THEATRICAL SQUABBLE.

AN account of a theatrical squabble at Boston, Mass., in which Messrs. C. Fechter and J. W. Wallack figure as the principals, is now going the rounds of the papers. It is said that the quarrel has grown so intense between these two gentlemen that the former has sent the latter a challenge to fight a duel. We are inclined, however, to doubt the truth of this part of the affair. The causes which led to this unpleasantness are said to be substantially, as follows: Mr. Cheeney, proprietor of the Globe Theatre of Boston, had engaged Mr. Wallack to play leading parts during the present season; with the understanding that the latter should have the privilege of objecting to take any parts that might not happen to suit him. The proprietor afterwards met Mr. Fechter and, thinking he would be a valuable acquisition to the company, thought he would like to engage him also. Before doing so, however, it was necessary to consult with Mr. Wallack, and a consultation was held, when it was arranged that the latter's engagement should remain as previously agreed, and that Mr. Fechter should be installed as manager, and the two should play leading characters alternately. This arrangement appeared to work tolerably well for a short time, till Mr. Wallack thought the manager was beginning to put on airs, especially when he sent him the part of Don Salustio in "Ray Blas," and which, according to the Chicago Times, drew forth the following correspondence:

MY DEAR FECHTER:—I have received the play and do not like the part of Don Salustio at all. I would rather not play it.

Yours truly,

J. W. WALLACK.

Whereupon Mr. FECHTER REPLIED TO WALLACK:—MY DEAR WALLACK:—I sent you the part of Don Salustio to study, not to judge. I should as soon think of asking your permission to cast you as Joseph Surface as Don Salustio. I beg of you to reconsider your note and accept the part, or your services will be used as here and your engagement stand and this very week. As to Don Salustio, the best part in the play, and would much rather act it than Ray Blas. If you say so, we will alternate the parts.

Yours truly,

C. FECHTER.

Upon receipt of Mr. Fechter's reply, in effect as follows, Mr.

WALLACK REPLIED TO FECHTER:—SIR:—I consider that no other reply is necessary after your letter of this date. I shall have no further correspondence with you in relation to my engagement at the Globe, as I in no way recognize your right to interfere. Mr. Cheeney is the sole manager of the Globe, and to whom I shall look for a fulfillment of the business contract made. Had you adhered to the agreement as understood by us, or had you intended to keep your word as given in the presence of Mr. Cheeney, this need not have occurred. As it is, I decline further correspondence of any nature with you.

Yours,

J. W. WALLACK.

We should judge that, providing all this be true, Mr. Cheeney's position is not a very pleasant one, especially as it is also said that there are two houses in his company, one party desiring for Fechter and the other for Wallack.

DISGRACEFUL PROCEEDINGS.

THERE has been considerable talk on the streets about a fracas that occurred on Monday last, between Judge Hawley and Mr. Baskin, the former the Justice of the Peace and the latter an Attorney, practicing law in this city and elsewhere. Placidity is lent to the case by the fact that the two gentlemen are the most intimate of friends, both having, if report speak truly, been active contributors to the Boston Herald, with which the name of Cullum is so closely connected. Whether this be true or not, it matters not at the present writing; we suppose it is indisputable that they have been very prominent members of the "ring," and have been in complete accord in all schemes, having for their object the inauguration of a reign of terror in this Territory. These men have rowed in the same boat and been cronies upon the same grounds that Herod and Pilate were friendly one to another. It is not hard saying that when a certain class of persons fall out, honest men get their dander. We hope they will in the present instance.

It seems, from what we learn from the press, from this difficulty, that Mr. Baskin had deemed it expedient for the interest of parties for whom he was counsel to get out of the case. This counsel, for the other side notified him that he intended to take steps to obtain a dissolution of this attachment, and as we are informed, sent Mr. Baskin word at half past five o'clock that the case would come up for argument at six. Mr. B. was at supper at the time he received the notice, and paid no attention to it, neither going himself to obtain further time, nor sending any request to the Court asking for a postponement. The result was the case came up at the time appointed, the counsel on the other side informed the Court that Mr.

Baskin had been duly notified, the argument was proceeded with, and the dissolution was granted.

On Monday, just before the dinner hour, and after the adjournment of the Court sitting in bankruptcy, Judge Hawley, contending, we understand, that he was sitting in chambers, and the lawyer asserting, on the contrary, that the Court had adjourned, remarks were made by the Judge to Mr. Baskin and by the latter to the former respecting the attachment, which ended, as we are informed, in their giving one another the lie; Mr. Baskin asserting that proper time had not been given him to prepare for argument on the dissolution, and adding that his Honor ought to have known it. The Judge deemed these expressions improper, and said they were a contempt of Court, and told the Marshal to arrest the offender. At this Mr. B. asked Judge Hawley, and making a gesture and uttering an expression closely akin to that made and uttered by negro minstrels when singing "shoo, fly," told the Judge that he did have the most profound contempt for him and his proceedings, giving the Judge to understand that he thought him very small potatoes.

At this the Judge grew high in wrath, and lifting his hands and eyes up both. Three times he smote on table stout, and from him then these words broke out:

"Marshal, arrest your prisoner," but the lawyer, not being "a Mormon," the Marshal did not arrest him. They then went to dinner.

