

GENEALOGY.

All communications for this department should be addressed to Mrs. Elizabeth C. McCune, chairman Genealogical Committee of Daughters of Pioneers, corner Main and First North streets, Salt Lake City.

Venerable work is predicated on a belief in an eternal past and an eternal future. In ancient times this belief was a part of every religion in more or less distinct forms. Among the Egyptians, this faith so fastened the spirit and body together that the nobles and princes had their bodies embalmed.

Among the moderns the Buddhists and Theosophists carry the spirit forward through misty successive bodies, but they provide no place beyond for repentence or acceptance of the gospel. The Catholic alone makes it possible for some mitigation of future conditions through saying masses for the soul of the dead. But Joseph Smith is the first and only man in modern times who has dared to declare that the soul may repeat receive grace and finally reach its perfect goal, after its earthly life is over. But God has provided that the work for the dead must be done by those living upon the earth, as this is the place where earthly experiences were encountered by the tattered spirit. Who of us can grasp the heights, the depth and the immensity of this wondrous principle?

The genealogical section of the Daughters of the Pioneers will meet in the Lion house at 1 p.m. next Wednesday, instead of Friday. There will then be given the first of a series of lectures on "Salvation for the Dead," by Elder Joseph F. Smith, Jr., secretary of the Church Historical and Genealogical Society. All interested in temple work are invited.

GOODMAN-BINNEY.

There is an earnest appeal from a new convert in Bes忠ton, Grady county, Ga., Mary Elizabeth Binney, married Greenbury Walker in 1884. He died in 1888. Her son's name was John Binney, and her mother's name was Hepsey Goodman, and her grandmother's name was Rosanna Stewart. Mrs. Binney-Walker was born in Laurens county, Ga. She wishes to get information about any of her forefathers heretofore mentioned. Her address is: Bes忠ton, Grady county, Ga.

BROMLEY—Mrs. Eleanor Bromley Thomas of Preston, Ida., encloses two letters from an eastern gentleman relative to the future publishing of a Bromley history. The gentleman writes all who are in any way connected with the American families of Bromley to write to him, giving full information as far back as any can go. His name and address are: John Bromley Stouffer, 11 Massachusetts avenue, Boston, Mass.

CARD—Mrs. Rosa A. Card of Emporia, Cameron county, Pa., writes to know what she can do in regard to her own temple work, and that for her son who died a short time since. We answer this, as it may give others some information also. Sister Card will need to do her own work, when she is able to renew a temple. But she can have the work done for her, and son here at Salt Lake, who will send his name and date of birth, death, and place of birth, with her own relationship to the dead man. The very first thing Sister Card to do, as well as for every saint who has not yet ennobled from their own home, is to get a suitable black book, sit down at once, and put down every bit of information they have of their parents' names and dates; then their grandparents, just as far back as they can go. Where they lack information let them go to the county or church records, to curchyards, and to old acquaintances, and thus gain every possible scrap of information about all their kindred dead before they come to Zion. Every uncle, aunt, cousin, and these as far back as you can go, should be put down carefully being extremely particular to note the exact relationship of the living heir to the dead person. Let no one neglect this gravely important task.

HOUGHTON—Will some one kindly furnish the information that will lead to the knowledge of the town in Rutland county, Vermont, where Ammon Houghton and Aurelia Curtis were born in the early part of 1800, also of James Houghton and his wife, the parents of the above Ammon?

WORK DONE IN MANTI TEMPLE.

Following are names of families officiated for in part, at least, in the Manti Temple:

Degraw and Dutton families of the U. S., by Degraw family of Glendale.

Down family of N. Y., by J. C. Witter of Manti.

Everett family, Addison Everett of St. George.

Eager family, Mass., by John Eager of Bush Valley.

Eastman family of New England, by John D. Chase of Huntington.

Edmunds family of England, Scotland and Wales, by M. W. Jasper of Gothen.

Evans family of England and Scotland, by C. D. Evans of Springfield.

Eldredge family, by Mrs. Chichester of Washington.

Farnsworth family of New England, by M. F. Farnsworth of Manti.

Falconer and Faulkner families of England, by Mrs. M. F. Pratt, (dead), of Virgin City.

Floyd family, by Joseph Field of Beaver.

Fiske family of Mass., by Allan Stunt, (dead), of Rockville.

Flagg family of New England, by Emily B. Spencer of St. George.

Foote family, by W. S. Foote of Glen-

Frost family, by Allan Frost of Kanab.

Fuller family, by J. J. Fuller of Provo.

Fay family, by Jefferson Wright of Salt Lake City and Virgin City.

Felton family, by Mrs. Persis G. Richards of Kanab.

Forsyth family, by Sanford Forbush of Manti.

Foster family, by Solon Foster of Salt Lake City and St. George.

Freeman family, by Mrs. Hannah Wells of Manti.

Foss and Woolley of Salt Lake City and St. George.

Folsom family of New England, by W. H. Folsom of Salt Lake City.

Fonda family of New York, by J. C. Witbeck of Manti.

Felt family, by Felt Bros. of Manti and Salt Lake City.

