PATRIOTISM AT HUNTSVILLE

Elaborate Celebration of the Fourth, With Sports Galore At Huntsville.

BUT FEW ACCIDENTS OCCUR.

Impressive Obsèques Over Remains of Eli Heap of Star Valley, Who Died in Ogden.

Ogden, July 5.—The only place in Weber county where a glorious Fourth of July was celebrated in good old style was at Huntsville. The people of Ogden valley and hundreds from other parts of the county, especially Ogden, turned out to participate in the many pleasures arranged by the citizens of that thrifty little city.

The people were aroused at daybreak by the salute. At 10 o'clock a very creditable parade took place, many beautiful floats were in line. They passed along the principal streets and were admired by all. After the parade a public assemblage was held at the Huntsville tabernacle and a patriotic program was rendered. On account of sickness, Hon. Joseph Chex was unable to be present to deliver the oration.

BONDS FOR WATERWORKS.

Proposition Carries Almost Unanimously—Death of a Pioneer. Special Correspondence. St. George, Washington Co., July 4.—The weather is frightfully warm in Utah. The people of St. George celebrated the Fourth in grand style. A good program was rendered. WILL BOND FOR WATERWORKS. At a special election held here Monday, July 1, 1907, the verdict of the people was practically unanimous in favor of bonding in the sum of $10,500 (which is the full limit of the law) for the purpose of putting in a water system for St. George city. There were but five negative votes. The water works will cost about $20,000 and the balance will be raised by a special tax.

Mr. and Mrs. James G. Black, and Miss Maud R. Snow, who married for Los Angeles July 1 for a short visit. DEATH OF MRS. LUND. Eliza Bruce Lund of St. George died June 29, 1907. Deceased was born in Hereford, Herefordshire, England, Oct. 11, 1821. She received the gospel in her native land in 1840, and emigrated to Nauvoo, Ill., where she married William Lund in 1843, and both shared in the trying scenes of Nauvoo, until the expulsion of the saints therefrom. They came on to Utah in 1850, and were among the pioneers to govt. and later to St. George. She was the mother of 10 children, only two of whom survive her, William Lund, now in Arizona, and Edna Lund Farnsworth, with whom she has made her home for the last 20 years. The funeral was held last Sunday from the residence of her deceased son, E. J. Lund. The casket was literally covered with beautiful flowers, as a token of the high esteem in which she was held. The speakers, President H. Snow, Elders Dwyer, H. Cannon and James G. Black, testified to the good and noble qualities of the deceased.

DEATH OF MRS. LUND.

Publication in the evening closed the day's program. Body Found at Elsinore.—The body of Moroni Barney's child was found July 2, in a field one mile from home. It is nearly two months since the baby was drowned, and although the corpse was much decayed it was readily identified. At the time of drowning, the Sever river and nearby canals were searched and dredged, but to no avail, the high waters preventing recovery until now. American Fork Boy Hurt.—Willie Downs, a lad of 14, who resides with his uncle, A. F. Adams, came near losing his life on Tuesday. He had found a railroad torpedo and attempted to make a bride rosette out of it when it exploded, badly lacerating his hand. The main force of it, however, struck his shoulder and hat, tearing his shirt and hat to shreds. Had it struck his head fatal results would have ensued. The Fourth at Park City.—The people of Park City spent a patriotic Fourth, the entire celebration being carried out without any serious accident. Several public dances and theatricals were held at break of day and at sunrise. During the morning hours a program of sports was held, prizes being awarded the winners. A parade was also a pleasing feature of the celebration. During the afternoon a patriotic program was rendered at the Opera House. D. B. Shields was the orator of the day. One fire was reported at 2 o'clock this morning, when an empty house belonging to Harry Hanman, burned down. The blaze was caused by firecrackers.

SIXTY YEARS AGO TODAY. MONDAY, JULY 5, 1847. The morning was calm and clear. The pioneers left their camping ground on Green river at 8 o'clock a. m. and traveled three and a half miles, following the right bank of the river. Elder Pratt writes: "Here we came to a short halt and watered our animals, and again started, leaving Green river, and gradually ascended the bluffs, and continued over a gently undulating sandy plain, destitute of grass and water, for many miles, when we gradually descended upon the left bank of Black's Fork. This stream is about 20 feet wide, swift current, and its waters somewhat roily. The most of the mountain streams of any size have at this stage of water a muddy appearance, although when low they are represented to be clear. licted with fever, probably occasioned by the suffocating clouds of dust which rise from the sandy road, and envelope the whole camp when in motion, and also by the sudden changes of temperature; for during the day it is exceedingly warm, while the snowy mountains, which surround us on all sides, render the air cold and uncomfortable during the absence of the sun. The pioneers traveled this day 20 miles.

