

OUR OWN STATE.

The branch office of the Deseret News in Ogden is at No. 466 Twenty-fourth street, where advertisements will be received, and "News" is delivered by carriers in the same manner as in Salt Lake City.

OGDEN NEWS.

OGDEN, UTAH, OCT. 3, 1902.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

Names Selected to Fill County Offices for Ensuing Two Years.

Legislative Ticket Said to Favor Candidacy of Hon. Reed Smoot for Senator.

The Republican county convention closed its work last evening by nominating the following ticket:

Senator—David McKay.

Representatives—Mrs. C. E. Coulter, A. S. Gordon, Archibald McFarland, John C. Child.

County Commissioners—Wm. G. Williams, four year term; Joseph Stanford and Jesse Powers, two year term.

Clerk—Charles K. McGowan, three year term; John D. Chambers, two year term.

Treasurer—Daniel W. Bailey, two year term.

Sherriff—Joseph W. Ellis, two year term.

Those who are in a position to know state that the supporters of Hon. Reed Smoot won a magnificent victory in the nominating of the ticket which was yesterday selected, that the representatives named are ardent supporters of that candidate.

PROVO.

TEMPERANCE CONVENTION.

Gathering of W. C. T. U. Workers—Utah County Division.

Special Correspondence.

Provo, Utah, Oct. 2.—The opening session of the twelfth annual state convention of the W. C. T. U. opened last evening in the Methodist church.

There were present the president, Mrs. Frances D. Smith, vice president, Mrs. Mary M. Boyden, of Provo; National Secretary, Mrs. Ada Urush of Portland, Oregon; Recording Secretary, Mrs. E. E. Shepard of Salt Lake; treasurer, Mrs. Mary Nelson, of Mount Pleasant; Mrs. D. N. Smith and Miss Anna Baker of Salt Lake City, and other prominent temperance workers, who came as delegates from other parts of the state. Many others are expected tomorrow and Saturday.

Miss Anna Baker conducted the devotional, and Mrs. E. E. Shepard led in prayer. The first address of welcome was delivered by Mrs. Mary Taylor, work of the W. C. T. U. and deplored the condition, even in this city, of saloons and drug stores dispensing intoxicating liquors. He extended a hearty welcome to the faithful delegates present.

Mrs. F. C. Chapman welcomed the delegates in behalf of the churches, saying that W. C. T. U. was a child of the church.

Mrs. E. E. Coffman extended an earnest welcome to the delegates.

Ros Josephine Kellinger, in behalf of the Provo union, expressed most kind greetings.

Mrs. E. E. Shepard responded fittingly to the welcome, and spoke earnestly and interestingly of the objects and labor of the organization, relating touching incidents of the influence for good created by the labors of the temperance workers.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

President Smith next introduced Mrs. Anna Urush. The lady is a very able debater and commanded the attention of the audience. She referred in most appreciative terms to the speech of welcome, and was especially pleased with the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Taylor, saying that as a rule, mayors have business elsewhere than home and have to send a representative. She then dwelt on the evils attending the liquor traffic, and spoke briefly of the reform that she expected to see brought about by temperance workers. She believed she would live to see the day, when no licensed saloon would exist in the land. Mrs. Anna condemned the license law, as an argument against the claim that a prohibitive law cannot be enforced, cited the many frequent violations of the license law, taking the position that the law was being enforced as well as the provisions of the license law are, calling attention to the constant violations of such provisions, and stating that she was bringing women in saloons, selling liquor to minors and to habitual drunkards.

THE ROOT OF THE MATTER.

He Cured Himself of Serious Stomach Trouble, by Getting Down to First Principles.

A man of large affairs in one of our prominent cities has been too long attention to business, too little exercise and too many club dinners, finally began to pay nature's tax, leveled in the form of chronic stomach trouble, the failure of his digestion brought about a nervous irritability making it impossible to apply himself to his daily business and finally deranging the kidneys and heart.

In his own words he says: "I consulted one physician after another and each one seemed to understand my case, but all the same they each failed to bring about the return of my former digestion appetite and vigor. For two years I went from pillar to post, from one sanitarium to another, I gave up smoking, quit coffee and even renounced my daily glass of two of beer, but without any marked improvement. I finally gave up and went to a well known proprietary, purchased Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and I had not perused the newspaper advertisements of the remedy but never took a single one. I had never heard of a fifty-cent patent medicine would touch my case.

