CORRESPONDENCE.

TOOELE BEE-KEEPERS.

TOOELE CITY, Feb. 21, 1884.

Editor Deseret News:

On the 21st inst., the bee-keepers of this place held a meeting for the purpose of reorganizing the association as no election had been held since it was first organized several years ago, and but few meetings had been held owing no doubt to the few who were interested in the sweet enterprise. But the last two years has added quite a number to the association as you could see from the report of Tooele in the last Territorial Beekeeper's Convention, held in your city last October. The election resulted as follows: President T. W. Lee; First Vice-President A. G. Fraser; Second Vice-Ppesident. Jno. McLaws; Secretary, Jno Dunn, Treasurer, Chas. Lindholm. It was decided that an annual election of officers be held each year, and that we hold monthly meetings, as some good could be done by an exchange of views, especially from those who had been for years working among the bees to those that were just starting in the business, and to those that will yet join with us. Many of those now engaged in bee culture do not have the time that should be devoted to it as the most of them have other duties to perform which call them away just at the time they should attend to taking away the honey and fixing up other things that would greatly add to the increase of honey and bees. This has been the case so far but we cannot tell yet how we will come out. We will be able to decide when the spring opens so we can examine our hives. J. D.

A LETTER FOR THE LEGISLATURE.

HUNTINGTON, Emery County, Utah, Feb. 18th, 1884.

Editor Deseret News:

A few weeks ago the citizens of this county sent a petition to the Legislative Assembly, asking an appropriation of $2,000 to build a bridge over Price River, in this county; and also for $2,000 to help to make a road through Huntington Canon. At the time this petition was sent some of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad officials said we might get the money for the bridge, but we would not get help for the road. Now we see by the minutes of the House of Feb. 12th, that it has turned out just about as they predicted.

There was some talk when this petition was sent that in the event the appropriation was made and the road completed, a great many would bring their supplies through this route instead of paying the D. & R. G. the exorbitant freight rates that they are in the habit of charging on local freight. The petition for the road was for and would be the greatest benefit to the people of the whole country, excepting the railway people, and we would like to know some of the reasons for refusing an appropriation for the benefit of the people, and making one in the interests of a railroad corporation, of course we asked for both, and not wishing to cast any reflections on the honorable committee who had our petition, and who made the report referred to, we can only say it looks strange the prediction above referred to, should be so literally fulfilled.

In connection with this we would ask our law makers if they cannot pass a law to equalize freight rates throughout the Territory, as it seems where there is no competition, the people are taxed beyond all reason, considering the way rates are charged as soon as competition ceases. Now we hold that on the same principal a railroad company charges, more for local freight in a county where there is no competition, that the county would be justified in assessing a greater tax. But as counties cannot do that, why is it that a railroad company as soon as they leave competition, raise their rates double, treble and even four times higher than they do where that competition exists.

We are having a regular old fashioned winter, with snow about one foot deep; the indications are we will have some thawing weather soon, as it has cleared up to-day.

Yours truly, W. H.

CARP AS FOOD.

February 23d, 1884.

Editor Deseret News:

I am frequently asked as to the nature and character of this fish, as to its qualities compared with other fish. In answer to those numerous inquries I will make a few extracts from U. S. Fish Commissioner's Bulletin:

Wm. A. Jett, Atlanta, Georgia, says: He has eaten carp fried, and they were most excellent table fish, equal to any fish.

William A. Ridgely, Glenwood, Md., says: "They are the nicest fish he ever tasted, fried as other fish."

John Houston, Farmerville, Va., had some fried in lard at the time they had visitors, and they all joined in saying the lady never eaten anything more delicious.

Mr. Thomas Adams, editor of the Edgefield Advertiser, says: We had two dishes cooked, seven or eight on each dish, from one to two pounds each. They were fried as shad are usually fried, and in all honesty and sincerity we never tasted a more delicious fish. So far from being dry they are precisely the opposite. They have but few bones—the backbone and ribs—with but few besides.

Matthew B. Carter, Shaker Ohio, and G. W. Varnum, Montgomery, Md., affirm that they are equal to the buffalo fish caught in the rivers.

P. Peyton Carver, Mount Joliet, Tenn., declares they are equal to cat fish.

M. S. Sinch, Sr., Wortham, Texas, says they are not as desirable as mountain trout, but equal to perch and superior to lake fish.

