

Stoddard, arrived in Brooklyn today, and visited his daughter at the Raymond street jail. He remained three hours with her in her cell. He had not seen her before for six years, and said she was very much changed. A Brooklyn paper publishes a lengthy interview with Kate, but nothing new is developed.

BALTIMORE.—Dr. Mary Walker, arrested here to-day for appearing in men's clothing, was soon released.

SAN FRANCISCO, 23.—Spoon Sanford was shot last night at a house in Howard street, by Charles Bellevue, and wounded in the breast, it is believed mortally. Bellevue keeps a boarding house, and Sanford and a young man named Stone were boarders in the house. Bellevue became jealous of his wife, and went to the room of the young men for the purpose of talking with them. He was refused admission, when he broke open the door. Stone seized a gun and punched Bellevue in the face with the weapon, and drove him into the hall, when Sanford took hold of him and forced him down stairs. At that point Bellevue drew a derringer and shot Sanford in the left breast. An officer was attracted to the spot by the sound of the pistol, and arrested Bellevue and took him to prison. Sanford was attended by a surgeon, and the bullet was extracted from his back.

FOREIGN.

BAYONNE, 22.—News has been received here, through the Carlists, concerning the insurrection at Carthage, which throws additional light on the defection of the Spanish squadron in that port, which was made the subject of a government decree and a vote in the Cortes yesterday. The insurgents, after gaining control of the city, seized Castillo de los Galoras, a strong fort on the west side of the harbor, less than a thousand yards from the entrance, which it commands completely. This gave them control of the two lower batteries on shore, at the mouth of the harbor. They hoisted the red flag on the communité, and over the fortifications, and summoned the squadron lying in the harbor to surrender. The crews were in sympathy with the insurgents and the vessels fell into their hands without opposition. The chief command of the squadron is now entrusted to Posas, who led the insurrection in the naval arsenal at Ferrolin, in the province of Corunna, some months ago. The vessels thus taken by the insurgents are the Victoria, ironclad, 24 guns, the Numania, ironclad, 25 guns, the Tetuan, ironclad, 40 guns, the Almanza, a screw frigate, 48 guns, and the steamers Fernando El Catolico, Ferriolan and Blasco Garay, not classified. The four vessels first named are among the finest in the Spanish navy.

MADRID, 22.—It is reported that an Iberian regiment, which the Government dispatched to Carthage to aid in quelling Ostrabia there, has mutinied and joined the insurgents in a body. At Vittoria there are seven thousand republican troops in a complete state of demoralization and disorganization. Several of the municipal officers have been murdered by the soldiers of the republican troops at Cirangin, who surrendered to the Carlists on condition that their lives should be spared. In spite of the terms of surrender, the Carlists shot a number of them after they had delivered up their arms. Don Alphonso has sent to the Spanish Government a formal proposition for an arrangement for an exchange of prisoners.

The declaration of independence at Alicante was brought about by the arrival in the harbor of the insurgent iron-clad Victoria, from Carthage. She soon afterwards sailed, when the city returned to its loyalty to the national government. The Governor of Alicante has been arrested, and will be tried by court-martial for treason.

LONDON.—The weather throughout England is favorable to the crops; thermometer 85.

—They do things differently in China. There, if a young man hits his father the slightest blow in anger, the former has his head chopped off immediately.

—Visitor to mamma: "I have some sad news for you, my dear; your doctor, Mr. Crumstone, died this morning." Jimmy (one of six): "Then we shan't have any more babies, ma, shall we?"

PIOCHE NOTES.

From the Record of July 19—

Yesterday was decidedly the hottest day of the season. At noon, in the shade the mercury ran up to 101.

This county institution [jail] is brim full. The major portion of the number are awaiting the action of the Grand Jury on charges of felony. It is not unlikely that a few of them may know by Monday whether they are to be indicted. During such unprecedentedly hot weather it must be very unpleasant for so many persons to occupy such a small prison.

A savage dog tied in front of a house in the rear of Cedar street day before yesterday severely bit a small boy who thoughtlessly came within reach of the animal. The father of the boy went where the dog was and told his master that he intended to kill the brute. This was objected to at first, but finally the owner of the dog yielded the point and the animal was put to death.

