PERMANENCY OF THE GREAT LATTER=DAY WORK

Address by

ELDER JOHN HENRY SMITH.

Of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, in the Tabernacle, Salt Lake City, Friday, October 6, 1905.

ing with you in the commencement of this conference. At the April conference I had been absent in Mexico and did not reach here until the last session. One year ago I was considerably "under the weather" and did not have part with you in the conference at that time. It has been a pleasure to me this morning to hear the songs of Zion, and listen to the voices of our brethren in instructions, reporting the conditions attendant upon the labors of the Elders of the Church, and in the testimonies that have been borne concerning your delity and faith in the work that our father has established in the world, with the promise that it should never be thrown down nor given to another people. That promise has found lodgment, I believe, in your hearts and has re-mained with you in the midst of many trying experiences, and will in the furemain, imparting hope and th which shall cause you to possess the fortitude and faith necessary to fulfil the missions whereunto you have been called by the Almighty. To me, it is ever a joy to remember those memorable words, and wherever I have found myself, whether at home or abroad, whether in your companion-ship, under the sound of your voices, abroad, whether a sound of your voices, or in the association and companionship of men of the world, the same joy and satisfaction has welled up in my soul as the remembrance of these words has come up in my mind. The Latterday Saints have no cause for concern so far as the work itself is concerned, it is a heritage of the Lord. It has been sent into the world to fulfil a great purpose, and they to whom the message of glad tidings has come are under the obligation to fulfil their part to the best of their ability, based upon the requirement that he who is warned shall warn his neighbor. In this connection warn his neighbor. In this connection we remember that there are few men in this congregation but what have performed this sacred duty with fidelity and faith. Consigning their families to the mercies of the Lord, they have entered the field, in almost every land and clime, and have sought to free themselves from that responsibility which attaches to the acceptance of the Gospel, in heralding the same among their fellow creatures, that when they stand at the bar of the Great Judge and the books are opened, and they are judged out of the books from the things with the found that in written therein, it will be found that in fulfillment of the sacred obligation and the discharge of this requirement, their names are registered there, and that fi-delity and faith, the love of our Father delity and faith, the love of our Father and of His children, characterized their lives. To this end, the gray-haired ones who sit under the sound of my voice upon this occasion have ministered with that determination, that patriotism, and that love that only a love of ism, and that love that only a love of the Supreme Being and an absolute belief in the sacred mission entrusted to their care could cause them to exhibit. When I look upon the faces of these mothers and these wives who are congregated here today. I remember too, that they have been in no degree less herole, or less lacking in that abiding faith, and that undying determination in with the work to which they have been called along with their hus-bands, fathers or brothers. They also have regarded it as among the sacred heritages of the human race, and it has been their determination that while husband or father was in the field car-rying the glad tidings of great joy to the children of men, their homes and their firesides should be guarded from the attacks of the enemy, and their the attacks of the enemy, and their children should be nurtured in the faith which is dear to themselves. And while, perchance, in some instances, these children may not have been as fully equipped in the faith as they should be, as has been intimated in the remarks of presiding brethren this morning, the responses that have been made by the younger members of the Church bear witness to the heroism of their mothers, the faith of their fath-ers, and the honesty and Integrity possessed by themselves. MISSIONARY HEROES.

My brethren and sisters, I rejoice to be numbered with a people such as you are. I rejoice to recognize the fact that you have come from many lands and climes, and that you abandoned those lands for the sake of the truth. I have pleasure in the fact that it has been my privilege, in connection with my brethren, to meet you in those lands, to bear witness of the restoration of the Gospel in its fulness and purity, to declared that the Prophet of this latterday dispensation did gaze upon the face. be numbered with a people such as you day dispensation did gaze upon the face of the Father and the Son; and we bear that witness in harmony with the declaration that went forth in a former day that an angel of the Lord should fly through the midst of heaven having the Everlasting Gospel to preach to the Everlasting Gospel to preach to them that dwell upon the earth, to every nation, to every kindred, to every longue, and to every people. I have re-loiced in the faithfulness you have disin the fulfilment of your sacred in the receipt of that warning,

In the carrying of these glad tidings, and in meeting the obligation in the manly and womanly way in which it has been done by the heroes and heromes who have builded these western commonwealths and have confronted the trials and tribulations incident to the establishment of homes and the upbuilding of many sections of our land. As I look upon the faces of men who are sitting before me. I see those who have sacrificed every interest in the world for the cause which to their hearts was most dear, and I recognize that in their dears and the cause which to their hearts was most dear, and I recognize that in their dears that the cause which the cause which the cause which the cause that the cause was most dear that the cause which the cause wh hearts was most dear, and I recognize that in their doing this, it was not to please President Young, it was not to please President John Taylor, it was not to please President Wilford Wood-ruff, it was not to please President Lorenzo Snow, it was not to please President Joseph F. Smith and his associaties, but it was to satisfy their own consciences and to serve that Being who called and to serve that Being who called them by the voice of His Spirit to an understanding of the truth, and had written it in their souls that the most sacred duty which mortal could disreclamation of the human race, t establish in them faith and an under-standing of the gospel and to minister in the temporal concerns of this life, that their fellows might possess the blessines and comforts of the present and have joy and satisfaction therein.

