BREVITIES

The Western Railroad of France reports to have transported 19,000,000 passengers during 1867.

South Denver, Mass., is henceforth to be called Peabody, in honor of George Peabody, a native of that place.

A gold brick has been moulded in Nevada which weighs 1,000 ounces, and is worth over $20,000.

American canned fruits are becoming very popular in England—peaches and tomatoes taking the lead.

Almost every young lady is public spirited enough to have her father's house used as a court-house.

Aristotle, on being censured for bestowing alms on a bad man, made the following noble reply: "I did not give it to him, I gave it to humanity."

At Barcelona Spain there are more than 700 Cotton Factories, besides many others for the manufacture of linen silk and wool.

The loss on silver withdrawn from circulation by the British Mint for one year owing to wear was fifteen thousand pounds.

There is a rumor afloat in Paris that the Sultan of Turkey will pay a visit to America, as he takes a great interest in the affairs of this country.

John Brooks, bird and snake fancier, while playing with a pet rattlesnake, in Baltimore, recently, was bitten by the reptile, and died within 15 minutes.

The transparent wings of certain insects are so attenuated in their structure, that fifty thousand of them placed over each other would not form a pile a quarter of an inch in height.

An Irishman being told to grease the wagon, went off and returned in about an hour afterwards, and said "I've greased every part of the wagon except them sticks the wheels hang on."

Talkative persons seldom read. This is among the few truths which appear the more strange the more we reflect upon them. For what is reading but silent conversation.

Medals of honor are to be conferred by the Pope upon Jewish as well as Catholic physicians who distinguished themselves in Rome during the cholera epidemic last year.

A clergyman, at an afternoon service, was asked to read a notice of a woman's rights lecture, which he did in this wise: "At half past six o'clock, at the school house in the First District, a hen will attempt to crow."

The best time to pick up a woman who has fallen down on the sidewalk or street, is when she is down; but most gentlemen maintain a masterly inactivity until she is up, and then flood her with sympathy, which isn't what she needs half so much, say, as liniment.

The largest organ in the world is credited to the little city of Freiburg, Switzerland. When in full play it pours forth a tempest of sounds through a forest of pipes seven thousand eight hundred in number, shaking the walls and the foundation of the old St. Nicholas Church in which it stands.

Dr. Cumming writing to a London paper that he still believes his interpretation of prophecy to be correct and that it is time for every man, while doing his duty to his country, to his family, and society at large, to have his loins girt and his lamp burning, for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh."

A Boston paper says there are two reasons why people feel drowsy in a crowded church. First, because they inhale, and thus destroy a large portion of the oxygen in the air—which alone can sustain vitality and healthy action. Second, the air of the church is impregnated with carbonic acid gas, which being narcotic, produces drowsiness in those who inhale it.

The more we see of the world, the more we are satisfied that simplicity is inseparable companion of true greatness. We never yet knew a truly great man—man who overstepped his fellow-men—who did not possess a certain playful, almost infantine simplicity. True greatness never struts on stilts, or plays the king upon the stage.

In Paris, there is a dealer in old clothes who belongs to the aristocracy of the trade. He sells only the clothing of celebrated persons. Among his present treasures are mentioned a belt of Abdel-Kader, a hat of Guizot, the lace handkerchief which Mme. Rosine Stoltz wore to pieces in 1840, when Paris hushed her in the opera of "Robert Bruce," a boot once worn by Dejazet, a petticoat formerly belonging to Tagliani and other stage celebrities.

A somewhat desperate looking character once rushed up to a gentleman on the street and said, with great solemnity, "For the love of God, give me half a crown, or I shall do a deed my soul abhors!" Touched with his seeming earnestness, the gentleman gave the money, and then, from a natural curiosity, said, "Well, now, my poor man, tell me the deed from the commission of which I have just delivered you." Said the fellow, with a polite bow, "but for that half crown I should have had to go to work, your honor."

In the ordinary form of furnace grate the bars of iron are made stout enough to sustain the weight of the coal, even after being weakened by heating, and, as a consequence, much of the coal resting on the iron is not brought into contact with air, and its gases are driven off unconsumed, causing the dense black smoke escaping from the chimney, when bituminous coal is burned. An arrangement has lately been patented in England, by which the iron is admitted to all parts of the burning mass, and the smoke almost entirely consumed, with a great reduction in the amount of ashes.
