

SENATE CONDEMNS VICIOUS PRACTISE

That of Certain of Executive Departments Sending in Drafts of Bills for Passage.

INTOLERABLE, SAYS ALDRICH.

To Suppose Senators Are There to Receive Dictation from Anybody As to Enactment of Laws.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The practice of certain of the executive departments of sending drafts of bills to the senate for passage, which bills have been immediately referred directly to committees, was discussed in the senate today. Senator Carter of Montana presented a prepared list of instances where the heads of executive departments had addressed the senate, requesting the passage of certain bills. He said that Senator Teller of Colorado had himself sent bills to the senate for passage when he was secretary of the interior. Senator Aldrich said that, no matter how old the practice, it should be stopped; that the executive departments had no right to send legislation in such direct manner, and that the law which authorized the departments to make certain reports to Congress does not include other communications. Senator Heyburn of Idaho said that a recommendation by Secy. Garfield that a certain Indian relief bill be passed into law by the senate and the house representatives was probably objectionable in that it assumed a form of committee communication not enjoyed by senators themselves, except by consent of the senate. Senator Lodge called attention to the fact that bills going direct to committees from department heads or subordinate officials of the legislative departments found their way into print without any readings at all, hence senators were deprived of their rights to object to such bills. He thought that this might easily result in legislative irregularities. Senator Aldrich observed that department heads have the right to petition or memorialize Congress, or to communicate therewith, through the president; but he said, "it is intolerable to suppose that we are here to receive dictation from anybody as to what measures we shall or shall not pass into law."

A COUNTERFEITER'S COIN.

Was So Good and Pure Only Experts Could Distinguish It.

New York, Dec. 12.—Herman Henz, who made silver dollars so well that only experts could distinguish his product from that of the mint, was sentenced today to six years at Sing Sing prison and to pay the government $250 fine. Henz's method was to melt up Mexican silver dollars and re-mold the bullion into counterfeiters of United States dollar pieces. The counterfeiter calmly admitted having made the coins and led up the defense that his money was as good as the government's and that consequently no one had been defrauded. He was making money, he said, with which to build an alibi, as he was certain that he had solved the problem of aerial navigation.

SECY. TAFT'S MANAGERS SECURE THEIR QUARTERS

Chicago, Dec. 12.—Contracts were closed at the Auditorium hotel today for the quarters which the managers of Secy. Taft's candidacy campaign are to occupy during the Republican convention in June, 1908. Rooms were also secured for the Ohio, New York and Indiana delegations, and Taft's campaign manager, and selected the suits in the Auditorium Annex from which Mark Hanna directed two campaigns for William McKinley. The Young Men's Bazaar club of Cincinnati, the Tippecanoe club of Cleveland, and the Young Men's Bazaar club of Columbus, will occupy adjoining apartments. J. P. Goodrich of Indianapolis signed the contracts for the Indiana quarters from which the vice president's campaign will be directed. The Indiana delegates and several political organizations of the state will be accommodated on the same floor.

The New York delegation will occupy the same rooms which they had in 1904, the south parlor of the Auditorium proper. Arrangements to this effect were completed by LaFayette Gleason of New York, who has been here for a week. Reports that he was acting for Gov. Hughes were denied tonight by Mr. Gleason.

DAVID SMITH LEAVES.

Chief Deputy in County Clerk's Office Made Many Friends.

David A. Smith, who for six years, has been a deputy in the county clerk's office, has resigned his position to take up his duties in the office of the presiding bishop of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Nathan L. Tanner, a young attorney, will succeed Mr. Smith in the clerk's office. In the capacity of chief deputy, Mr. Smith has won the esteem of all who have had occasion to transact business with the clerk of the courts. Lawyers, judges, newspapermen and candidates for matrimony will all miss "Dave" Smith. No matter how busy he might have been, he was never too busy to give courteous attention to all who might require his services. His habit of exacting careful and minute and detailed consideration of every matter pertaining to the county clerk's office have in large part been responsible for the excellent condition of the records in that office.

TO SELECT MEETING PLACE.

Ministerial Association Will No Longer Use Y. M. C. A. Rooms.

The Salt Lake Ministerial association will not meet again in the Y. M. C. A. building. It meets next Monday morning, in the study of Rev. Dr. Paden, where decision will be made as to the place for holding its sessions in the future. There has been a "feeling" for some time between the members of the association and the Y. M. C. A. management, in which the evangelical status of Y. M. C. A. work, and the views of the ministers as to what the Y. M. C. A. should stand for were factors. It is also alleged that the Y. M. C. A. management required the ministers to abstain from certain action along sectarian lines, while meeting in the building.

SKETCH OF LATE H. O. HAVEMEYER

His Death Will Have No Effect On Local Sugar Conditions.

NEW PRESIDENT W. B. THOMAS

T. R. Cutler Pays Tribute to the Late President and Tells of His Part in Building Up Beet Sugar.

General Manager Thomas R. Cutler of the Utah-Idaho Sugar company has received word of the appointment of Mr. Washington B. Thomas of Boston as acting president of the American Sugar Refining company to succeed the late Henry O. Havemeyer. Mr. Thomas was the former vice president of the company. The vacancy in the board is filled by the election of Mr. Havemeyer's son, Horace.