GOSPEL TO RENOVATE THE WORLD. The gospel we have embraced is the truth. It came from the Master. It has been sent to renovate the world, to re-establish among mankind the living faith which had so largely departed from the breasts of the human family, and to bring them to a comprehension of the responsibilities they owe to the Divine Master. Nothing can stay its progress. You and I may fall by the wayside; we may lack the fortitude and faith to endure and fulfil our part; but the work itself has gone on from the day the announcement was on from the day the announcement was made of the administration of heavenly beings, and it will continue in its on-

At the Seventy-Sixth Semi-Annual Conference of the Church

I am pleased with the privilege of be- ward march until every nation, kindred, tongue, and people throughout the uni-verse shall hear the glad tidings of great joy and have the privilege of ac-cepting or rejecting the same in the ex-ercise of the agency our Father has given to them. I trust, that in the fulfilment of our duties, in the discharge of the great obligations that are ours, our hearts and minds will never our hearts and minds will never waver. It can never be anticipated that this work shall be made popular with the human family at large. It can not be expected that its mission will be accomplished without opposition. It must meet adverse elements, it must overcome obstacles. it must secure the ground step by step, without fear and without favor. honoring our heavenly Father, and maintaining the dignity of that Priest-hood God has given to us—the grandest heritage that was ever given to the children of men in any day and age of the world.

I pray that the blessings of the Gos-pel may abound with you in the future as in the past; that, true to the obligations that are yours, in every place and in every station, among all men, no matter who or where they may be, you may know where you stand, and, knowing where you stand, you may have the faith and the fortitude to express your views and your sentiments. It has been my experience thus far in life that there is nothing in connection with this work for which any man in the world need blush. There has been no revela-tion given to the Prophet for which we should have the least feeling of regret or concern. There is nothing within these statute books given by our heavthese statute books given by our heavenly Father for which I, as one of His sons, need blush. On the contrary, I honor Him for giving the same, and purpose in the fulfilment of life's mission, If He will give me faith and fortitude so to do, to raise my voice in their defense, and to stand for the advancement and spreading of this work. their defense, and to stand for the advancement and spreading of this work, as I know it came from Him. The same is true not only in regard to our membership in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, but it is true in regard to our citizenship in the republic of the United States. No man of standing in this Church has ever in my presence given utterance to a word that would cause me, in any sense of the word, to be ashamed of my citizenship in this glorious land; on the contrary, the sentiment and feeling that has ever come from the lips of the men with whom it has been my privilege to mingle has been to preserve our liege to mingle has been to preserve our constitutional liberties, and accord the same rights to every other man, whethsame rights to every other man, whether he be Jew, Pagan, Christian, Mohammeden, or infidel. So long as he interferes not with the rights and liberties of other men, his liberties should be guarded, his rights should be preserved, and he should be honored in the exercise thereof, and his rights maintained justly and properly. Standing before you with these sentiments in my heart. I trust that we will continue to main ain the highest citizenship it my heart, I trust that we will continue to main hin the highest citizenship it is possible for mortals to do; and that we shall stand for our own liberties, that we shall maintain them to the best of our ability, be subservient to every principle that is right, and concede nothing that is wrong, but stand by the truth, honoring the Lord, fulfiling our obligations preaching the principle. ing our obligations, preaching the principles of righteousness to the children of men, and pointing the way of life to every man in whose company it may be our privilege to come.

I bear you my testimony to the truth of the Gospel, and the mission of Joseph Smith; to the mission of his associates that stood around him and were true to him; to the mission of Brigham Young, who was faithful, earnest, devoted and of a heroic mold, and who, had he not been of such type, would have falled in the great mission that was given to him; honoring and esteeming in his life's ministry that heroic man whose blood mingled with the prophet in Cathage jall, John Taylor; true to that humble and earnest advo-

And I will not in any degree slacken in my allegiance and respect for the man who stands at our head today. No truer man ever breathed the breath of life. No man has ever been more willing to stand up for the principles of justice and mercy. No man has been more loyal in preaching the principles of his faith. No man is more ready today to discharge that high responsibility and fulfil every obligation. ### SCIENTFIC MISCELLANY.