BURIAL OF ELI HEAP.

The mortal remains of Eli Heap of Star Valley, Wyoming, who died in Ogden Wednesday, were laid peacefully to rest in the Ogden City cemetery last evening. Bishop James Slater officiated at the grave. The good, upright life of the deceased, and his many noble traits of character, were catalogued, and many comforting remarks made on the closing of a well spent life and the glories of a resurrection for the just. Many beautiful floral tributes were laid on the casket by sorrowing relatives and friends.

FREIGHT CARS BURNED.

Grass Fire Cause of Disastrous Blaze On O. S. L. Tracks. Ogden, July 5.—Three cars of freight which were switched on one of the side tracks below the Oregon Short Line depot, one loaded with electrical motors, one with machinery and the third with merchandise, were with their contents destroyed by fire this morning. The fire was started from the grass, which was burning in the neighborhood. Several other cars were on the string, but a yard crew saved some of them by detaching them from the burning cars.

Santaquin Celebrates

Independence Day was patriotically observed in regulation style at Santaquin. The day was ushered in with the usual salute and a splendid program was given in the meetinghouse at 10 a. m. No accidents marred the day's pleasure. A

A RELIC OF THE CIVIL WAR.

The anchor of the Confederate ironclad ram Merrimac, or Virginia, shown in the cut, is now on exhibition at the Jamestown exposition. The Merrimac, which was one of the most formidable fighting machines ever floated, was practically defeated at Newport News by Ericsson's Monitor and later destroyed by the Confederates. This was the most notable naval event of the period.

PASSING OF THE LOBSTER.

Avarice is the prime cause of the passing of the lobster. Years ago they were numerous along the New Jersey and Long Island shores; but they have been gradually fished out, until now the supply that reaches New York and Boston markets is very largely caught in Canadian waters. Canada is much wiser than the United States in protecting its fisheries. Up to within 40 or 50 years ago Maine furnished a large proportion of the lobsters that the New York market demanded; but today practically none leave the Pine Tree state for New York, and nearly all the coming factories that dotted the coast a few years ago have been closed on account of inability to secure lobsters. Wholesale and fancy grocers do not quote canned lobsters in their price lists, because of the uncertainty of the supply.

Most of the lobstermen pay not the slightest heed to the law. They catch and market undersized lobsters; some only seven or eight inches long, veritable babies, and when they find a 'seed' lobster (a female in spawn, with the eggs incrusting on the under side of the shell) in one of their pots, instead of returning it to the water, as both the law and common sense demand, they throw it in with the rest of the catch. The Maine law prohibits the catching or having in one's possession a lobster under 10 1/2 inches in length; but such laws do not exist in other states; consequently, if a fisherman or a dealer succeeds in getting his lobsters safely over the line he is practically safe.

At irregular intervals a tour of "inspection" is made by the Maine fish wardens. These tours are of the comic-opera variety and suggest a brass band possession raid in New York. They are usually privately announced in advance, and all the lobstermen along the coast are "tipped off" by telegraph or by men on horseback or in sailing boats. Consequently, lobsters of illegal length are rarely found.

Recently the Massachusetts state board of fish and game commissioners, in the course of its report, said: "The commercial extinction of the lobster is as sure to result as day is to follow night. In 13 years there has been a decrease of more than 66 per cent in the catch of lobsters."—Appleton's Magazine.

LOST EITHER WAY.

A Philadelphian said of Miss Anna T. James, who has given $1,000,000 for negro education in the south: "Miss James is a splendid philanthropist. To a good cause she is generously itself. Giving promptly and freely, she has no sympathy with niggards. I once heard her tell a story about a niggardly rich man of her childhood. 'This man visited a school and made an address. At the end he called a little boy up to him and said: "My lad, have you a purse?" "No, sir." "I'm sorry," said the rich man. If you had had a purse I should have given you a dime to put in it.' "This man was scheduled to speak again at the school the next month, and when he came the boys were prepared for him. An empty purse lay hid in every little pair of trousers. "And sure enough, at the end of his speech the man called another boy and said: "Have you a purse, son?" "Yes, sir," was the eager answer. "I am glad of it," said the other. "If you hadn't I should have given you a dime to buy one with."—Washington Star.
