

different from his own would be a pity. Another suggestion is that he be made a member of the Panama canal. Of all propositions that would be to the most important. To build the Panama canal has been the dream of men since Balboa first looked down on the Pacific and the great ocean in the distance. It is a success that will live in the annals of the world. Why should we write his name upon the plumes of the immortal? Why should we write his name upon the plumes of the immortal? Why should we write his name upon the plumes of the immortal?

JOHN SHARP WILLIAMS. I DON'T believe the country is any more interested in what becomes of an ex-president of the United States than it is in the future of an ex-lawyer, than it is in the future of an ex-doctor or any other ex-thing. If a president has served other ex- things, he has been amply paid for his services, and the people have no reason to worry about the future of the peace of God, passeth all understanding.

JAMES FRANCIS BURKE. I KNOW of no greater service the president could render the country during the four years after his term expires than to enter the cabinet of President Knox as secretary of the navy. In this way he would not only be in the official household of his friend, but also have the widest opportunity for completing the great work in which he is most heartily interested and for which he is certainly and pre-eminently competent.

JOHN DALZIELL. MR. ROOSEVELT should occupy some position where he would find exercise for his remarkable executive abilities and for his power of initiative. Among other positions that he might fill it seems to me that he would make a splendid governor general of the Philippines.

JOSEPH C. SIBLEY. THERE is no room for doubt that President Roosevelt means what he says in his last statement and never has held any other determination since his primary one. Those who are doing him no honor and are such friends as those from whom one might well pray for deliverance.

Four or eight years from now President Roosevelt, bound by his pledge and in violation of no unwritten law, doubtless will be ready to patriotically respond to any call for public duty. In the meantime rest and travel, his favorite sports and the production of such enduring literature as he is capable, may be his choice.

Pennsylvania has a right to demand the nomination of Senator Knox, than whom no higher type of statesman has risen above the political horizon of Pennsylvania in 50 years. GENERAL JAMES T. MCCLURE. ONE of the great enterprises initiated by Mr. Roosevelt and with which his name will forever be associated, is the construction of the Panama canal. Such construction requires technical knowledge and directive power. The technical knowledge could well be furnished by persons who are engineers by profession. It would seem that an honorable and congenial work for Mr. Roosevelt would be that of directing in the completion of the Panama canal.

ABRAHAM L. LAWSHE. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT is a young man and a valuable man. He should not be permitted to retire from public life. The country needs him. I think that his home state, New York, would make no mistake in sending him to the United States senate. There are many important matters which he has advocated which will be discussed in the senate. There is the Philippine question, the building of the Panama canal, the increase of the strength of the navy and many other questions of great importance. President Roosevelt would be a valuable man in the senate. I repeat that my sentiments are that he is too young a man and too valuable a man to be retired from public life. The people know him and believe in him, and where there is confidence there is strength.

HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST. IF it would not exile him from the United States, I should like to see President Roosevelt placed in charge of the work on the Panama canal. It should be called the Roosevelt canal, just as the Suez canal is associated with the name of De Lesseps.

SCOTT C. BONE. I SHOULD say Mr. Roosevelt might most profitably be kept in his present position four years more.

CHARLES A. EDWARDS. I WOULD like to see President Roosevelt elected United States senator from New York, where he will receive what is coming to him. Those people in the senate are very brainy, and they will show him a few things which he has not learned during his occupancy of the presidential chair.

P. V. DE GRAW. IF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT will not take the presidency again, I think he is entitled to assume any position he may name. His record in public life certainly entitles him to this much.

WALTER WELLMAN. WHEN President Roosevelt steps down from the chair there is one great task to which he can lay his hands with dignity, and that is the RULES FOR CHRISTIAN GIVING. Give willingly. Give tactfully. Put thought into your giving. Don't consider return gifts. Never give to others what you wouldn't want yourself. The unexpected gift insures a special application. To give ostentatiously is the height of bad taste. Give to the sick and the sorrowful if you would know the true joy of giving. Never give more than you can afford. Your friends know your circumstances as well as you do yourself and the pleasure of both giving and receiving is lost.

