

SHADOWS OF LIGHTS AND SHADOWS OF A CITY

AS SEEN BY A SALT LAKE WOMAN

"Ah, broken is the golden bowl!"

The spirit flown forever!"

A BEAUTIFUL girl came to live in our town, a few years ago. Now, where, save in our altitudes, could she live and work? "Like a worm in the bud," a dread disease was slowly but surely making vital inroads upon the heart of this flower, and it was a question of a few years, when it would pale and droop and be borne away to bloom afresh and forever in the meadows of another land.

To live and work? Yes, to work! To work for sustenance, and to what end? For the building up of that frail little body—for we are taught that it is our duty to live in the body as long as possible—which the dread enemy was day by day tearing down. An enemy that would triumph in the end. Yet, nothing daunted, this courageous girl put forth a noble and glorious fight, and dragged her weary little self to the office where she worked, morning after morning, when it would have been so sweet to have remained in bed, with a loving mother smiling brightly over the breakfast tray. But with a twinge of conscience was this thought ever quickly crushed, for was not that same loving mother carrying the breakfast tray to another afflicted child, a brother, living in the sunny south, who had far greater need of maternal care and tenderness than she?

She was resigned, but it was that kind of resignation that stands for beautiful activity and fulfillment. Thoroughly imbued with that divine truth that God will help His children, if they will make an effort to help themselves, she did not sit down, and fold her hands, and merely endure her cross, but took it gladly up, and shouldered it, and carried it along—no matter its weight, at times—and cheerfully co-operated with God's will from Dr. Rowland's standpoint. "They will be done—the term denotes activity; there is something to do," and she did it. She cheered the body, though it was but a frail, weary, drooping companion, by faithfully going to her work, day by day, to earn sufficient for its failing requirements.

One by one the family has been reduced, by the same cruel cause. First, the father, who having met with reverses during the panic of '93, became so despondent, that further struggle was hopeless, and he wended his way into another territory, leaving the mother with three children—the little girl who lived among us for a few years, a sister, and a brother. Close following the father, the sister succumbed to that untimely frost, because it must seem that "whom the God's love die young."

After this, that dear, brave mother was obliged to depart for Florida with the drooping boy, leaving her lone daughter to the care and tender mercy of our mountains.

And they were merciful our mountains, for through them she lived in our midst longer than she otherwise could have done. And how we loved her—we, her friends. And out of her weakness what strength she gave us. We who were strong, yet so weak. Strong physically, yet prone to rail against what was in reality nothing at all—imaginary crosses. And here was one with a real cross, whose every word and every act, was to teach us that "God's in His heaven, all's right with the world."

One day, after steady work for several years, this little girl was obliged to go to California, with the hope, that after a few months she could return, and cheerfully take up her work once more. Back she came, with heart and brain as strong as ever, the spirit just as willing, but the flesh was weaker. She took hold of her work with the old beautiful energy, but it was too much after all, and again she went to California, returning to us in due time, only to go, not back to her work—she had hoped to work half a day, anyway—but to the hospital, where she remained, quiet, cheerful, resigned for several months. Nor did she let her mother know for some time, that for mother was watching and waiting for the call that would bear her boy away. For weeks she had never left his bedside. Then came the word to our little girl, one day, that her brother had started on his little ahead of her, that was all, to scan the trail that she was to shortly take.

The thought of her mother's coming to her, after all these years when she needed her, too, was joy, keen and new born, and like a little child she counted the days, hours, minutes, until that mother's arms should enfold her as in the old days, and then one afternoon, a week ago, she fell into a quiet, restful sleep, and when the mother came next day, she found her still sleeping. A sleep, "and untimely frost, upon the sweetest flower of all the field."

A rarely beautiful character: high principled, and conscientious to an exaggerated extent. Warm hearted and courageous, she commanded the respect of all who knew her. If "culture is not knowledge, but wisdom, not quantity of learning, but quality, not mass of information, but ripeness and soundness of temper, spirit and nature," then she had the richest culture.

A word about that mother! Surely never such a saintly mother ever came to earth. In these brief years, when it would seem that she had but left one deathbed to give her angel presence to another; and each one meant the taking of her nearest and dearest, until now, there is not one left to comfort her—yet has she nobly stood the test, and not one drop of bitterness has entered into her heart; but only more of sweetness and love, and faith and hope, and strength and gentleness. When friends of her departed daughter gathered about her, with sympathy in their hearts, and tears in their eyes, for her extreme loneliness, with sadness in their hearts over the loss of their friend, her own dear girl—what was the result? That mother took them all in her arms, one by one, and with sweetest, heaven-given words, soothed and cheered them. Dear, noble woman and mother? "May God's exceeding love enfold you, until His tender hand shall lead you safely home to love's own land."