LOTS OF SNOW.

KANAB, Kane Co., Utah, February 12th, 1884.

Editor Deseret News:

We are having genuine winterly weather at last, I say at last because it is two or three years since we had as much snow on the ground, at the same time as at the present. February set in with 48 hours gentle rain, followed with snow for about the same length of time, and now it is about 15 or 20 inches deep and increasing to a depth of five feet at the Ranch Post Office, so that the roads over the divide are impassable by team.

IRREGULAR MAILS.

Notwithstanding this our northern mail pushes through and makes pretty good time, through the energy of subconductor S. M. Anderson. But I am sorry to say our southern mails as we call them, the route our papers and Salt Lake mail matter should come, are sadly behind time. Only one issue of the SEMI-WEEKLY NEWS has been received this month, No. 103, of February 1st, No. 104, due last Saturday, and still another issue of Friday, 8th, due here to-day, are yet behind. We are told the cause is a failure to connect at Shoonsburg Hill, which has occurred twice or three times within a week. It appears the carrier from Toquerville brings the mail sack to the foot of the hill. If the carrier from Kanab is there at the top, the mail sacks are exchanged by means of a wire extending from top to bottom. But in case he is not there, the "Toker" man goes back with the same sack he brought and thus the mails are delayed, which we very much regret as the NEWS is looked for with great interest.

IN HIGH SPIRITS.

Our farmers are rejoicing in the hope of plenty of water for irrigating their crops next summer and we are all anticipating a good season for fruit, as the cold weather will keep it back, we hope, till out of danger of being killed by the frost.

SUNDRIES.

The weather was remarkably fine during last fall and up till New Year's. Several new brick buildings have been going up, and are nearing completion.

Our Sabbath schools and meetings are well attended; also our day school under the management of Prof. A. W. Brown, who is a very good teacher.

The people of this ward have been very much interested in the lectures of Brother J. A. Little, on the "Conquest of Mexico," and by A. W. Brown on the Battles of the Revolutionary War, between Great Britain and the United States of America.

Yours as ever, SIDE-ODIO.

JULE FISHER'S RESCUE.

It had been an unusually severe winter, even for northern Aroostook. Snowfall had succeeded snowfall, with no interval that could really be called "thaw," till the "loggers" had finished their work; and as they came plodding home on snow-shoes, they all agreed that the snow lay from ten to twelve feet deep on a level in the woods.

No wonder, then, when the warm March sun came to shine upon it day after day, and the copious spring showers fell, there should have been a very unusual "flood," or freshet. Every one predicted that when the ice should break in the river there would be a grand spectacle, and danger, too, as well; and all waited with some anxiety for the "break" to come.

One morning we at the village were awakened by a deep roaring, booming, crashing noise, and sprang from our beds, crying:

"The ice has broken up! The ice is running out!"

In hardly more time than it takes to tell it, we were dressed and at the back windows, which looked down upon the river. It was indeed a grand sight!

Huge cakes of ice of every shape and size were driving, tumbling, crashing past, as if in a mad race with each other. The river, filled to overflowing, seemed in angry haste to hurl its icy burden down the falls below.

But after a few days the river ran clear, save for the occasional breaking of some "jam" above. Along the margin of the broad stream, however, there were here and there slight indentures, or notches, in the banks, where the ice had escaped the made rush of waters, and still clung in considerable patches.

It was on one of these still undisturbed patches that "Jule" Fisher, a rough boy of 14, with several of his equally rough comrades, was playing on the lovely morning upon which my story opens.

The lads were not the sons of the steady, intelligent, church-going inhabitants of this quiet northern hamlet, but were the sons of "lumbermen," "river-drivers" and "shingle-shavers." For some time they had been having boisterous sport, venturing out upon the extreme edges of the ice, and with long poles pushing about the stray cakes which occasionally came within their reach.

At length they grew tired of this, and began to jump upon ticklish points of ice; and as these began to crack and show signs of breaking away, the boys would run, with wild whoops, back to shore, the very danger seeming to add to their enjoyment. Then, with poles and "prys," they would work upon the cracking mass until it floated clear and went whirling down the rapid current.