The new president has visited Salt Lake City several times and is greatly interested in the development of the beet sugar industry of the west. He is well acquainted with the people of Utah and Idaho, and has been associated with Mr. Havemeyer during the beet sugar developments of recent years. Mr. Thomas is a targeted business man, one who has immense interests in and outside of the sugar business, and the Mr. Havemeyer, was an immense large fortune.

Mr. Cutler is frequently asked whether the death of Mr. Havemeyer will have any effect upon the affairs of the beet sugar companies of the west, but his answer is that no change in conditions will occur. The group of eastern sugar men interested with the local men in the beet sugar industry are well posted and in close touch with operations in Utah, Idaho, Colorado and elsewhere that they have made investments, so that matters will continue as smoothly and harmoniously in the future as they have done in the past.

Mr. Cutler had a high personal regard for the late Mr. Havemeyer, who he says was a man of strength in the financial and sugar worlds. His capacity for organization, and his brilliant strokes in the conduct of his business, made him famous, and his aims were a constant for enterprise, success and daring methods. Not many people realize that it was due to the far-sightedness of Mr. Havemeyer that the sugar industry of Utah and Idaho has reached its present enormous proportions. The name can be said to even a larger extent regarding Colorado. The sugar industry throughout Utah, Idaho and Colorado was only relatively a small affair when Mr. Havemeyer began to investigate it, and realized something of its wide possibilities. He and his associates thereupon entered into arrangements with local capitalists in the three states for the enlargement of the industry, and the capital they furnished led to the multiplication of factories not only in the three states, but in Michigan, Montana and where, till the beet sugar industry of the west has reached the commanding position it enjoys today.

MR. HAVEMEYER'S CAREER.

Mr. Havemeyer's funeral occurred at his residence in New York on Saturday last. The New York Herald of a recent date gives the following sketch of his life: present enormous proportions.

Henry Osborne Havemeyer, president of the American Sugar Refining company, and regarded as one of the world's financiers, was born in New York, Oct. 18, 1847. He was the grandson of Frederick C. Havemeyer, one of the two brothers who came to this city as German immigrants and founded the former of the Havemeyer house by opening a little sugar bakery in Vandam street. His father, Dr. Christian Havemeyer, was entered as an apprentice at his establishment, and later became the chief factor in its development, under the successive names of Havemeyer, Townsend & Co., and Havemeyer & Elder. Into one of the largest sugar refineries of the world, his father's cousin was William F. Havemeyer, mayor of New York.

Scion of a family of large wealth and brought up to the traditions of a great and successful business, Henry O. Havemeyer made the sugar industry his life study. His education was in private schools, and immediately upon its completion he became an employee in his father's company and was initiated into methods of manufacture. His training took him through all departments of the plant.

At the age of 22 he was admitted to a full partnership, and in a short time he became manager of the firm, whose members, besides his father, were Theodore A. and Thomas J. Havemeyer, J. Lawrence Elmer and Charles H. Smith.

CAPACITY FOR ORGANIZATION.

His natural capacity for organization and the direction of huge enterprises, combined with an acquired ability as a manager, not only enabled him to hold in check the interests committed to his charge, but drove him toward expansion and reconstruction. For nearly 20 years he conducted the bitter warfare waged against competing refineries, leaving the Havemeyer house successfully through a series of critical campaigns.

Through the years of ruinous competition he conceived the idea of a consolidated company that should eliminate the waste of the struggle for trade and secure control, the sugar markets of the world. In 1881 he organized the principal sugar owners of the country under his suggestion. This was the initial step toward the realization of his plan. In 1891 the American Sugar Refining company, under the nominal presidency of his brother, Theodore, was incorporated in New Jersey. Mr. Havemeyer and the company successfully withstood several inquiries as to the "sugar trust."

From 1891 he conducted the amalgamation of the sugar business with results that won for him international world the title of "the sugar king." In 1903 his fortune was estimated at $70,000,000.

Aside from his reputation as a great commercial figure, Mr. Havemeyer was widely known as a connoisseur and collector of fine paintings. Mr. Havemeyer was also a musician and was no mean performer on the violin.

MARRIED FIRST WIFE'S NIECE.

In 1883 Mr. Havemeyer married Louise Waldron Elder, a niece of his first wife, Mary L. Elder. She was an accomplished housewife and has since been one of the leaders of society. They had three children, Ageline, Horace and Electra Havemeyer.

While Mr. Havemeyer's home in this city was at Fifth avenue and Sixty-sixth street, he had lived for many years at his country estate, near Greenwich, Conn., which is one of the finest along Long Island sound. He was interested in the breeding of fancy cattle and high grade stock.

Among Mr. Havemeyer's charities, which were usually of a quiet and unobtrusive order, was a large public school building, which he erected at a cost of $250,000, and presented to the town of Greenwich.

Mr. Havemeyer held, besides his position in the American Sugar Refining company, the place of president and director of the American Coffee company and director in the National City bank, Alliance Realty company, Central Realty Bond and Trust company, New Jersey and New York Realty and Improvement company, and the Colonial Safe Deposit company. He was a trustee in the Colonial Trust company, and an officer of other corporations. He was a member of the Grolier, Yale, Riding, Suburban, Riding and Driving and Seawanhaka, Corinthian Yacht clubs and the Scientific Alliance, Chamber of Commerce and the New York Botanical Gardens Society.
