SENATOR GORE PREDICTS SUCCESS

For Democratic Presidential Ticket—Blind Orator Arraigns Republicans.

SECOND DAY OF THE BIG FAIR

Many Additions to Exhibits—Horticultural and Agricultural Display The Best Ever.

Ogden, Oct. 2.—Predicting overwhelming success for the Democratic presidential ticket at the approaching election, Thomas B. Gore, the blind senator of Oklahoma, addressed a large gathering at the fair grounds yesterday afternoon.

The senator, accompanied by his wife and daughter, arrived in the city from California shortly before 6 o'clock, and was met at the depot by prominent Democrats of the city. He was driven to the fair grounds in an automobile, and after addressing the large audience for three quarters of an hour, hurried back to the depot and caught a train for the east.

After being introduced by L. R. Martineau, candidate for congressman, the senator began his address with a high tribute to the west and its people. He referred to the west as the producer of gold and other valuable assets, and the east as the producer of presidents and paupers.

Oklahoma and Utah, the speaker said.

are the baby states, and he promised that if the people of Weber county would vote for Mr. Martineau, and he was elected, that they would both vote the same way at all times.

Senator Gore severely arraigned the Republican party, declaring it to be responsible for the recent money panic as well as the one during the administration of President Cleveland in 1893. The latter was only defeated by the Republicans until Cleveland was elected, he said. He expressed himself in favor of the suggested policy of making public all campaign contributions, which he said would shut E. H. Harriman and the other heads of gigantic trusts from using money as a power in political campaigns.

The Republican party, the speaker declared, had only succeeded in destroying one trust in the history of all its administrations and that he declared to be "In God We Trust," which was taken off the American coins. Senator Gore discussed at length the question of revision of the tariff. He agreed that both Republicans and Democrats were in favor of a revision, but the only manner in which the tariff had ever been and would ever be revised by the Republicans would be detrimental to the laboring people of the country.

In a positive manner the speaker declared that any man who voted to retain Speaker Cannon in office, was striking a direct blow at the laboring people.

Attended by Large But Good Natured Crowd.

Ogden, Oct. 2.—The Big Four county fair opened its second day Thursday with a crowd which far exceeded the attendance of Wednesday. Persons from all portions of Utah and neighboring states are here and are enjoying themselves. The fair, which overflowed the grandstand, jammed the main exhibition building and wedged itself into struggling masses on the outside, is good natured. On the face of all there is an expression which denotes that everybody is attending the fair for all the fun and pleasure which can be extracted out of it. And the crowd is enjoying itself on a conservative estimate of those who attended the races yesterday afternoon is placed at 3,000 persons, not to speak of those who were on the grounds.

The best racing blood of four states is represented at the race meet and some good records have already been made. The racing is really the chief feature of the fair, for those whose blood is not stirred by watching the flying animals straining every nerve and muscle to reach the goal first, many are diversified amusements can be found.

The list of exhibitors has been increased considerably from those who had already taken booths on the opening day, and old time residents declare that the agricultural and horticultural display is the best ever seen in Utah.

The blooded horses, thoroughbred sheep and cattle of the noblest variety, compose the live stock exhibition. In the main building the booths have all been taken and almost every line of merchandise displayed in the most attractive manner. The farthest end of the main building from the entrance, one of the handsomest displays of art, paintings and engravings, the workmanship of local talent, is displayed and has caused no end of favorable criticism.

An appreciative audience gathered at the Ogden tubercular Thursday evening to hear the choir before their departure for Salt Lake where the contests of the Elstvedorf will be held Friday.

BEVERAGE ON TARIFF ISSUE

Free Trader is Obsolete, Stand-Patter Out of Date, Both Cling To Worn Out Theories.

CLASSIFICATIONS ABSURD.

Republican Congress Will Lower Minimum Rates from Scale of Dingley Rates.

Valley City, N. D., Oct. 1.—Albert J. Beveridge, Indiana, tonight was cordially acclaimed at a great political demonstration by townsmen and farmers on his arrival from the east and during an address in the auditorium on the tariff.

On the way to Valley City Senator Beveridge addressed a large crowd at Fargo. Bryan was scored as an idealist and Taft was lauded as a safe person to whom to trust the government. Tonight Senator Beveridge said:

BEVERIDGE'S SPEECH.

