Mistress of Style.

An article in a periodical calls attention to the degree of M. M.—Mistress of Style—as that most coveted by all women, outranking, at least so far as admiration is concerned, all the A. M.'s and Ph. D.'s in existence. The statement leads back to the old query, Do college girls and other women given to intellectual exercise care for such mundane matters as looks and clothing? It may safely be asserted that they do. There may be no definite, outspoken "views" upon the matter, but the principle that a woman, to make the most of her opportunities, be they intellectual or otherwise, must look well and dress just as well as she can is universal. Mrs. May Wright Sewall herself wouldn't dream of facing her national council in a last year's bonnet. The day of the blue stockinged and thick ankled female reformer is past. Both philanthropical and college women are nowadays as conspicuous for grace of body as for grace of mind.—Chicago Post.

Mme. de Pompadour.

Mme. de Pompadour was not, according to the testimony of her contemporaries, a beauty, nor anything more than a fairly good looking woman. She gained her influence by her pleasing manners and her wonderful tact and address. Her chief beauty was her hair, which, to increase her apparent height, she wore in the fashion that has since borne her name.

The word sunny borrowed its original significance from astrology. It described a person born under the influence of the sun, this luminary being supposed to exercise a beneficial influence on the character of the individual.