The people who have been acquainted with the man that was murdered at the Roadhouse unite in denying he was drunk when killed; but are of the opinion he was drugged to secure his money. When he found his money was taken he returned to get it and was shot to avoid being detected.

Two years ago Jennings married a young lady from Provo of a highly respected family. Shortly after their marriage they moved to Bingham, where he secured employment which brought him to Provo, where he intended to make his home. At the time of his tragic death he was on his way to Provo, where he was to visit his wife since they were married she has never known him to drink; and he has done all to make home pleasant.

The funeral of the deceased was held in the Levan Methodist church on the 1st inst. A large crowd of people turned out to pay their last respects to the young man. When killed he was 25 years of age.

A daughter has arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson, All well.

Last week Mr. and Mrs. John N. Shepherd were called to mourn the loss of their little 9-months-old boy baby.

Call at the Deseret News booth at the Fair and see its unique wallpapeing, formed of the 22,000 names of its country subscribers, set up in type.

NORTH OGDEN.

CROPS CUT DOWN BY FROST.

Good Run of Canning Factory—Sunday School Conference.

Special Correspondence.

North Ogden, Weber Co., Oct. 1.—The heavy frost of a few mornings ago was quite disastrous to the crops in this locality, most notably to tomatoes. The greater part of the crop was just coming on and the factory had anticipated a heavy run, but was disappointed. A successful run has been made, however, over 10,000 dozen cans of tomatoes, besides plums, pears, and other fruits.

Schools in full swing. Two sessions were held at 9 a. m. and 2 p. m. Assistant State Sup't. Chas. J. Ross and John D. Jones, John D. Jones and E. C. Stratford of the state board were present.

Not in all the political history of North Ogden have there been as many as attended primary as the one held last Monday evening for the election of delegates to the Republican county convention. B. F. Blylock, Sr., and Thomas Shumway were nominated for justice of the peace and constable of the North Ogden precinct respectively.

The little boy of Marion Berreits, who was killed by a horse last week, was taken to the hospital for treatment.

Call at the Deseret News booth at the Fair and see its unique wallpapeing, formed of the 22,000 names of its country subscribers, set up in type.

POCATELLO, IDAHO.

Death of Mrs. George Francis Fewens, Late of Salt Lake.

Special Correspondence.

Pocatello, Idaho, Sept. 30.—Mrs. Emma Fewens, wife of George Francis Fewens, formerly of the Twenty-first ward, Salt Lake City, died shortly after midnight of typhoid fever. She leaves a husband and five children, and a number of relatives here, also in Ogden and Salt Lake City. She was born in Birmingham, England, May 21, 1874. Her parents were Edwin Fewens and Elizabeth Beckett Holder. She was a faithful member of the Church, and the whole world mourns with the bereaved husband and children. Her remains will be taken to Salt Lake City for interment.

Call at the Deseret News booth at the Fair and see its unique wallpapeing, formed of the 22,000 names of its country subscribers, set up in type.

MORGAN.

SCHOOLS IN FULL SWING.

Have Wrought by Death and Grass Hoppers—Political Quiet.

Special Correspondence.

Santaquin, Utah Co., Oct. 1.—A large percentage of the school population is again in school. Each grade is well represented and the educational progress is being made. The corps of teachers embrace the following named persons: Joseph A. Rees, principal; James J. Hickman, Julia J. Rees, and Mrs. D. C. Alpine and Miss Finkelson of Payson.

The have wrought by the grasshoppers during last summer has been compensated by the early season of the crops. The crops were better than for years, and the people are well satisfied. The crops were better than for years, and the people are well satisfied. The crops were better than for years, and the people are well satisfied.

Call at the Deseret News booth at the Fair and see its unique wallpapeing, formed of the 22,000 names of its country subscribers, set up in type.

SANTAQUIN.

SCHOOLS IN FULL SWING.

Have Wrought by Death and Grass Hoppers—Political Quiet.

Special Correspondence.

Santaquin, Utah Co., Oct. 1.—A large percentage of the school population is again in school. Each grade is well represented and the educational progress is being made. The corps of teachers embrace the following named persons: Joseph A. Rees, principal; James J. Hickman, Julia J. Rees, and Mrs. D. C. Alpine and Miss Finkelson of Payson.