It was again reported yesterday that a compromise had been made by which all differences between the Raymond & Ely, the Hermes and the Kentucky had been settled. We were unable to trace the rumor to any reliable source, in fact, by inquiring of gentlemen most likely to be correctly informed, we learned that nothing of the kind had been done.

After mature reflection the proprietors of the Record have concluded to remove the office far out on Lacour street, directly opposite the County Hospital. The new locality has the advantage of being beyond the danger of destruction by fire in an adjoining building. We cannot, however, without regret, leave the spot upon which the Record has been published for over two years—first as a weekly, and successively as a semi-weekly, tri-weekly and daily paper. Yet the hazard of a conflagration is too great while we retain our office in the heart of the city, and therefore we must bid adieu to our old office and take up new quarters. In consequence of the time required to adjust our presses, type, etc., in the new office, we are constrained to defer the issue of our usual weekly mining review. The business office of the Record will, for the present, remain where it now is, and those having business to transact will be accommodated by applying at the old stand, Upper Main street.

In the face of all that has been said of the shocking filthy condition of the city, and although the temperature is high and likely to remain so for some weeks to come, nothing has been done towards removing the huge piles of garbage and offal which offend the sight and threaten to bring upon us the horrors of pestilence. This is the particular season when man is more than at any other time, predisposed to disease, and yet the people stand mutely and calmly, making no effort towards cleansing the streets and alleys, which are almost impassable owing to their detestable condition. The Grand Jury is now in session, and to that body aggrieved parties ought to apply for redress. The health of the city requires that steps be taken for cleansing the streets and removing refuse and offensive matter out into the valley, where it would be harmless.

The following are from the Record of July 20—

Yesterday afternoon James Belinger, the driver of one of Pritchard's Fast Freight teams, was kicked by a mule, cutting the first finger of the left hand entirely off and breaking the big finger. He was also kicked in the side. Dr. Bishop was called and attended to his wounds. The man will be unable to continue in service, and another driver had to be found until he has sufficiently recovered to resume work.

The Finance Committee received $1,108.50 in subscriptions for celebrating the anniversary of American Independence. The following bills were allowed: Pioche Brass Band, $350; J. Myers & Bro., $31; Holland & Booth, $100; Coschina & Giustin, $46.50; Polleys & Carman, $10; Ephraim & Jameson, $10.75; J. Halpin & Co., $250; S. W. de Lacy, $265.40; L. C. Scott, $80; J. Cohn, $4.25; M. M. Whyland, $10.50; C. Weiderhold, $2; J. D. Collins, $50; Pioneer stable, $20—Total $982.90.

Bills to the amount of $361.60 were rejected, and there being $125.60 remaining, the committee divided that amount equally between the Hose Company and the Hook & Ladder Company.

Late yesterday afternoon, Mr. Sultan, of the firm of Jacobs & Sultan, received a brief note from the foreman of the Sultan mine at Bristol, stating that they had just made a strike of great importance in the mine, having broken into a cave or cavern, apparently of vast extent, the walls of which appeared to be a solid mass of silver ore. Mr. Sultan promptly obtained a buggy and left for Bristol. About the same time, at the depth of two hundred and thirty-two feet, the shaft of the Havana mine in this camp encountered a large body of ore (the extent of which is yet unknown) of great richness. From present appearances our Mining Review next week, promises to be unusually interesting.

FOREIGN NOTES.

During the last twelve months not less than fifteen army officers in the British service have been killed in hunting tigers.

The Scotch Conservatives are about to start a daily paper in Glasgow, and £70,000 is said to have been subscribed for the purpose.

To "abstain from writing further, at any rate for some time to come," is the candid advice which the Saturday Review gives Mr. Joaquin Miller.

A new co-operative turn has been taken in English journalism. A combination of eight provincial newspapers has just arranged for the publication, simultaneously, of a tale by the author of "Lady Audley's Secret."

The London Chronicle has been bought by a company for £30,000, and will be made more metropolitan and less suburban than it has hitherto been. The paper is a daily, and contains a wonderful array of advertisements of the "wanted" order.

