The extensive work. wound remained undressed until yesforces will contend that the right-ofterday morning, and the thing that way in dispute belongs to the Oregon Short Line by right of eminent domain, threatens him now is blood poisoning. Mauck, at the time of the accident, vas engaged in prospecting a spring for a greater flow of water. The revolver in his belt slipped out and struck on a rock and was discharged. The bullet entered his left leg and ranged upward to his thigh and lodged. Thom-as Gray, a fellow motorman, was attracted by the report of the pistol, and on going to Mauck he discovered him an unconscious conditon, which he was soon revived. Gray se-cured the help of a rancher and with a stretcher made from two saplings and a blanket they carried him with much difficulty four miles to the Terrace road. On reaching the road a wagon was ob-tained and a rough ride of dwenty miles to Terrace had to be made before a doctor was reached. The first train oming to Salt Lake was boarded, and an arriving here Mauck was taken to St. Mark's hospital, where Dr. Ecwer attended him. The doctor learned on examination that the bullet shattered no bone nor severed a blood vessel, but there is considerable danger of blood polsoning.

a handsome tribute to Mr. Arthur Shepherd. It mas made up largely of musicians and people of musical tastes who came to show by their presence that they wished him Godspeed in taking his new stop in life, and incidentally to enjoy the chaste program which had been arranged for the evening. It was a program essentially made up for musicians and possibly those not professional, would have voted it heavy. It was undoubtedly somewhat severe to the average taste, but to those who love the higher class of musical work, it was in all ways charming.

The main interest of course centered around Mr. Shepherd himself, who had a rare ovation when he seated himself at the plano to play for the first time before our public, his own "Theme and His rendition, admirable Variations. as it was, must be considered second to the composition. Specially notable was the move ment in the bass at the finish. Shepherd was thunderously recalled and gave a brief but exquisite little romanza by Saint Saens. Very interest-ing also was his "Sedge Song," ren-dered in fine style by Mr. Lund. The other numbers of the evening were strongly interesting. Mr. Lund sang in good voice, in addition to Mr. Shep-herd's song, "The Brook," by Schubert, and a second song by Tchalkowsky, as an extra number in place of the male quartet, which was unable to appear on account of Mr. Spencer's absence ment as to whether a railroad company

Miss Berkhoel made a pleasant im-pression, especially in the "Mignon" se-lection and responded to an encore with a tenderly beautiful short selection. One of the main features of the evening was the appearance of Mr. Heffley, who literally stormed his audience. He is a rare artist as a pianist, and the audience paid him the compliment, a most unusual one for Salt Lake gath-erings, of remaining after his final number, and insisting upon an encore; he obligingly responded, and was again heartily applauded. It is a pleasure to note that the report of Mr. Heffley's departure is incorrect, and his stay among us will in some measure, com-

Prof. Lund who had charge of the entertainment, is entitled to warm credit for his labors in After the arguments have been conbehalf of a fellow musician.

Among those in the audience who were especially impressed with Mr. Shepherd's work last night was Mr. Stephens, director of the Tabernacle choir. At the conclusion of the concert he said:

In arguing the cases the Harriman "Mr. Shepherd's undoubted genius is not a new thing to me. I have watched him for some years and I wish to say with all emphasis and deliberation, that he is the strongest musical figure our mountain country has yet produced. I regard his "Theme and Variations" played tonight as being almost perfect in conception and treatment. Had Paderewski or some other notable, written it, planists of the world would not rest until they had conquered it, and I assure you that it would take some strong application on anyone's part to master it. I do not hesitate to say that it is a composition that no Amedican correspondence matter American composer today, no matter what his age, could surpass. This may sound extravagant, but I make the statement as the result of careful consideration. I have no doubt of Mr. Shepherd's success, but it will take time for him to attract the serious at-tention that the character and difficulty of his works must secure, to have them

A Cure for Cholera Infantum. "Last May,"says Mrs. Curtis Baker, Bookwalter, Ohio, "an infant child of our neighbor's was suffering from cholera infantum. The doctor had given up all hopes of recovery. I took a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to the house, telling them I felt sure it would do good if used according to directions. In two days' time the child had fully recovered, and is now (nearly a year since) a vigorous, healthy girl. I have recommended this Remedy frequently and have never known it to fail in any single instance."
