

VETERANS HONOR DEPARTED HEROES

Grand Army and Associated Societies Conduct Memorial Services.

THE RANKS ARE THINNING

Each Year Sees the Call of Many of Those Who Fought in the Great Civil War.

The plot selected for holding memorial services at the city cemetery was immediately in front of the grave of Lieut. Harry A. Young, assistant surgeon of Utah batteries, who was killed by the insurgents near Manila, P. I., on Feb. 6, 1899. The service, which was conducted by the Maxwell Post, G. A. R., assisted by the Women's Relief corps and the United Veterans of the Spanish war, was deeply impressive in character. Quite a number of grizzled veterans of the Civil war were present, together with a good representation of the veterans of the later conflict, and the Relief corps was present in force. A scroll from Company C. N. G. U., commanded by Corporal Allen Eurt, marched up to the grounds accompanied by the company trumpeter. First Call was sounded and the veterans and their friends began to gather around the monument to the unknown dead, erected temporarily upon the greenward in front of the flagstaff. The trumpet then sounded assembly, and services began. Commander William Passler of Maxwell Post introduced Col. Maurice M. Kaign, who made the leading address of the day.

Col. Kaign said in part: "It is fitting that the people should set aside one day in the year for the purpose of offering the devotion of the country to those heroes who from '61 to '65 bared their breasts to the bullet of the enemy to save the Union. There were 2,500,000 soldiers who saw service on the northern side in the Civil war, and of those two and a half millions, only 600,000 are left. These survivors of that noble band are dying off at the rate of 50,000 a year, and it will only be a few years now until the last man who bore arms in that great internecine conflict will have passed to the great beyond."

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED.

"Not so many years ago, I remember attending an occasion when Grant, Sherman, those peerless generals, and Stanton, the iron secretary of war, and Slocum, and others, who were the bulwark of strength to this nation in the time of its danger, were present to mingle with the men of the army. But now, alas, they too, with an innumerable host of the men who fought under them, have passed away. It is entirely fitting and appropriate that the country should honor these men, and a country which would not do honor to their memory would not be worth fighting for."

Col. Kaign paid a tribute to the loyalty and courage of the women of the Relief corps, who stood back of the soldiers and gave aid in time of trouble. The speaker also praised the courage and heroism of the Spanish-American war veterans, who arose to the call of the country in a later time of need.

MISS HELEN TAFT AND SHAFT SHE WILL UNVEIL AT GETTYSBURG.

Gettysburg, Pa., May 31.—Arrangements have been completed for the dedication on the battlefield here this afternoon of the monument erected by act of Congress to commemorate the services of the regular army of the United States in the Gettysburg campaign of June and July, 1863. President Taft will be the central figure in the ceremonies and will deliver the oration. Miss Helen H. Taft, the president's daughter, will unveil the monument. Mr. Dickinson, the secretary of war, will deliver an address and transfer the monument to the Gettysburg National park commission. The memorial will be accepted by Lieutenant Colonel John P. Nicholson, chairman of the commission. The monument is a beautiful shaft, eighty-five feet high, surrounded at the base by a broad granite terrace. It stands on Hancock avenue, a short distance south of the high water mark of the battle of Gettysburg.

alty and courage of the women of the Relief corps, who stood back of the soldiers and gave aid in time of trouble. The speaker also praised the courage and heroism of the Spanish-American war veterans, who arose to the call of the country in a later time of need.

Col. George B. Squires then offered a supplication for the peace of the souls of the departed comrades, and for the nation's dead. The ritual service of the G. A. R. was read by Commander Passler, and for the unknown dead by Mrs. Winegar, president of the Women's Relief corps. Flowers were then placed on the monument by the ladies of the Relief corps, and the service of the United Spanish War veterans was read by commander Johnson. All heads were bared while the squad of the national guard under Corporal

STUDENT BADLY BURNED.

A. A. Anderson, University Junior, Injured in Ploche.

A. A. Anderson, one of the junior class in mining engineering of the state university, was severely burned at Ploche last week. He is at present in the hospital but that place will be brought to the city as soon as he can travel. It is not thought that the burns are serious, but it will be some time before he is all right.

It transpires that when the boys pitched camp they were some distance from water. This caused Anderson and another student to reconnoiter, during which they found a pipe and, supposing it to contain water, they lit a match and turned on the faucet. Instantly Anderson's face was enveloped in flame, which burned off his eyebrows, and made it necessary to bandage all his head. The pipe contained gasoline instead of water.

TO COLLEGIATE STUDENTS.

The Rev. Dr. W. M. Paden preached the annual baccalaureate sermon before the Salt Lake Collegiate Institute last evening in the First Presbyterian church. The church was well filled, and much interest manifested in the discourse. The text was from Isaiah, "They who wait on the Lord shall renew their strength." The sermon was based on trust and patience as strong foundations on which to build the superstructure of a Christian character. Trusting and being patient in waiting for the administration of Divine Providence were urged upon the students. Sooner or later God works out His good will and pleasure, in a way that redounds to His honor and our best welfare. Don't be impatient, wait on the will of the Creator and rest assured that the outcome will be the noblest and the best. The choir gallery was profusely decorated with plants, flowers and greens, and the quartet sang special anthems. Commencement begins next Thursday night.

PNEUMONIA CLAIMS REBECCA E. LITTLE

Woman Well Known Through Her Work in Educational Circles Answers Death's Call.

Mrs. Rebecca E. Little died Saturday evening at her residence, 164 east First South street, from the effects of bronchial pneumonia. Mrs. Little was widely known in connection with educational work throughout the state. She was born Aug. 12, 1852, at the Church farm, being the daughter of Llewellyn and Catherine Mantle. In June, 1882, she was married to Fernand Little. Two daughters survive her.

Mrs. Little was one of the first graduates from the University of Utah. She took up teaching as a profession and followed her own studies with such perseverance that she eventually took the degree of bachelor of science at the Utah university. She was made a resident of the university by Governor Heber M. Wells. She was also a patron of the National Council of Women, and was prominently connected with the Relief society work.

The funeral will be held at the home, 164 east First South street, tomorrow, Tuesday, at 12 o'clock noon. Friends wishing to view the body may do so at the residence, 164 east First South street, Tuesday morning, from 10 to 11:30 o'clock.

Big Well Is Inspected.

A. G. Clauque and W. D. Candland, members of the state land board, returned Saturday from a trip to Nephi to inspect the board's experimental well in Dog valley. Water was struck at a depth of 550 feet and it stands 50 feet high in the well. It flows at the rate of 17 gallons per minute and is of excellent quality. The well is expected to boom this part of the country. More wells will be established. The next one will be sunk at Levan.