A lady traveling in Europe writes: "A German professor's wife will appear at her ease in her wedding dress fifteen or twenty years old, and entertain you in her own language, while you sit perfectly ignorant of the language of the country where you are visiting."

Another member of the House of Peers, following the example of the Duke of Somerset and Earl Russell, is about to publish a book on the claims of Christianity. Viscount Stratford de Redcliffe has written a work with the title, "Why am I a Christian?"

The following curious advertisement appears in the London Athenaeum:

"A gentleman wishes to discover who was the author of an article on the 'Privileges of Women,' which appeared in the Retrospective Review, 1842. He would, if necessary, reward any one who might be able to produce proof."

The poet Manzoni left a great mass of notes for a projected history of the French revolution, which he intended to draw into parallel with the Italian revolution of 1848. Manzoni was very fastidious about his style, and would pass whole days in seeking for a word or form of expression which would best render his meaning.

TIME TO CUT CLOVER FOR HAY. —Opinions of agriculturists being at variance as to the proper time to cut clover for hay, Profs. Heiden and Voigt instituted a series of experiments to determine this point. Equal portions of a field were cut on the 9th, 17th, and 24th of July, at the periods respectively of budding, early blossom, and full bloom. The grass and resulting hay were carefully weighed, and analyses made. Their conclusions were, that clover has less value as provender when cut late, on account of the diminution of the amount of nutritious nitrogenous matter and the increase of cellulose or woody substance; and that an actual increase of nutriment in the crop from early blossom to full bloom does not take place. They conclude, therefore, that it is best to cut clover in early blossom. Furthermore, by reason of the woodiness of old clover, the nutriment it contains cannot be as readily extracted by the animal, so that it is not practically as valuable as its analysis would indicate.

—Moribund citizens of Lyons, France, are officially notified that they must be buried before 7 o'clock a.m.

—I'm not getting married so much as I was," is the latest way of saying "No" to an impassioned suitor.

—Hindoo women own $500,000,000 worth of ornaments. They must have jewelry, even if they wear nothing else.

—A feminine lawyer has just won her first case in Chicago. The strong points in her plea before the jury were youth and beauty.

—Three-fourths of the women of Boston dare not sneeze with their mouths open, owing to their inability to hold on to their teeth.

—The Memphis policemen are trying to get a "back salary grab." They have not been paid off for five months.

—The Savannah Advertiser speaks of "the short prong of the Atlanta Herald editorial trident, the restless and supersensitive Mr. Abrams."

—"A cackling old newspaper fowl" is the epithet applied by one Sacramento editor to another in a recent argument.

—The Springfield (Mass.) Republican pronounces Vice-President Wilson "a paralytic invalid, to whom life is of most uncertain duration."

—It is announced that a Cincinnati girl of eighteen has had 6,000 photographs of herself taken. Whereupon an exchange says: "One wouldn't suppose she would have had the 'face' to do it."

—A young man in Louisville is anxious to find a purchaser for a lot of wedding cards. His girl declined to participate after they were printed, so he will sell them at a reasonable discount.

—Emma A. Dodge almost despairs of her sex because women cannot express their wishes in concise, accurate and business-like terms, half so easily as men.

—Alphonso, the dandy clerk of Brooklyn, says he has yet to see the first woman come into the dry goods store where he is employed who knows just what she wants.

—Twenty-eight different kinds of "bitters" sold in Rhode Island for "strict medicinal use" are undergoing analysis by the State chemist from an excise point of view.

—Mechanicsville, N. Y., is trying to make rain by an artificial process. There are only one or two good rain petitioners in town, and they lack judgment and flood the country.

—The New York Commercial Advertiser consoles itself with the reflection that there is a great deal of phosphorus in the flies served up at the restaurants, and that phosphorus is brain food.

—Madame Seebach was recently fined 100 florins, in Pesth, for attempting to secure gratuitous advertising by falsely reporting that she had had stolen from her 1,000 francs worth of jewelry.

—A remarkably dirty man stopped in front of a small boy sitting on a fence, expecting to have some fun by chaffing him. He said: "How much do you weigh?" The answer was, "Well, about as much as you would if you were washed."