At two o'clock the parties again met, Judge Hawley had in the meantime prepared a writtens addressed to the Marshal, which he proceeded to read. In this Mr. B. was fined $100 and the Marshal was instructed to imprison him ten days. Mr. Baskin asked the other Associate Justice if the Court was in session, to which he replied in the negative. He then, we are told, walked up to the Judge, snatched the paper from his hand, and trampled it on the floor, at the same time reiterating his expressions of contempt for him. Afterwards he threw open the door, ordered Judge Hawley to leave the room, and as the Judge did not seem disposed to obey him, proceeded to collar him and drag him out, threatening him in vulgar language, that he would kick the antipodes of his head down stairs. At this stage of the proceedings the Marshal interfered, claiming that it was his office, and he would have no row there, etc., and pulled the late lawyer off.

These proceedings, as may well be imagined, greatly shocked the Judge. He was petrified with astonishment at receiving such treatment from his minion friend and companion. What was worse, the officers who, in the case of "Mormons," that had been before him, were willing to execute his decrees, in this instance paid no attention to him, but suffered the lawyer to go at large, a liberty which he still enjoys; he manifests a contempt for the Court as great as his expressions implied.

We have heard that: "Justice gives sentence many times, On one man for another's crimes." If so, the gentleman, if he should be a "Mormon," who appears before Judge Hawley may well tremble.

NEW RENDERING OF SHAKESPEARE.

Hector:—The devil must I endure. Baskin:—All this! Ay, more. Fret all your faint heart break; Go show your tools how consistent you are, to JUDGE FECHTER. You tried to make the militia tremble. Must I budge? What would you, must I stand and crouch Under your ridiculous rulings? By You shall digest the venom of your spleen, Until it is split you; for from this day forth, I'll use you for my mirth, you for my laughter. When you are waspish.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

Garibaldi resigned and returning to Italy.

Paris, summoned to surrender, flatly refuses.

END OF THE WAR NOT YET.

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

Sprague offered a resolution, asking for an investigation of certain charges made against him, regarding fraudulent cotton transactions during the war.

HOUSE.

Butler presented a petition from two thousand of the citizens of Gloucester, Mass., complaining of the unfriendly acts of the Canadian authorities towards American fishermen, and asking that retaliatory measures be taken by Congress in the way of non-intercourse, prohibiting trade and demanding indemnity for losses to American fishermen, which was referred.

Paine introduced a bill granting lands for a railroad from Denver, Colorado, to Albuquerque, New Mexico, which was referred.

The House took up the business on the speaker's table, and referred it to the committee. A long number of Senate bills of last session, and all land grant bills were objected to and remained on the speaker's table.

Adjourned.

NEW YORK.

Garibaldi resigned—Frederick Charles' army numbered—Russian troops on Austrian frontier—An attempted embezzlement in Rome—Paris summoned to surrender, but won't—Extensive fire—Found dead.

A special to the World, dated London, 10, states that Bismarck declares he will not treat with the Tours government on any consideration, because it has confined at bad faith and its officers have broken the parole. The Paris government has just refused a summons to surrender, saying that they will fight to the last man.

The center of Frederick Charles' army is at Orleans, the left wing is at Beaugency, and the right wing near Turin. A cavalry division, followed by a force of infantry, proceeded south from Orleans and has now occupied Viennez.

The whole army of the Prince comprises eleven divisions in all, a hundred and forty-five thousand men. The extension of his lines over so long a distance causes considerable strain.

to a speedy meeting and the efficiency of the coming congress on the Eastern question, that an armistice be pressed by the neutral Powers, in order to allow the election of the Constituent Assembly, and thus give increased weight to the presence of the French plenipotentiary in said congress. No overture has been made to Bismarck, nor has the suggestion had any result.

A great meeting, calling on the government to recognize the French Republic, will be held in Trafalgar Square.

FRANCE. BORDEAUX.—Minister Gambetta has gone to Bourges. He announces that General Chazey is making a most determined defence and that he (Gambetta) is expected here soon to review the garde mobile, who are going to the front. General orders for the advance are to be issued to all the troops in the south of France. Vast numbers are being got ready, armed and equipped.

Advices from Paris represent that the supply of food will last until February. The Monitor says that Germans, who do not belong to the armies, follow in the rear for the purpose of plundering; they seize grain, fruit, furniture, and what valuables they can lay their hands on, and send their booty to Germany, thereby leaving the inhabitants destitute and starving.

VERAILLES.—Reports from the second army corps, which is in pursuit of the French, say that since the last fight the roads have been obstructed by large quantities of stores, guns, arms and clothing which have been abandoned by the enemy in the retreat.

PRUSSIA. A serious question—Address to King William.

BERLIN, 11.—In the Brunswick Chamber of Deputies Herr Muller asked the government to ascertain of the foreign office of the Bund if it was true that, after the declaration of war, King George of Hanover had acted in concert with Napoleon in establishing an embassy in Paris, among the twelfth legion, called the Hanoverians, in Paris, for a free corps and kept themselves ready for them in the enemy's ports, and if these charges were true, to bring in a bill repealing articles four and twelve of the Brunswick Constitution entailing the succession to the throne of Brunswick on the House of Hanover.

The Papal nuncio is to be established in Berlin and an Archbishop will be chosen for the first nuncio.

The King of Prussia was unwilling to assume the title of Emperor, but the opinions of the Crown Prince and the King of Bavaria on the matter prevailed on him to assume the title.

BERLIN, 10.—The King of Prussia is ready to receive the address of the Federal Parliament, and the deputations of members will set out immediately for the Royal Headquarters before Paris, to present it to his Majesty.

Belgium. Prussians will occupy Luxembourg.

BRUSSELS, 11.—Preparations are making for the occupation of Luxembourg by the Prussian army as a military necessity, to prevent the turning of supplies by that state to France, Prussia and to destroy the facilities afforded for the escape of prisoners. The army of occupation will come direct from Germany. The arrangement is said to be in conformity with an understanding with the King of Holland.
