it will be remembered, surrendered with great reluctance the command of the Merrimac to Lieut. Hobson, who afterwards sank the collier in the mouth of Santiago harbor.

While Commander Southard was on the stand he was asked by the court whether, if the fleet of Cervera had been in the harbor at Cienfuegos, it could have been seen by the vessel blocking the port. He replied: "I cannot definitely say. Not unless they had anchored in the lower harbor just inside of the bay, where I referred before was anchored. I do not believe they would have anchored in that spot."

The first new witness of the day was Commander James M. Miller, who was in command of the collier Merrimac while that vessel was part of Admiral Schley's flying squadron.

COMMANDER MILLER.

Commander Miller said that he had assumed command of the Merrimac April 11 at Norfolk. He had taken on board at Lambert's Point soon afterward about 50 tons of coal. His vessel had, he said, been capable at first of making between nine and ten knots. He afterwards had trouble with his machinery, so that by May 23 and 24 he would have hesitated in trying to secure a speed of more than seven knots. He read from the collier's log to show that the Iowa, the Massachusetts and the Castine had been on the coast of the collier of any vessel on the 25th or the 26th, the time consumed in proceeding from Cienfuegos to Santiago.

"The sea," he said, on the 25th was "nasty, quite nasty." The Merrimac, being a heavy vessel, its speed was affected, but if I had had a smaller vessel I should have felt it very much.

He also said that the weather on that day was bad.

The witness said that late in the afternoon of May 25 the intermediate valve of the collier was broken, but that previous to the arrival of Santiago she had not been "broken down, disabled or delayed."

As to the condition of the 26th the witness said:

COULD HAVE COALED.

"If should say I could have coaled, as I find here, (consulting the log), we were making ten knots at one time. We got up to twelve knots. I fancy the weather could not have been very boisterous. I read from the log seven knots, then six and so on. There is one entry here that we got up to eleven knots. On that date I find 'steaming with the squadron east to quarter north,' and I find by the entry, between 5 o'clock in the morning and meridian of that date that we made from ten to twelve knots."

Mr. Hanna—What was the condition of the sea?

"The sea was smooth, I should judge, from the way we were going. We made our speed from seven to ten knots."

"Could you have coaled vessels on the afternoon of the 25th?"

"I could up to the time I was broken down. While I had control of the ship I could have coaled."

THE TREASURY SURPLUS.

Gage Says Its Accumulation Has Been Overcome by Bond Purchases.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—Secy. of the Treasury Gage, who is spending a few days at the home of his son in Evansville before going to Colorado to spend his vacation, said in regard to the present large surplus in the treasury:

"The prosperous condition of the country must be most gratifying. The decrease in the expenditures of the government, however, is a salient factor in the increase in the surplus in the last three months. From June 30, 1891, to September 30, the revenue amounted to $125,000,000. The expenditures during this time were $121,000,000. This left an excess of nearly $4,000,000. During the same period in 1890 the receipts were $125,000,000 and the expenditures the same. Of course, the fact must be taken into consideration that the revenue for the last three months was under the lowered schedule, so that the $125,000,000 receipts this year represents a larger amount of business transacted than during the same time last year, when the $125,000,000 was received."

"It was estimated when the present revised revenue law was put in force on July 15 revenue receipts from all sources would fall off some $40,000,000 by reason of the reductions made. It is that had been realized the receipts since that time would have been $1,500,000 less, or $123,500,000. Notwithstanding the reduction in taxes, the receipts have diminished by less than $300,000 from what they were a year ago, while the expenditures have increased by over $17,000,000 for the same period.

"Up to the present time, however, the accumulation of money in the treasury, which would be a natural effect at this time, has been more than overcome by the purchase of bonds in the open market by the government. During the last three months there have been bonds having a face value of $12,500,000, for which over $24,000,000 was paid. The actual cash in the treasury has thus been reduced, and the present excess of revenues over expenditures taken care of for the time being."

Danish Loan to be Authorized.

Copenhagen, Sept. 30.—It is officially announced that the minister of finance, Alfred Haaeg, will this week recommend the rigsdag to authorize a government loan of 2,000,000 crowns, they were in the recent loan of $10,000,000 are interested in the loan as $60,000,000 floated by the city of Copenhagen, which was furnished by New York capitalists.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Olsen of Minneapolis are at present in Copenhagen the guests of Baron Tresseltshott, the former Premier.

The Olsen have made a tour of Asia, Africa, and most of Europe, and are now on their way home, by way of Paris and London.

"What time did you break down?"

"I stopped at 5:30 that afternoon." "Asked if vessels could have been coaled while the Merrimac was in tow of the Yale, the witness replied that that was a suppositious question and that he would not like to say. As a matter of fact, she did not coal any vessel while in tow. On all days from May 23 to May 31, except on the days when en route from Cienfuegos to Santiago and when disabled the Merrimac had vessels alongside for the purpose of coaling and they had been coaled from the collier."

On cross-examination, Mr. Raynor questioned Commander Miller concerning the reason for the Merrimac on the 24th. He said the Merrimac had been coaled at 7:30 in the morning of that day. It was then explained concerning signals as to coaling the Texas. While these questions were being put, Capt. Miller said, laughingly, "Go ahead. You've got me there." He then proceeded.

FEARED BEING CRUSHED.

"I signalled over, 'I object to having two battleships over me,' and Capt. Philip, of the Texas, signalled, 'I think, to Capt. Higginson, but I do not know whether it is to the admiral or him, 'K' and 'M' will crush G.'"

"I was G, I think. What I objected to was having two battleships beside me. They have a peculiar motion and when the battleships are rolling they would have a tendency to crush a collier between them. It was not so much on account of the weather as it was the presence of a battleship on each side."

"How was the sea at that time?"

"I did not feel the sea very much because my ship was a peculiarly steady ship."

"How was it as far as the other ships are concerned?"

"Battleships nearly always have motion; that is my experience. As far as I am personally concerned, I could have coaled."

"Well, how about the other vessels?"

"That is not for me to judge."

"Then when you spoke of your capacity to coal you spoke about your own ship?"

"Yes, that I was ready for delivery. I am giving no opinion regarding other ships."

Continuing, the witness said that he "always hated to go alongside the battleships." The Merrimac, he went on, "was always steady, but the battleships were continually rolling."

"Especially in a rough sea," suggested Mr. Raynor.

"In any sea," responded the witness. "I do not think especially true when the warship has protruding spars as had the Texas."

"They were always nasty," the witness responded.

Mr. Raynor questioned Capt. Miller closely concerning the state of the weather and of the sea on May 25, quoting from Admiral Cervera's statement on that subject, but the witness would not say that his log was silent as to the condition of the sea at that time.

MILLER'S REMOVAL.

In this connection Capt. Miller referred to his removal from the command of the Merrimac in order to turn the vessel over to Lieut. Hobson. He said on that point:

"When I was taken out summarily from the Merrimac, nearly everything I had was lost and the only thing I can remember new with the few notes I have here is in this log."

The court asked:

"Was there any point near Cienfuegos where vessels could have been protected from the sea on May 24?"

The witness replied: "I do not think that unless we had gone up probably to the Isle of Pines, there was any place, so far as I can remember now, where we could have been found another weather than we found off Cienfuegos unless going very far to the eastward."

The court also asked: "Could you have coaled any of the vessels on May 25 had you been ordered to do
