

WHITTIER DAY.

Work of Pupils in the Salt Lake City Public Schools.—Honoring the Poet's Birthday.—General Proceedings.—Samples of Essays by Pupils in the Eight Grades and High Schools.

In every department of the public schools today, from the lowest primary through the high school, there were general observances of the poet Whittier. His birthday anniversary was on Sunday last, December 15th, and the exercises were being conducted all day of the school week, December 16th, and 17th. In the primary grades, the pupils were particularly interested in the "Little House in the Woods," and the "The Snow-Bound." In the intermediate grades, the pupils were particularly interested in the "The Snow-Bound," and the "The Snow-Bound." In the high school, the pupils were particularly interested in the "The Snow-Bound," and the "The Snow-Bound."