GOOD-BYE.

A smile, a song, a sigh,
A rift of blue
Reflected thro'
My sky.

A dream of melody
Unheard, the morn,
A breath new-born—
To die.

A prayer, and inward cry
Of pain, a tear,
God love you, dear,
Good-bye!

LADY RABBIT.

WARNING.

If you have kidney and bladder trouble, and do not use Foley's Kidney Cure, you will have only yourself to blame for results, as it positively cures all forms of kidney and bladder diseases. For sale by F. J. Hill Drug Co. "The never substitutes."

GOOD RIDDANCE.

Mayor Busey has decided that projecting electric signs must disappear from State street. The owners of the buildings are to receive 60-day notices to remove them, and if they don't comply then the signs will be torn down by the city.

For the present other streets will not be affected by the order, but the mayor has announced that hereafter he will sign no more permits for such signs within the loop district.

The first electric sign that was put up a splendid advertisement. It attracted people a mile away. The rivalry of the second reduced its value materially. The third sign was made bigger than the others in order to attract more attention. A fourth came along to divide the glory with it. And so the progress went. Ever more signs and ever bigger signs, until State street became a mass of irregularly placed, ugly signs, disgusting the street, and in time of storm dangerous to life and limb.

Such a wild frenzy to attract attention defeats its own object and in time becomes repulsive to the very men who were first to adopt it. For that reason there has been a healthy movement among State street merchants themselves to have an end put to the abuse. Mayor Busey's order will meet with approval on that street as well as elsewhere. In the course of time he may find it advisable to order down the more glaring signs on other streets as well.—Chicago Record-Herald.

UNSELFISH TEARS.

President Samuel P. Colt of the United States Rubber company was discussing in New York the amicable trade agreement that has been made between his firm and the International Rubber company.

"It is best," he said, "for competitors to agree to be fair and honest with one another. And this agreement is as fair and honest one. It is not like those wherein two rivals, while pretending to be fair, yet knife one another continually in the back. Such hypocritical agreements remind me of two children, two little boys I know."

"They were lurching, Billy and Jack, and when the butter brought on the desert, it was seen that there was only one orange in the fruit basket. Instantly Billy, the larger boy, set up a loud howling."

"Now what's the matter?" said the governess. "What are you crying about, Billy?"

"I'm crying," Billy answered, "because there's no orange for Jack."

MEN PAST SIXTY IN DANGER

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am now 91 years old." MRS. D. S. ROWLAND

C. T. STRANGE

ODD COMPLICATIONS IN MURDER CHARGE.

Mrs. D. S. Rowland of Raleigh, N. C., is held for the murder of C. T. Strange, the woman's former husband, while her husband, Dr. Rowland, is held as an accessory and also as principal in the murder of his only son, a boy of 14 years, whom he is charged with killing for the sake of a small insurance. Mrs. Strange married Dr. Rowland six weeks after the death of her husband and poison is said to have been the means used to compass his end. The trial promises sensations.

Extraordinary Large Purchases Prompts This

Emphatic Bargain Announcement.

Never before at the opening of a season has it been imperative to immediately dispose of vast new stocks without reference to profits. But NINE MONTHS AGO, FACING A STRONG AND ADVANCING MARKET ON THESE GOODS, WE MADE ENORMOUS PURCHASES, so heavy that our present space is inadequate and we now find that we must relieve the congested condition in this section, and therefore offer

The Entire Stock of Fresh, New BLANKETS and COMFORTS AT MILL COST

Thousands of sheep were shorn for this great event. Hundreds of looms in America helped supply material for this gigantic sale. Months ago, we contracted with the largest mills and factories—bought immense quantities to obtain rock-bottom prices: supplied ourselves with assortments the like of which has never been known before. THEY ARE HERE NOW AND NO PLACE TO PUT THEM. 8,000 PAIR OF NEW BLANKETS, 300 BALES AND CASES OF NEW COMFORTS MUST BE SOLD AT ONCE—And to accomplish that result, we have resorted to the most drastic price cutting in the experience of this store. The substance of this sale, the general character of the merchandise, the remarkable lowness of the prices, may be partially judged by the items below, and impartially judged Monday by a personal visit to this Big Money-Saving Bedding Sale.