—A little boy in Dover refusing to take a pill, his mother placed it in a piece of preserved pear and gave it to him. In a few minutes she said: "Tom, have you eaten the pear?" He said, "Yes, mother, all but the seed."

—Not long ago, in the Court of Appeals, a certain lawyer, of Celtic extraction, while arguing with earnestness his case, stated a point, and then proceeded: "And if the Court please, ef I am wrong in this, I have another point that is equally conclusive."

—The Philadelphia Age aptly remarks that a "maiden speech" was once a mere figure of speech for the first effort of a young lawyer or a new Congressman. But now it has become a reality, and the fair sex perplex Courts and startle audiences with their "maiden efforts."

—A Pittsburg man had his head shaved before he filled his hat with bricks, all because he promised his better-half that he would not drink a drop while he had a hair on his head. This shows that when a Pittsburger makes a solemn promise he always keeps it.

—"Here we are now, within a quarter of a mile of land," was the joyful announcement made by the captain of an ocean steamer to his grumbling passengers.

"Where? Which way is it?" were the eager exclamations which followed.

—Horace F. Clark, President of the U. P. R. R., died literally from overwork. His business hours have been from nine in the morning of one day to two in the afternoon the day following. That sort of toil brought him ten millions of dollars and a funeral at the prime of life.

—A Houston (Texas) exchange states that a crowd of jayhawkers tried to start a disturbance in a church in that city, whereupon the preacher raised up a shot-gun and said: "William Dello, sit down, or I will make it painful for you." William sat down, and was as quiet as a lamb. That preacher evidently belonged to the church militant.

—At St. Petersburg, the Princess Dagmar having said to the Shah, by way of civility, that his diamonds were exceedingly beautiful, he patted her on the shoulders, and, with an abrupt gallantry which I should have thought not quite of the Oriental pattern, replied, "Not nearly so beautiful as your neck!"—New York Times' Letter.

—Some years since Mary Harris shot and killed a man named Burroughs, in the Treasury Department at Washington. She was tried and acquitted on account of emotional insanity and sent to an asylum. Soon after she was liberated and returned to an appointment in one of the departments. About two months ago she showed signs of insanity again and was sent to an asylum to be cured. A few days since she escaped and her whereabouts is unknown, though it is certain she is still in the Federal metropolis.—Ex.

—Fashionable Christianity in London is growing to be very amusing. People are now invited to prayer-meetings precisely as they are invited to a social soiree or an evening party. The Newcastle Chronicle prints, with the exception of names, dates and places, the following transcript of a card which it has received: "Mr. and Miss — propose (D.V.) to hold a Bible reading on — evening, at half-past 7 o'clock, when the company of friends is requested. Subject—'Morning Dress.'" —The Albany Express is responsible for the story of a four and a half feet fellow who courted a six feet girl in that city, and was laughed at so much by people when he was out promenading that he finally made up his mind to desert the fair one, and told her so. She promptly seized the little fellow, placed him over her knee, and administered a powerful parental castigation. The police were attracted by the noise, and arrested the young woman.

—During the trial of a famous divorce case recently tried in Philadelphia, one of the lawyers in his argument said something about a witness named Kelly, when that individual sang out: "You're a liar." Kelly was arraigned for contempt of court, until his counsel ingeniously explained that Kelly meant no contempt of court, but that he was so carried away by the sweet dulcet strains of Mr. Cassidy's voice that he involuntarily exclaimed, "You're a lyre!" thereby intending to compare Mr. Cassidy to that delightful Irish musical instrument.—National Independent.

—In his annual report of common schools Prof. Wickersham says: "There are multitudes idly waiting for vacant clerkships and unfilled offices, while mechanical work, more honorable and more remunerative, invites on all sides the efforts of willing hands. It is a fact as startling as it is significant that of 17,000 criminals in the United States in 1868, 97 per cent. of them had never learned a trade. Out of 240 convicts received at the Eastern Penitentiary last year only twelve had been apprenticed and served their time." Now, boys, if you wish to keep outside of gaol, learn a trade and work at it.
