BY THE SAD SEA WAVES.

The lady clasping the lifeline is wearing one of the new mohair bathing suits, which are both smart and durable. These are shown in the shops in all the effective new blues, French-looking pinks suggestive of crushed fruits, and the soft greens which blend so well with the surf shades. The knee-length princess model, with the fullness box-plated at the waist and over the hips, becomes most womanly, and white lace collars and cuffs lend a dainty finishing touch. The modern bathers do not protect her throat and arms from the sun and water, but protect her hair with an oilskin-lined cap or a big straw scoop bonnet.

In Women's World.

A remarkable clause is contained in the will of a wealthy landowner named Boernitz, who died last week in Berlin. The testator bequeaths a large number of flats to his heirs on the condition that they do not let them to persons keeping servants or having children, dogs, cats or birds. Tenants may not be engaged in night work which will cause them to return home while the other occupants are sleeping.

One musical instrument is permitted in each flat, but no flowers may be placed on the window sills, and the tenants must sign an agreement to wear heelless slippers indoors.

Modern verandas are literally homes. They are readily transferred into living rooms, sleeping rooms and dining rooms.

To furnish a veranda to the best advantage for living purposes, furniture should be utilized that can withstand the weather and hard usage, says the June Delinctor. Several large easy chairs, a settee, furnished with fresh cushions, and a few bamboo screens or awnings will add materially to the swinging couch is a luxurious addition that will be greatly appreciated. Such a couch may be home-made, only length and depth and a wealth of pillows being necessary for the comfort of the occupant. It may be made of a home-made full-length pad or a number of pillows. It is a fancy of the moment to have summer porcupine filled with pine or balsam needles, hops, or clover. Husks from green corn are saved, and with some lemon verbena, geranium, lavender or other leaves to give fragrance, make a particularly nice pillow filler.

A home-made folding screen which is both convenient and picturesque may be made by stretching green burlap over an ordinary frame. Over the top of the screen an inch of border in colored raffia. This screen will be thick enough to serve as a protection from drafts.

To be a la mode nowadays, clothes must fit closely wherever it is possible to take out an inch of unnecessary fullness. The corset skirt with its high waisting is only another instance of this tendency, says the June Delinctor. Its great popularity is due to its efficiency in producing the slender lines of the present figure silhouette. Waists have bloused very little at the belt line for some time past, but the corset skirt robs them of even the slight fullness ordinarily allotted them. In its present construction the blouse comes down from the shoulders in flat, clinging lines that follow the figure closely. Just below the bust it meets the corset skirt, producing the effect of a perfect-fitting costume, graceful in the extreme. It is easy to see how the happiest results may be achieved by the seeker after slenderness through the medium of the corset skirt.

To say that a skirt has a high waistline describes it only partially. For instance, it may be gored or circular, or gored circular, or again gored plaited. It may be fitted to the figure or it may hang from its belt in true empire fashion. There are so many versions of it that almost any type of woman can find one that seems to have been designed especially for her.

One of the new corset skirts that has been especially well received has a seam down the center front and a mere suggestion of the tucked effect across the front at the waistline. It is not particularly suitable for wash materials, but in panama, velvety or pongee it is perfectly adapted to the figure. Like so many of the latest skirts it has the circular shaping that sits smoothly over the hips and flares about the feet. The skirts with circular side are not only very smart but they are extremely pretty as well, especially in the new stripes and checks. Wherever it is practical the well-dressed woman will utilize the two and three and four-piece circular skirts in her summer wardrobe.

A very pretty summer salad is this: Select some green peppers and open them at the top and take out the seeds; make each one stand on a lettuce leaf, putting a tiny bit of the bottoms if necessary. Then prepare some small cooked green string-beans, the smaller the better, by making them in French dressing; fill the peppers with these and on top of each one put a little ball of cream cheese. The combination is quite unusual in flavor and very good.