"America, the most modern of nations, should stand for the most modern methods and the most modern men. With a great revenue to be raised because we are a great nation; with the greatest domestic trade today and the greatest foreign trade tomorrow; with factories and farms ready to capture the markets of the world, we can not tolerate ancient tariff systems which all progressive people have abandoned. The free-trader is obsolete, the stand-patter out of date. Both cling to worn-out theories; both declare that the world does not move. Hospitality to ideas is the method of progress; and neither stand-patters nor free-traders invite to their intellectual firesides a single modern thought upon the tariff or upon the voice of a single present-day fact.

Yet if we are not to yield the oceans of trade to rival nations; if we are to win and increase that prosperity which the surplus abroad alone can bring, we must adopt the best tariff methods which the experience of the world affords. The old tariff teachings of both sides, combined with up-to-date theory and practice, are as the old time hand-saw compared with the self-binding harvester of today.

PROMISED NEW TARIFF.

In the new tariff which we will make immediately after President Taft's inauguration we Republicans propose a tariff like the long since gray and toothless theory of a tariff-for-revenue only and the now half crippled theory of a single protective tariff, and adopt instead of either a revenue system that will protect American industry and labor, and at the same time win new markets all over the world for everything that American industry and labor produce.

It is true that Republican Bourbons fought against any improvement of the protective tariff methods of 70 years ago; just as the Democratic Bourbons fought and still fight for the revenue tariff methods of 70 years ago. The straight-out protective theorists of our own party said, "Let us stay where we are, honestly protective of our industries, the theorists of the opposition said, 'Let us go back two generations and stay where we were then.' But only in the Republican party has there been any forward movement toward a modern tariff or the slightest study of twentieth century revenue conditions.

DOUBLE TARIFF NEEDED.

What, then, is the tariff system our needs demand? It is a double tariff—our platform calls it a maximum and minimum tariff. If we are to equal nations in the rivalry for commerce, we must have a tariff as good as the best they have—a tariff for the double purpose of protection and trade, like that of Germany and France. They took our model and improved on that; let us take their model and improve on it. The double tariff is the only one, honestly protective of our industries, which will not open its markets to American products; and another higher tariff, which will not open its markets to foreign products. This is the simple principle of give and take that has governed better since the world began. Why should we not say to every nation in the world, "You may sell to our people by paying our minimum rates of duty only upon the commodities that you will let us sell to your people by paying your minimum rates of duty; but if you will not give us your lowest rates of duty to get into our markets, then you must pay our highest rates of duty to get into your markets." Any American farmer or business man acts on that principle when trading with other men. Why should the nation act on that principle when dealing with other nations?

STAND PATTERS INTOLERABLE.

For example, we now classify buttons and stoves together; bullets and bugles; lanterns and automobiles; farm implements and gold boxes, carriages and dress trimmings, chamber portraits and railway cars. Because of this classification all must pay the same duty. Yet the stand-patters in our own party insisted on keeping our tariff merely because they did not and will not study. And the opposition insists on doing worse. It is because they do not study. Both are intolerable; both should be rejected. And that is what the Republican party asks you to do. Those who have fought this battle and who have won it in a modern tariff that gives no man advantage and all men justice; and that is all the average American asks or has a right to ask.

The minimum rates will be lowered from the scale of the Dingley rates. Why? Where infant industries that once needed excessive protection have grown to giants, they no longer need such excessive stimulus. But in a few instances out of 4,000 items, present rates should be raised and new ones made. Why? Where a new industry can be created or a little industry is just beginning, we should give them such a tariff as will help them to employ more labor, develop more resources. It is just as wrong to deny increased protection to infant industries today as it is to refuse to reduce protection of those industries that ceased to be infants years ago. Common sense and justice are the principles upon which the tariff should be constructed. And common sense and justice demand that our whole tariff system shall be thoroughly overhauled, and that many of the Dingley rates shall be lowered.

JAPANESE GIRL KILLS HERSELF AS A SACRIFICE

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 2.—Sacrificing herself in the belief that by giving up her young life, that of Marquis Inouye, by going to Okita might be prolonged. Fukumoto Tadah, a 17-year-old orphan girl at Osaka, stabbed herself to death, according to advices brought by the steamer, the Maru, just arrived from Yokohama. Before taking her life the girl sent her postcard mixed with her blood to Marquis Inouye in which she declared her intention of offering up her life.

The marquis' relatives and Prince Ito may be tranquil, the message read, as a young girl, Yuki, stabbed herself to death to atone for the deed, and many nobles in Japan have written on romances concerning her deed.