MOLEOSOPHY

THERE are all sorts of ways of discovering other people's characters. Some individuals feel your bumps, others gaze on the lines of your hand, others, again, do something mysterious with the stars and arithmetical calculations. But Mr. Harry de Windt—a mighty traveler and wonderful story-teller—has rediscovered a science of character divination which asserts is every bit as old as palmistry. If you have a mole on your face, Mr. de Windt can tell you exactly what your character is by its color and its position, and he does this by a code of knowledge which he calls "Moleosophy," and in which, as he tells us in the dedication of his little book, "Moles and their Meaning," Mr. Haddon Chamberlain, the dramatist, also believes. According to Mr. de Windt, "wise and learned Indians in old times," when they wanted to engage a clerk or a general servant, first examined the moles, and they knew at once whether they were making a wise or a foolish choice. And in order to give moderns the same chance, he supplies us with a most interesting code. To begin with, he asserts: "The science of 'Moleosophy' is based upon one primary (and very important) thing: that every mole upon the face of man or woman has upon some other portion of the body a corresponding birth-mark, the position of which can usually be located with startling accuracy."

ON THE BROW. For example, if you have a mole on the upper center of the brow you are almost certain to have another on the right arm just below the elbow, while if you have one on the left brow you will probably find its fellow under the lower left rib, all of which, of course, is extremely interesting and important. But the meaning of the mole is probably of even greater importance. Let us take the first example, which is the mole in the center of the brow. If you are a man and have this center mole, and if it is black—color, by the way, is of no importance to the female mole—the following is your fortune:

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature. REFUSE SUBSTITUTES. HEADACHE Positively cured by these Little Pills. SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE." CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature. REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

Ancient Method of Discovering the Character of One's Neighbors.

An anxious and troubled youth, with endurance of considerable adversity of every kind up till middle age. A retarded prosperity eventually acquired by the subject's own exertions. But, he it is noted, a mole on the center of the brow is much kinder if you are a lady. It implies:—

A happy and unclouded existence. A considerable fortune increased by a legacy from a relative. A peril from water, either by accident or disease (dyspepsia), towards the thirtieth year. This (if an accident) will be survived for many years. The subject should wear the beryl and garnet.

LUCKY WITH HORSES. Perhaps no class of people in the world are more anxious to possess good luck than the man who follows horse racing, and it would seem that the only man to go horse racing with any real certainty of giving the bookmakers an uncomfortable time is the gentleman with a mole on the upper center of his brow. You must be very careful that it is not on the lower center, because that implies "a long but rather chequered existence," but the upper center is quite another story. It means:—

A successful military career, and good fortune accruing from "four-footed beasts" (horses racing, presumably) and games of chance. Great prosperity is shown by means of fire, when that element is used for the fusing and production of metals. Furthermore, it should be added that this particular mole must be honey-colored, for if it is black it carries with it "great peril from riding on horseback or moving rapidly through the air." The owner of a black mole on the upper center should, therefore, avoid following the profession of a jockey or of becoming the owner of a flying machine. Nor should he be a window cleaner. Now we come to the lady with this mole. She will not be beautiful, but she will have talent. She will probably write plays or compose music, and, alas! she will make her most furious, with a desire to kill her own husband. The man with a mole on the left brow and another on the left wrist will have a peevish nature, and the lady with the same combination will run greater danger of death from contagious disease. Then we come to the gentleman with a mole on the right arm and another just below the right lower rib is sure to marry a foreigner, but the comfortable condition is made that the foreigner will be a devoted and faithful husband. But the poor gentleman with the mole on the left brow and another just under the left shoulder-blade, if the mole is black, is condemned to endure a sentence of imprisonment of some years' duration. A young man about to marry should avoid the lady with a mole on the left brow, because this may denote "a great, tedious, barren life, past 30, which will make her most furious, with a desire to kill her own husband."

find himself, when he is becoming middle-aged, with ruin staring him in the face. Then fortune will turn. He will be saved by a brilliant marriage with a widow older than himself and of a different nationality. If a lady have a mole on the lower corner of her left eye she must be very careful of the eleventh and thirteenth of the winter months, and she should be quite sure always to wear rubies. Of the man with a mole on the center of the right cheek, Mr. de Windt tells us: "A man of great voice, a clever orator, but addicted to gluttony." One lowly born, yet will attain high social distinction on account of his intellectual powers and the love and political influence of a married woman of exalted position—a "great lady" at court. The gentleman who has a mole on the bridge of his nose should be very careful what he eats, for it implies:— Peril of a fatal but lingering malady connected with the stomach and liver, which will only be averted by great care in diet. Altogether Mr. de Windt has supplied another amusement for winter evenings.

THE LATEST PARISIAN CRAZE.

The picture illustrates a new game which is very popular just now in Paris, having almost entirely displaced dominoes. It is called bilboquet and really seems to be a revival of the old cup and ball game. Two balls, one heavy, the other light, are used in the game, and it is now the fad to introduce a variety of objects—anything that may be caught in the cup.