Fruit salads are the delectable and most refreshing of all we have in summer, and they are almost no trouble to make. Several kinds of fruit should not be put together, but select only one or two, for that is apt to make a messy dish; one or two kinds mixed, or one alone is quite enough. Then, too, it should be remembered that mayonnaise rarely combines with fruit; there is one exception at least, for pineapple is particularly good with it; but with most other fruits French dressing should be used, and this should have little vinegar in it—lemon juice is much better.

Strawberry salad is made by arranging for each person six or more very large, fine berries in a cup-shaped lettuce leaf; these are laid on a platter and French dressing is put on just. Like all salads, to be good this must be cold. Cherry salad is made with either California cherries or the large exchearts, and both red and white ones are used, or the two are prettily mixed. The cherries are stoned without breaking them and in place of each pit a bit of nut is pressed in, or a small hazelnut is put in entire. They are laid on lettuce and French dressing poured over. This is rather an elaborate dish, but it is simple enough to make if one has time and is willing to take the trouble to put it together.

Americans traveling abroad are often puzzled on the subject of baths, says the June Delinctor. We are so used at home to the luxury of a porcelain tub, that we feel as if we had fallen in among the heathen when there is no bath in the pension. There are always public baths in European cities, frequented by people of refinement. The baths are kept immaculate and are not high, say twenty-five cents for everything included—soap, towel and tip. If you like a bran bath, which is most refreshing, you can have bran brought to the bath for about ten cents. There are often swimming pools in connection with these places, and the attendants are usually very good chaperones and manicurists, as well as hair-dressers. You can order a bath brought to you if you like, and it might be amusing to do this once, for a novelty. These costs are not high, but all these things are part of the varied experiences which make up the peculiar charm and novelty of a journey abroad.

When you are sewing in a great hurry, and the machine belt becomes loose, do not stop to remove it in order to tighten it. Simply put a drop of machine oil on it, turn the wheel a few seconds, and proceed with a tightened belt.

Let me warn those who are planning for a summer's recreation to choose their vacation friends with care. For example, there was a girl who had planned to go to a quiet country place with a casual friend. It was a girl whom she had not known intimately, but they had been on the same boat for some time, and when the proposition was made by one of them that they should go together on their vacation both thought it would be a good thing. But it wasn't. They did not know each other well enough to risk it, and when they were thrown closely together each was disappointed in the other, and they did not have enough adaptability to hit it off well on some subjects. Being more or less, and when the proposition was made by one of them that they should go together on their vacation both thought it would be a good thing. But it wasn't. They did not know each other well enough to risk it, and when they were thrown closely together each was disappointed in the other, and they did not have enough adaptability to hit it off well on some subjects. They did not know each other well enough to risk it, and when they were thrown closely together each was disappointed in the other, and they did not have enough adaptability to hit it off well on some subjects.

Another mistake sometimes made is in going to the wrong sort of place. Making up your mind from the first what you want to do when you go away, then select your place.

The girl who is tired out with hard work should not choose a gay resort where there will be much drinking and constant excitement of one kind or another. She needs a country place or a quiet seaside spot, where she can lie in a hammock or on the sand and look at green trees or blue waves.