"Ahoy, boys!" called Jule, who was seemingly their leader. "Up yender's a big cake that only wants a shove to float to the association as you could see from the report of Tooele in the last Territorial Beekeeper's Convention, held in your city last October. The election resulted as follows: President T. W. Lee; First Vice-President A. G. Fraser; Second Vice-Ppesident. Jno. McLaws; Secretary, Jno Dunn, Treasurer, Chas. Lindholm. The newest wrinkle in serving raw oysters is to surround them with what is called sea-moss, made by spinach, which hides the fine chopped ice in which the oysters are imbedded.

Captain Paul Boynton, heretofore the lone voyager, is to be married in Chicago on the evening of the 14th inst. to Miss Maggie Connolly, daughter of Mr. Cornelius Connolly of Chicago.

Fish called the capitone is said to be the "roast beef of Naples," and, writes a correspondent. "disgusting dish as it is, the gourmet, however poor, will pawn his coat or mattress to obtain it."

Campanini has suddenly failed in voice several times during his western tour and in Chicago the curtain had to be lowered in the middle of an act because he was unable to sing a difficult passage.

It is related of a Chicago young woman and a Chinese lady that on being introduced they looked at each other's feet and then both fainted dead away, the former from mortification and the latter from fright.

General Fitz-John Porter when a student at Exeter Academy was a fine scholar, the best swimmer, marble-player, and athlete in the school. None had a higher reputation for honor, integrity and character than he.

Lettuce and cheese now go together at fashionable dinner parties at which Anglo-mania manifests itself, and it is said by those who have never been abroad, or who are ignorant of Philadelphia gastronomic customs, to be a new idea.

Mr. W. Steinitz, once the champion chess player of the world, has failed in all his attempts to get up a match here with Zukertort, the present champion. He thinks of making his home permanently in New York, and of starting a first class magazine devoted to chess.

A different kind of bread came with every course of dinner given in this city the other night by Mr. George W. Childs to the Prince of Plesse, and the terrapin was served in plates representing turtle backs "scooped out," as they say in in New England.

Ex-Governor Butler has a profound disregard for petitions. "You could get in Massachusetts 10,000 men to sign a petition to have me hanged, he says, "and half the number would sign a petition to have themselves hanged without knowing what they were doing."

The Hon. J. B. Grinnell, for whom the town of Grinnell, Iowa, was named, recently said: "In Grinnell there are no saloons, and no one has been sent to jail, to the poor-house or to the penitentiary for twenty-five years. We can stand a cyclone occasionally if you will keep whiskey away from us.

O. A. Hickok received a hard blow last fall when his then king of the trotting track, St. Julien, was defeated by the five-year-old Jay-Eye-See. Hickok has been recruiting at Honolulu. He informs the Turf, Field and Farm that his horses are doing well and that he will come east with them in April.

The last report of the New Zealand Agricultural Society reveals that its managers have found it necessary to resort to the wholesale use of poison in order to prevent their crops from being entirely destroyed by rabbits. During the three years which ended in October last more than 500,000 pounds of poisoned oats were scattered over the company's estates, with the result that nearly three millions of skins were picked up and brought to market.

At Nimes, in France, has been found a block of mosaic masonry twelve metres in extent, representing a Roman emperor enthroned with a woman at his side, and surrounded by a group of slaves and a warrior wearing a helmet. Two men before him are leading a lion and a wild boar. The colors are as fresh as if applied yesterday, and the pavement is in a state of perfect preservation. Few specimens so sound as it is exist in museums. The market value is estimated to be at least $200,000.

At Jonkoping, Sweden, is the oldest and largest match factory in the world. The wood from which the present kind of matches are made is taken from the adjacent forests, which are divided into fifty sections. Every year one section is cut and then replanted with young trees. Millions of matches are turned out each day. Some idea of where they all go to may be obtained from the statement that there are at least 280,000,000 of matches burned each day in the United States, or an average of five matches a day for each person.

A small cavalcade of soldiers have recently arrived at St Petersburg after eleven days' ride ride from Nijni Novgorod. The party consisted of four officers and fifteen men of the Orenburg Cossacks, with their horses and three pack horses. In Moscow they were detained for a day by the kindness of the Grand Duke Nicholas and his friends. Another day was lost through the inclemency of the weather and it may therefore be said that the distance of nearly 1,000 miles was made in nine days. On their arrival the condition of both men and horses was found to be highly satisfactory.

ELY'S CREAM BALM effectually cleanses the head of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the nasal passages from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores sense of taste and smell. APPLIED with the FINGER. 20c Thousands on the Pacific slope testify to its priceless value.
