RELIGIOUS AND CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE.

The efforts of having ecclesiastical bodies to meet off, having ecclesiastical bodies have become quite a thing of the past, and have caused much discussion in the religious world. The idea that ministers of the various churches who have organized in the various churches which they are connected with, are many in any case because they are distributed by the churches to which they belong, is in our view, extremely absurd. Yet this is the position taken by many of the influential papers of the country.

Every religious organization, however small, of creed or religious family, to which is essential to membership, its ministers are chosen to be its representatives and defenders of the principles which they are connected with. It is not in the hands of the churches, but in the hands of the ministers, that the principles of the churches are to be maintained. If any of these ministers change their views, it is evident they are no longer consistent in their official position, even if they may remain members of the body. And they should desire to do so, when they have been convicted that their views are in conflict with the principles of the church to which they are connected.

The question as to whether the churches that have existed since the time of Christ have been true to the principles of the Bible, is a question of the highest importance. It is a question that has been discussed for centuries, and it is a question that will continue to be discussed for centuries to come. It is a question that is of the highest importance to the Christian world, and it is a question that is of the highest importance to the human race.

It appears to us that there are only two main points in this question. The first is, whether the churches that have existed since the time of Christ have been true to the principles of the Bible. The second is, whether the churches that have existed since the time of Christ have been true to the principles of the Bible.

Truth should be welcome to every body in the Christian religion. The principles of the Bible are the principles of the Christian religion, and they are the principles of the human race. They are the principles of the Christian religion, and they are the principles of the human race.

There is one thing that recent trials for the Jews have clearly shown. It is that the Jews are a people who are not to be despised. They are a people who are not to be despised. They are a people who are not to be despised.

This is a sad condition of religious affairs. The knowledge of the truth is one of the chief results of the acceptance of the Christian faith, and it is one of the chief results of the acceptance of the Christian faith.

The Latter-day Saints have the great advantage of that firm conviction which comes to knowledge of the truth of their religion. It is a conviction that is not to be shaken, and it is a conviction that is not to be shaken.

No wonder that spiritually-minded people are looking for new and new revelations, and that they are looking for new and new revelations. They are looking for new and new revelations, and they are looking for new and new revelations.

A COURT OF PAROLE.

THE court convened at 10 o'clock this morning. What to do with the criminals of society passes the philosopher and the politician as well as the statesman. Every thoughtful person should be the primary object of punishment, but how to effect this and restore to society the former criminal without danger to the community is a serious problem.

The district-clerk system has worked fairly well in England, but has objectionable features and only partially meets the purpose in view. Something like this, but with improvements, is just now being tried in New Jersey. It combines the advantages of the parole system, and is designed to meet two public demands.

The pardoning power, usually vested in the Governor of a State or Territory, confers great responsibility, too much, perhaps, to be conferred in one individual. Hence, in England, the pardon is sometimes submitted for the consideration of a board of judges, and in New Jersey the Governor, the Chancellor and the six Judges of the Court of Errors and Appeals form a Board of Pardon, and under the new recently passed bill, with the Governor of the State prison, constitute a Court of Parole.

Prisoners who have behaved well, have been incarcerated and who can obtain a contract for employment if liberated, may be released by this court parole. They must report once a month to the board in which they have spent their time and the money they have earned. This report must show that the parole convict has lived an orderly life and has not used intoxicants. If it is demonstrated that he has been sober, decent and industrious up to the end of the term for which he was imprisoned, he will receive a certificate of discharge which will restore him to his rights of citizenship. If not, he is liable to be arrested and returned to prison to finish his term.

This appears to give promise of good results. It opens an opportunity to the fallen who are not necessarily criminal to work their way back to honor and respectability. It lifts them hope and work for redemption. It also guards against impetuosity and keeps a check on the really vicious. It is an experiment, and it is hoped that it will be a successful one.

The board of judges, which will be charged with the duty of releasing the prisoners, will be composed of the Governor, the Chancellor and the six Judges of the Court of Errors and Appeals. The board will be charged with the duty of releasing the prisoners, and it is hoped that it will be a successful one.

NEW IS A NUTSHELL.
The national debt of Italy is $25,000,000. Mr. Reed, the ex-speaker of the Fifty-third Congress is in Rome. On this day, April 25, 1891, New Orleans was captured.

On this day, April 25, 1870, McLean, the painter died.
On this day, April 25, 1891, William Cowper, the English poet, died.
The grip has broken out in Stafford, England, and physicians report that the disease is rapidly spreading.

Mr. John H. McCarthy, son of the anti-French leader, is said to have become a convert to Buddhism.
About the only kind of farm work that cannot be performed by machinery is the harvesting of the wheat crop. You can't always depend upon a man. Some of the newly graduated country school teachers of New York have just the same.

The first decorations used at Minn. Centennial were said to be remarkably beautiful. One of the saddest things about the world is that almost everything is beautiful except the human race.
The present British Parliament is remarkable for the fact that the majority of its members have died since the last general election. The present majority of the House of Commons is 100.