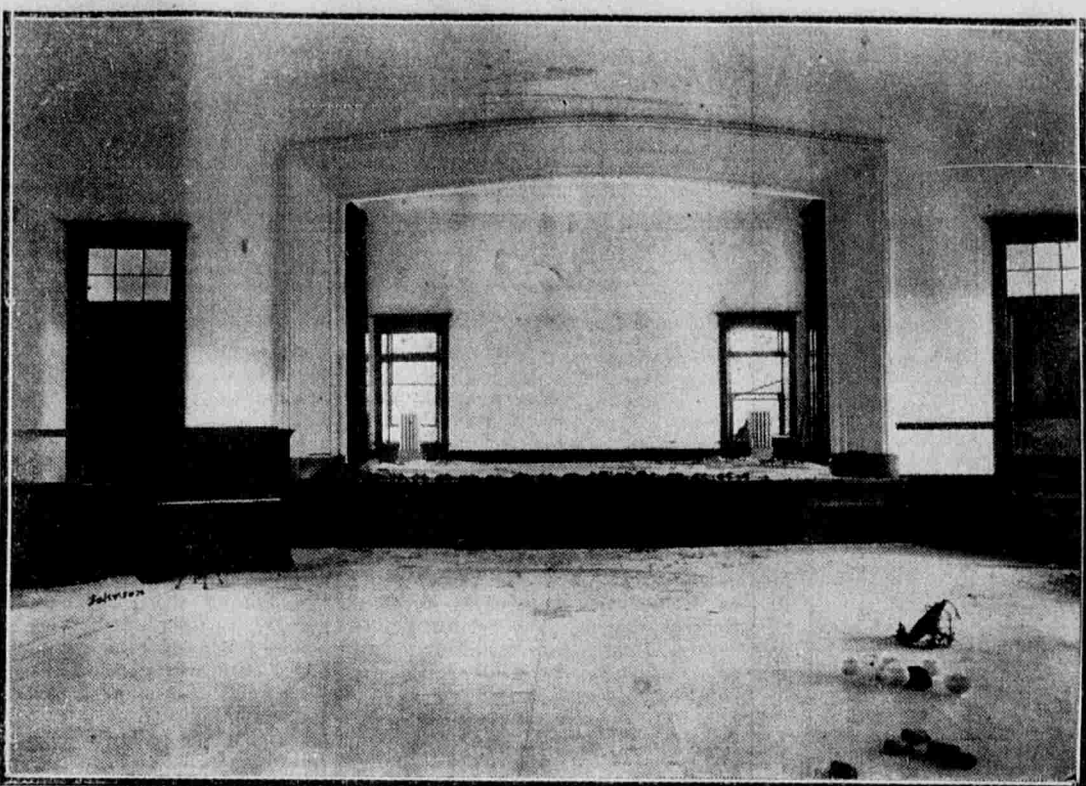

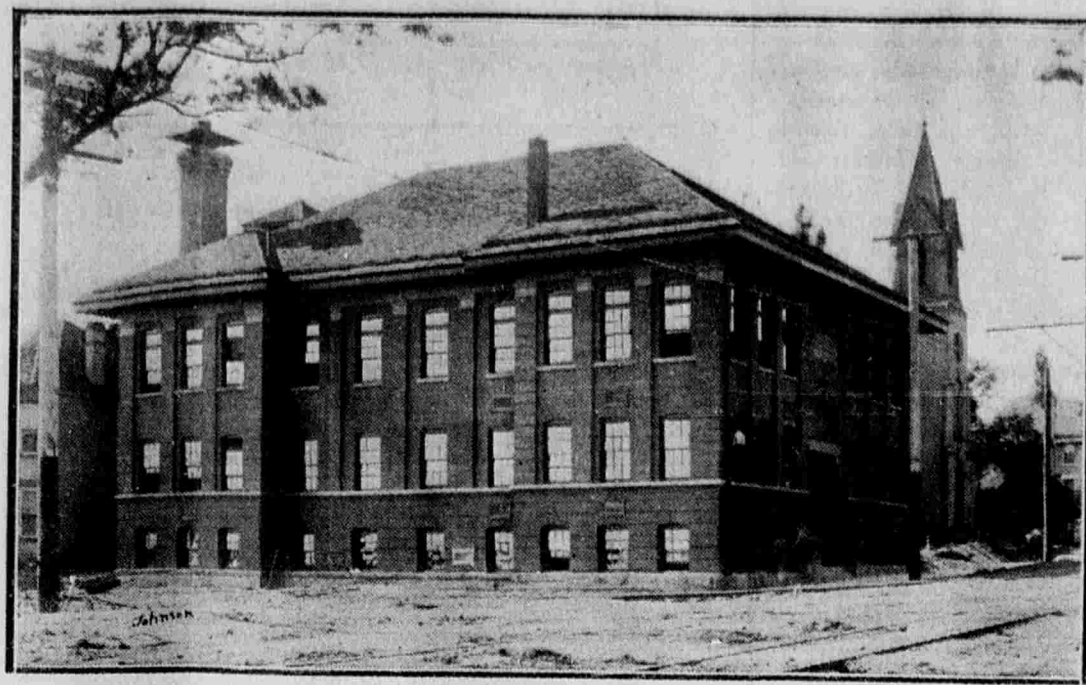

On the other hand, the home girl who has a constant round of monotonous duties will be helped by a taste of liveliness in her outing and will be better for meeting new people.