If the earth is to be destroyed by are, as predicted in the Second Epistle of St. Peter, what is to cause the fire? Dr. J. E. Gore, the British astronomer, finds that no outburst of the sun from internal activity is likely to be suf-ficient, and it is to heat from collision that we must look. To collide with the nearest fixed star the sun must travel at its present rate for 80,000 years. The sun is speeding it miles per second toward Vega (Alpha Syrae), and it is possible that one of the dark bodies of space may approach from that di-rection, or even now be on the way, Dr. Gore calculates that such a body having 'the sun's mass and earth's density would shine by the sun's light as a ninth magnitude star on reaching a distance of 15,000 million miles. Moving at the sun's velocity, with gradual acceleration, it would approach to 6.000,000 miles in 10 years, when it would 6.000,000 miles in 10 years, when it would flash into naked eye view as a "new star" of fifth magnitude. In four years more it would be as near as Uranus, in another year, as hear as Jupiter, and far outshining both Jupiter and Venus. Then the earth's distance would be reached in 51 days, and the sun in eight days more, the speed having increased to 400 miles per second. The collision would be a collossal St. Pierre. Both sun and colliding body would be vaporized within an hour, and the stupendous heat would destroy most of the planets. If a direct course were the planets. If a direct course were kept, the strange body would not strike any planet. But the body might be smaller, and if of the earth's size could come nearer than Uranus before detection, giving only a few months' warning of disaster.

have dangerous bleeding from trifling wounds because there is no congulation. A French physician has cured the disease by injection of normal human or bovine serum. In one case, 25 days after the last injection, the pulling of a tooth brought only normal loss of bloot.

In reproducing "radiobes," the alleged living organisms of J. B. Burke, radium saits of varying degrees of activity have been found by W. A. Douglas Rudge, an English biologist, to be equally effective in causing the growths in gelatine. This suggested that the barlum of the radium preparations might be active, and he has tried pure barlum saits, easily producing radiobes might be active, and he has tried pure barium salts, easily producing radiobes with the soluble oxide, dioxide, chloride, bromide, lodide, nitrate, acetate, tartrate, or sulphovinate, but getting no results from the insoluble phosphate, carbonate, sulphate and borate uranium and thorium salts acted upon the gelatine, though yielding no growths. Experiment may be made very easily by pouring a little clear gelatine upon a glass slip, then dropping a tiny speck of the barium salt upon the gelatine, and covering with a thing glass under a microecope, with a half-inch lens, the growth is seen at once to shoot out, at first appearing like small bubbles, which dissolve within half an hour into a nebulous patch many times the size of the speck. of the speck.

In spectacular geology the Vavau volano in Samoa seems to have a place y itself. The crater is seven miles inby itself. The crater is seven miles in-land, and it forms lava mountains that are slowly carried great distances by the molten sea beneath, as many as five or six of these shifting mountain chains seeming to be now in existence. The mountains may have a length of four or five miles with a width of a quarter of a mile in places, and a height of 200 feet. height of 200 feet.

Noting the rapid change in motive power. Sir Alfred Hickman states that in his own works 24 valuable steam-engines have been replaced within a few years by electric motors driven by gasengines. This is estimated to have brought a saving in fuel alone of $37,500 a year. If the future motors are to be driven by explosion, he suggests the use of powder or dynamite, and predicts fame and fortune to the man harnessing dynamite for power.

The wheat of the island of Corsica is the chestnut, which, however, is rapidly passing, through the reckless destruction of the forests. The nuts are slowly dried over a wood fire and stored until required for grinding, when, the shells having been removed, they are crushed in a primitive manner by a millstone turned against a fixed stone by a wooden waterwheel. The cheaper grades of flour are made dirty-looking by fragments of shells, and contain 10 to 12 per cent of moisture. M. Comte, a French chemist, has lately found that chestnut flour and wheat flour are not very different in food value. The former contains about the same starch as the latter, more fat and cellulose, but only 7 to 9 per cent of nitrogenous substances in place of 12 to 16 in wheat flour. Chestnut flour has the disadvantages of attracting moisture and quick-ly moulding and of being very refrac-tory to the action of yeast.

A new insight into zoology has been gived by C. G. Schillings, the German naturalist whose work on the animals of Africa has made such a sensation. In ten years he has brought to Europe specimens of 25 species and varieties of these animals, including several new tenders and ward and account of the second of of these animals, including several new to science and as many as 40 specimens of lions and 36 leopards; but his greatest service to science has been rendered since February, 1903, in the taking of more than 2,000 photographs. In securing these remarkable pictures, 135 men have been sent out, using special cameras, with telephotographic lenses, flash-lights, and other modern appliances. The usual views show wild animals in unnatural captivity, but these represent the creatures in their natural surroundings, indulging in their charsurroundings, indulging in their characteristic activities, and giving hither-to undreamed of details of life in the jungle, swamp, stream and other haunts by day and by night.

The carriage that shall be dustless The carriage that shall be dustless as well as horseless is claimed to be a possibility. Oiling roads has proven a successful remedy for dust, but it gives annoyance almost as great as the nulsance prevented. This has led Mr. W. R. Cooper, an English investigator, to work in a new direction. The amount of dust seems to depend upon the shape of the tire and the shape and position of the tire and the shape and position ing these it is believed that the dust raised may be greatly lessened. raised may be greatly lessened.