The have wrought by the grasshoppers during last summer has been compensated by the early season of the crops. The crops were better than for years, and the people are well satisfied. The crops were better than for years, and the people are well satisfied. The crops were better than for years, and the people are well satisfied.

Call at the Deseret News booth at the Fair and see its unique wallpapeing, formed of the 22,000 names of its country subscribers, set up in type.

SANTAQUIN.

SCHOOLS IN FULL SWING.

Have Wrought by Death and Grass Hoppers—Political Quiet.

Special Correspondence.

Santaquin, Utah Co., Oct. 1.—A large percentage of the school population is again in school. Each grade is well represented and the educational progress is being made. The corps of teachers embrace the following named persons: Joseph A. Rees, principal; James J. Hickman, Julia J. Rees, and Mrs. D. C. Alpine and Miss Finkelson of Payson.

The have wrought by the grasshoppers during last summer has been compensated by the early season of the crops. The crops were better than for years, and the people are well satisfied. The crops were better than for years, and the people are well satisfied. The crops were better than for years, and the people are well satisfied.

Call at the Deseret News booth at the Fair and see its unique wallpapeing, formed of the 22,000 names of its country subscribers, set up in type.

SANTAQUIN.

SCHOOLS IN FULL SWING.

Have Wrought by Death and Grass Hoppers—Political Quiet.

Special Correspondence.

THE ROOT OF THE MATTER.

He Cured Himself of Serious Stomach Trouble, by Getting Down to First Principles.

A man of large affairs in one of our prominent cities has been too long attention to business, too little exercise and too many club dinners, finally began to pay nature's tax, leveled in the form of chronic stomach trouble, the failure of his digestion brought about a nervous irritability making it impossible to apply himself to his daily business and finally deranging the kidneys and heart.

In his own words he says: "I consulted one physician after another and each one seemed to understand my case, but all the same they each failed to bring about the return of my former digestion appetite and vigor. For two years I went from pillar to post, from one sanitarium to another, I gave up smoking, quit coffee and even renounced my daily glass of two of beer, but without any marked improvement. I finally gave up and went to a well known proprietary, purchased Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and I had not perused the newspaper advertisements of the remedy but never took a single one. I had never heard of a fifty-cent patent medicine would touch my case.

The people who have been acquainted with the man that was murdered at the Roadhouse unite in denying he was drunk when killed; but are of the opinion he was drugged to secure his money. When he found his money was taken he returned to get it and was shot to avoid being detected.

Two years ago Jennings married a young lady from Provo of a highly respected family. Shortly after their marriage they moved to Bingham, where he secured employment which brought him to Provo, where he intended to make his home. At the time of his tragic death he was on his way to Provo, where he was to visit his wife since they were married she has never known him to drink; and he has done all to make home pleasant.

The funeral of the deceased was held in the Levan Methodist church on the 1st inst. A large crowd of people turned out to pay their last respects to the young man. When killed he was 25 years of age.

A daughter has arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson, All well.

Last week Mr. and Mrs. John N. Shepherd were called to mourn the loss of their little 9-months-old boy baby.

Call at the Deseret News booth at the Fair and see its unique wallpapeing, formed of the 22,000 names of its country subscribers, set up in type.

NORTH OGDEN.

CROPS CUT DOWN BY FROST.

Good Run of Canning Factory—Sunday School Conference.

Special Correspondence.

North Ogden, Weber Co., Oct. 1.—The heavy frost of a few mornings ago was quite disastrous to the crops in this locality, most notably to tomatoes. The greater part of the crop was just coming on and the factory had anticipated a heavy run, but was disappointed. A successful run has been made, however, over 10,000 dozen cans of tomatoes, besides plums, pears, and other fruits.

Schools in full swing. Two sessions were held at 9 a. m. and 2 p. m. Assistant State Sup't. Chas. J. Ross and John D. Jones, John D. Jones and E. C. Stratford of the state board were present.

Not in all the political history of North Ogden have there been as many as attended primary as the one held last Monday evening for the election of delegates to the Republican county convention. B. F. Blylock, Sr., and Thomas Shumway were nominated for justice of the peace and constable of the North Ogden precinct respectively.