Slighter will encounter you on every side, disappointments will meet you, faults will swarm in the places and persons you encounter, and if you get any good out of your vacation, you will do it, so to speak, in spite of yourself.

But bring enthusiasm and a determination to enjoy, and it must be a very desperate condition of things which will make the holiday a failure.

WHITNEY HALL HOUSE WARMING

Attended by One Thousand People

Exterior and Interior View of Building.

THE opening of Whitney hall, the new and beautiful structure which stands at the corner of Second avenue and A street, and was built as an annex to the eighteenth ward chapel, occurred on Thursday evening, and was attended by close upon 1,000 people.

The services began at 8 o'clock in the ward chapel and consisted of prayer, hymns, and a brief address of welcome from Bishop T. A. Clawson, who spoke of the need the ward had long experienced for a meeting place for its auxiliary organizations, the quorums, and an amusement hall for the young.

The entire assembly then marched into the new building, first gathering in the main hall on the top floor, a view of which is given in the accompanying illustration. Christensen's band was stationed in the gallery in the west end, and played a march as the company assembled. On the stage were

President Joseph F. Smith and John R. Winder, and Bishop O. F. Whitney, in whose honor the hall had been named. The choir sang "The palms," with a solo by George D. Pyper, which was followed by two songs by Horace S. Ensign.

Bishop Whitney was introduced, and he faced the big assembly, which covered every inch of space in the building on the main floor and the gallery. He spoke feelingly of his 28 years' association with the eighteenth ward, which had extended from 1878 to 1906, and reviewed the herculean labors performed by the people of the ward in building first a ward chapel, then the amusement hall, and now erecting the chapel, and now erecting the beautiful structure in which the meeting was being held. His remarks were brief, as the audience were all standing, and when he closed, he was followed by President Smith, who also made a brief address, mostly devoted to reminiscences of the members of the Whitney family he had known. He said that he came across the plains in 1848 with Bishop Newel K. Whitney, Orson F. Whitney's grandfather, and the bishop of the Eighteenth ward of the Church in this state. He had also known Orson F. Whitney's father, Horace K. Whitney, and his uncle, Orson K. Whitney, having followed him to the Sandwich Islands and he had known intimately their brothers. He paid a tribute to both Bishop Orson F. Whitney and his brother, Horace K. Whitney, with whom he had long been associated in business connections. President Smith congratulated the people of the ward warmly on their work in erecting such a beautiful building, and the bishop of the ward gave him to meet with them in such commodious quarters.

H. G. Whitney, chairman of the amusement committee of the ward, and conductor of the choir, announced that the formal opening of the hall would occur in about two weeks with a dramatic and operatic sketch by members of the old Home Dramatic club, and the Salt Lake Opera company. Mr. Whitney also proposed a vote of thanks to the bishop, Elders T. A. Clawson, L. F. Whitney, and Ezra Stevenson, for their untiring labors, and the vote was given with a big burst of applause.

Bishop Clawson read the names of the individuals and firms who had erected the building, and introduced Architects Don Carlos Young and his son Don, who were also given a round of applause.

Messrs. Young & Son, to whose skill and good taste, the beautiful building is due, who planned it from suggestions by the ward bishop and the building committee, and who supervised its erection with the most painstaking and rigorous care up to the present time, were naturally much gratified at the enthusiasm shown at the Thursday night house warming.

Dancing was next indulged in by the younger people, while the older ones passed through the building inspecting the various rooms below, and partook of the refreshments spread by the members of the Young Ladies' Mutual Improvement association. The hostesses of the evening were the members of the Relief society of the ward, who escorted the visitors through all the rooms explaining the uses of each. The dancing, which was especially enjoyable, as the floor of polished hard wood had never been used, was kept up until 12 o'clock.

