WILL IT PAY?

THE question comes up whether the tripartite arbitration commission will pay. It is a question, like many others, concerning which much may be said on both sides. It seems to be conceded that the commission was the only apparent available means of saving the Union from division and in all probability war and destruction, the only available means to preserve the o'clock. unity and integrity of the government and advance the peace, progress, and prosperity of the country.

If the above were the fact, and the labors of the commission should result as thus anticipated, then so in the Oregon case was adverse to far the commission will pay, and the democrats. The republicans Idea of its greation

BUENOS A VEES, 23.—The Amer-ican ship Admiral, which left New York on the 14th of December, for San Francisco, is ashore at Paisgo-nes. The vessel will be a total wreck. Part of her cargo will pro-bably be saved should the weather continue moderate. The cargo was worth about $80,000, and the vessel about $100,000.

There are other ways, however in which the commission will not pay. As things now look, the time and means expended by and over the commission will be a dead loss for the reason that its decisions are not materially different to those expected from the President of the Senate; If Congress had trusted the count to him as usual, the expectation was that he would have counted Hayes and Wheeler in, which is precisely the thing that the commission have virtually done. Where then is the rain and done. Where then is the gain and advantage of having the commission? Whence comes the return sion? Whence comes the return for the means, time, energy, and anxiety expended upon it? The action of the commission has proved, what the people did not be-lieve previously, that partisanship rules all the departments of the go-vernment—the executive, the legisvernment-the executive, the legislative, and the judicial. It was well known to be so as regards the two first long since, but as regards the last it was fendly believed to be otherwise, the hope was hugged that there was one last high resort which partisanship had failed to badly bias-the supreme court of judicature of the Union. That hope has proved to be valn. Judges are but haman, and what official human in this great republic is not swayed by performance of the second the day in gloom. From the flagstaffs on the public ture of the Union. That hope has by partisanship? In this respect buildings, the stars and stripes the commission evidently will not floated at half mast, and draped with black crape. The same sad pay.

The decisions of the commission so far have confirmed the prevailing opinion that the next President of the United States will acquire his high position on the strength of glaring and undeniable fraud, in-citing and fostering the idea of impunity in election frauds, in the fu-ture. In this respect, it can hardly be said that the commission will pay. Lastly, what must be the influ-ence on the public mind and the public morals in general, as the conviction spreads that the high places of the nation are at best but public morals in general, as the conviction spreads that the high places of the nation are at best but partisan prizes, and that things have so far degenerated beyond that point that those high places have become also the prizes of un-blushing partisan fraud? Can any possible good result flow from such a conviction? Hardly. In this respect it may be said that the commission is a blank failure, and will not pay in the least degree.
