NEW SMOKE CONSUMER. An Invention of Great Apparent Prace

tical Value Under Test.

Experiments are now being made with a new smoke consumer at the Utah Light and Power company's plant on Fourth West street, which, if as successful from an economic standpoint as thus far proved to be in regard to the consumption of smoke, will prove the invention to be of much practical value. A. M. Grant and Engineer Hayward are conducting the experiments with the new smoke consumer, which was put into operation for the first time yesterday. The method of operation is as follows:

The coal is run through a pulverizer into a pipe connected to another pipe through which air is forced by means of a fan. The air produces suction and the coal and air mixed together, almost forming a gas, are blown under a brick arch where the mixture ignites produc-ing a terrific heat. The air pressure used is not much over one-half an ounce

The object of the process is to oxide the coal particles with the oxygen of the air and thus enable complete combustion of the gases to take place. The experiment thus far has proved to be a success. Four hundred and fifty pounds of coal are being used per hour and the power being generated is be-tween 130 and 140 horse power.

Scarcely any gases come from the chinney and Engineer Hayward said and Engineer thinks that that he thinks that non-combustible particles non-combustible particles non-combustible particles today only blown out of the fur-He and Mr. Grant are now are nace. making careful measurements of the coal and water consumed, the power produced and the evaporation caused by the heat, to determine the economic value of the invention.

Scrofula

Is a disease as old as antiquity, and as young as the newest born infant. It has infested the blood of humanity from ancient times down to the present minute.

It is hereditary or may be acquired. It appears in swollen glands, scrofulous sores, hip disease, boils, pimples, eruptions, and, as believed by high authorities, even in the forms of catarrh and rheumatism.

It can be cured by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla faithfully and persistently. We know this, because Hood's Sarsaparilla has done it.

It will cure you if you give it a trial. You should begin to take it today.

Far from being the dashing creature one would think from reading her novels, she looks as if she had not strength or energy to put her thoughts on paper. She told me that her methods of work are somewhat peculiar. She prefers to begin to write at 11 o'clock in the evening, when everything about her is still and there are no discordant noises to distract her ottention. She writes only in the south, and as far as possible on moonlight and, as far as possible on moonlight nights, seated at a window, through which the moonlight is streaming."