A picture of Bishop O. F. Whitney occupied a prominent place on the stage surrounded by the national colors. In the Relief society rooms was hung an old time painting of Bishop Newel K. Whitney, now owned by his daughter, Mrs. Mary J. Groo, who also was one of the guests.

THE BUILDING. Whitney hall is situated directly south of the Eighteenth ward chapel, and the two are connected by a 5-foot corridor which also has an outside entrance. The building consists of two stories and basement, the upper floor being a large auditorium with stage, a gallery and the necessary toilet rooms. The seating capacity of this hall is 750. The stage is unusually large for this class of building and is as well provided with light, scenery, curtain and other accessories as the best theaters. The footlights are placed on a dimmer circuit so that they can be completely controlled by the operator, and they are so contrived that they can be folded back into a tight box when not in use for theatrical purposes. The size of the stage is 20x27 feet, with a stage opening of 20 feet in width and 14 feet in height. The main hall is reached by a 15-foot stairway built of Wisconsin birch, finished in the natural wood and gives a very beautiful effect. The floors of the hall and stage are of maple, machine polished and thoroughly polished with varnish and prepared wax.

The other floors are used for class rooms for Sunday school and Mutual work, making 12 rooms, including the stage and the two adjoining rooms which are partitioned off with "accordion" doors. The Relief society is to be comfortably housed in two pleasant rooms in the southeast corner of the main floor; these are provided with plenty of cupboard space and electrical plugs for running sewing machines when desired.

The heating is the "direct-indirect" system of steam. Each room is provided with a fresh air inlet and an exhaust for removing the foul air. This system is rather unique and is original with the architects. The boiler is situated in the southwest corner of the basement.

and has a coal room under the sidewalk that can hold a carload of coal if desired for storage. The building has fire escapes and ample water connections. The janitor has two pleasant rooms in the northeast corner of the basement.

The entire building is finished throughout in Wisconsin birch, making a most beautiful effect, the wood being polished to the natural color. A fireproof vault is built in the basement for the use of the ward clerk.

FORMAL OPENING.

Thursday night's house warming was for the benefit of the people of the ward who had subscribed to the fund for the erection of the building. This includes many non-members of the Church, and many of them were in attendance Thursday evening. All expressed themselves in the highest terms of praise, over the building from top to bottom.

The formal opening of the hall will occur within two weeks, with a dramatic and operatic entertainment consisting of a serious sketch entitled "The Night of the Wedding," rendered by Mr. John D. Spencer, Miss Vida Fox and Little Miss Green. The opera will be "The Crimson Scarf," and will be rendered by George D. Pyper, Horace S. Ensign, A. S. Campbell, George W. Pyper, Miss Hazel Taylor and Miss Hazel Barnes, with Arthur Shepherd as director.

How to Cure Liver Trouble

There are usually several ways to do a given thing, but it is the art with all of us to find the best and shortest way. It is just so in the cure of disease. People suffering from liver trouble imagine that all they have to do is to take some thing that will physic them. There is more than that in the cure of so serious a disorder as liver trouble.

When that drowsy, clogged up feeling comes on you go to a drug store and ask for a 50 cent or $1 bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take a dose or two and watch results. It will not only clean out the bowels and stimulate the liver, but it will get the blood to circulating so that you feel active again, and arouse the functions of the stomach so that your appetite returns and you feel like your old self again. A simple laxative or purgative could not do that. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is not only a wonderful laxative but it has tonic properties, so that, unlike so many other things, instead of leaving you weak and listless it builds you up and strengthens you.

It does not gripe—it acts smoothly, easing the intestines so that the passage is smooth and agreeable. It is gentle but effective, pleasant to take and pure in quality. It is an excellent, economical home cure, and its results are permanent. It is absolutely guaranteed to do what is claimed for it.

Use it for occasional or chronic constipation, dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, sour stomach, bloated stomach, flatulence, headache, and the dozen and one other ills of the stomach, liver and bowels. It is the greatest of household remedies and no family should be without it because in a family someone at any moment may need such a remedy and then you will appreciate having Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in the house.