Gale family, by Harrison Burgess of Springville.

Gillup family, by — Gillup of Springville.

Gay family of New England, by Gay family of Spanish Fork.

Gibbs family, by Horace Thornton of Manti.

Goodrich family, by K. T. Butler of Spanish Fork.

Gillette family, by Geo. G. Hale of Spanish Fork.

Gates family of England and New England, see Jacob F. Gates of Salt Lake City.

Gleason family, by Flora M. Washburn of Manti.

Goodale family of Mass., by Mrs. Persis G. Richards of Kanab.

Gaylor family, by Mary S. Forbush of Manti.

Goldthwaite family, by Lydia G. McCellan (dead), of St. George.

Gould family, by Mrs. Orpha M. Everett, (dead), of St. George.

Gilbert family of New England, by Stewart family of Springville.

Gifford family, by S. K. Gifford of Springville.

Ebony In Its Natural Beauty

Found in our display of Toilet Cases and Military Hair Brushes. They last a life time. F. J. Hill Drug Co. "The Never Substitutes."

The work on the Western Pacific up to date, narrated by a member of the Desert News staff, illustrated with half-tones, forms an interesting feature of the Christmas News to be issued Saturday next.

AN OLD MERCHANT SMUTTEN BY A YOUTHFUL MAINE LASS.

The following piece of fine romantic writing is from the Kennebec Journal:

A Main street merchant who has seen more than half a century of struggle and who has managed to continue a pretty good fellow through it all had a delightful experience with a little lass of seven at the postoffice Thursday afternoon. The child is a sweet, winsome little body. She was dressed nicely and it was plain that her mamma had taken pains with the daughter before the latter left home. The child stood in the center of the floor gazing at the many panels of glass, marking the boxes of the office and her pretty brown eyes studied out the number one by one. Her lips were pouted thoughtfully and her cheeks were heavy with the pink of health. The merchant dropped in, purchased stamps and turned to go out again. His eye fell upon the sweet little morsel and he hesitated, stopped, gazed admiringly at the child and then thinking it would be nice to her and impress her favorably, he walked to where she stood and began a conversation with her. The child was very well reared, for she gave the merchant one glance and then bowed very politely, probably in deference to his advanced age, which was well marked by many wrinkles and gray hair. The child was a little lady plainly for her replies to the merchant's questions were very precise and polite.

"How old are you, my dear?" he asked.

"Seven years old last June, sir," she answered.

"You are a nice little girl," declared the merchant as he turned to pass out into the world and into with the less attractive personages than she. She undoubtedly wanted to report her experience to her mother and wanted all the information possible for she took the merchant by the hand as he turned toward her again she asked.

"Pardon me, but may I ask what you may be?"

"I am thirty-nine years old," he replied.

"And may I ask how old you are?"

Talk about women dodging the master of ages. That merchant is proud of his years of honest application to business, his social and business standing in this city. He is proud of his family, which is of considerable size, but here was he thought he must dodge any issue of revealing his age to this winsome little one and of course do no harm. It would be such a little lie and yet not a lie, for those who stood around knew him well and they would understand that his dodging was a bit of humor on his part. So he answered the child as follows:

"I am thirty-nine years old."

It was just a tiny quirk of surprise that flitted through the bright brown optics of the child as she bowed prettily and ventured: "You certainly look all of that."

RAILWAYS BUILT FOR WAR.

There is something very sinister in the news, telegraphed from India the other day, that the Russians have at length completed the great steel and concrete bridge across the Oxus at Kard, on which they have been busy ever since the autumn of 1905.

For this bridge is the last and principal link in the new strategical railway, which is being built between the great city of Samarkand, in Russian Turkestan, and the little village of Begsa, on the Afghan frontier, and as soon as the rails are laid, war will be in a few months, the czar will be able, should he wish, to easily mass a million of men upon the borders of this debatable territory.

Nor is this all. Another of these strategical railways has also recently completed from the Caspian to Pendjeh, by way of Merv. This means that Herat, the traditional "Key of India," is now within easy striking distance of St. Petersburg.

Surely these great trunk lines have been constructed, and secretly. They have never been opened for traffic, except locally on certain sections, else doubtless it would be possible to book from Charing Cross to Pendjeh, and to travel thither in the course of a few days. There are in fact railroads built for war, not for war only, which support any permanent population, and they lead where—at present. They stop short on the frontier of Afghanistan, amid a jumble of mountains and morasses and uninhabited salt deserts.

Who can doubt, however, that the intention is to some day complete them? To carry them south through the Afghan passes to the fertile plains of India? And this, of course, can only be accomplished by force of arms—Pearson's Weekly.

DANGER IN ASKING ADVICE.

When you have a cough or cold do not seek some one what to do. There is danger in taking some unknown preparation. Foleys Honey and Tar cures coughs, colds and prevents pneumonia. The genuine is in a yellow package. Refuse substitutes. For sale by F. J. Hill Drug Co. "The never substitutes."

Thousands of People are Taking Advantage of the EXTREME LOW PRICES. Everything must be Sold REGARDLESS OF VALUE OR COST.

Archeological Finds in Babylonia

DEEGAR J. RANKS, in an article in the London Chronicle, gives a description of the work of the archeologists who have explored the rivers of Bismy, a city of ancient Babylonia.... gives which the merchant as he turned to pass out into the world and into with the less attractive personages than she. She undoubtedly wanted to report her experience to her mother and wanted all the information possible for she took the merchant by the hand as he turned toward her again she asked.

"Pardon me, but may I ask what you may be?"

"I am thirty-nine years old," he replied.

"And may I ask how old you are?"

Talk about women dodging the master of ages. That merchant is proud of his years of honest application to business, his social and business standing in this city. He is proud of his family, which is of considerable size, but here was he thought he must dodge any issue of revealing his age to this winsome little one and of course do no harm. It would be such a little lie and yet not a lie, for those who stood around knew him well and they would understand that his dodging was a bit of humor on his part. So he answered the child as follows:

"I am thirty-nine years old."

It was just a tiny quirk of surprise that flitted through the bright brown optics of the child as she bowed prettily and ventured: "You certainly look all of that."

RAILWAYS BUILT FOR WAR.

There is something very sinister in the news, telegraphed from India the other day, that the Russians have at length completed the great steel and concrete bridge across the Oxus at Kard, on which they have been busy ever since the autumn of 1905.

For this the last and principal link in the new strategical railway, which is being built between the great city of Samarkand, in Russian Turkestan, and the little village of Begsa, on the Afghan frontier, and as soon as the rails are laid, war will be in a few months, the czar will be able, should he wish, to easily mass a million of men upon the borders of this debatable territory.

Nor is this all. Another of these strategical railways has also recently completed from the Caspian to Pendjeh, by way of Merv. This means that Herat, the traditional "Key of India," is now within easy striking distance of St. Petersburg.

Surely these great trunk lines have been constructed, and secretly. They have never been opened for traffic, except locally on certain sections, else doubtless it would be possible to book from Charing Cross to Pendjeh, and to travel thither in the course of a few days. There are in fact railroads built for war, not for war only, which support any permanent population, and they lead where—at present. They stop short on the frontier of Afghanistan, amid a jumble of mountains and morasses and uninhabited salt deserts.

Who can doubt, however, that the intention is to some day complete them? To carry them south through the Afghan passes to the fertile plains of India? And this, of course, can only be accomplished by force of arms—Pearson's Weekly.

Thousands of People are Taking Advantage of the EXTREME LOW PRICES. Everything must be Sold REGARDLESS OF VALUE OR COST.

We have overbought ourselves in suits, therefore we are compelled to make this sale and give you the benefit on anything you desire in our store at 1/3 OFF on our same easy terms of a small payment down, then you take the clothes, wear them, and pay us after $1.00 A WEEK or $4.00 PER MONTH.

This sale includes every garment in the house, namely, COATS, SHIRT WAISTS, FURS, MILLINERY (ready-to-wear hats). Also we carry a full line of men's HAND-MADE SUITS, OVERCOATS, TROUSERS AND HATS. By giving us a call you will be convinced we carry a superior class of clothing than any other credit store in the city.

WE GUARANTEE EVERY GARMENT we sell. We require no security and don't ask your neighbors about you. No connection with any other store in town.

Remember, The Western Outfit Co., Where Your Credit Is Good With Us

the child of 6,000 years ago played in one house was a baby's rattle of clay. It still produces a noise worthy of entertaining a modern child. Sheep, horses, elephants and pigs of clay, and of a form unlike anything conceived by the modern child, were the toys of that day.

We do not yet know whether every Babylonian of that age could write, but in many of the houses were found tablets of clay upon which were recorded the private contracts of the owner. In parts of the ruins were clay letters still in the original clay envelopes in which they had been sent.

The Babylonian was essentially a warrior, for most of the bronze objects which the ruins of his home yielded are spearheads, cloths flat and round, and arrowheads. About the thick walls with which he fortified his city were found traces of the fierce battles which he had fought. At the outer edge, just where the most may have been, were thousands of the sling balls employed in the wars of those days. Their location shows that they were buried from without the city, as the inhabitants, working below the mark, fell into the trench. Through this its result is apparent.

It seems that the city fell into the hands of the besiegers. Its temple was plundered; the statues were defaced and the chambers of the priests were railed. The fate of the people and their homes could not have differed from that which followed the fall of Babylon.

The prosperity of Babylon at one time was great. Its civilization came to an end with the fall of the city. The never substituter.

Orina Laxative Fruit Syrup. The best laxative. Stimulates, but does not tire. It is the true Laxative. Guaranteed to money back. For sale by F. J. Hill.

The never substituter.

OVERLOADED SALE

ON LADIES' AND MEN'S SUITS

SOLD ON CREDIT FOR $1.00 A WEEK

OR $4.00 PER MONTH BY

The Western Outfit Co.

266 STATE STREET

ONE-THIRD OFF on Every Garment in the House

We have overbought ourselves in suits, therefore we are compelled to make this sale and give you the benefit on anything you desire in our store at 1/3 OFF on our same easy