The machinery for the factory will commence arriving within the next 30 days, and work on the building site of the new factory will be almost midway between the towns of Idaho Falls and Iona. It is located about three and a half miles from the former town, on the St. Anthony branch of the Oregon Short Line. That railroad will build a spur from the factory, leaving the branch line about two miles from Idaho Falls. The factory will then be in the heart of one of the best agriwhere water is plentiful, and the soil is of the highest degree of excellence It is estimated that the product from 5,000 acres can be hauled to the factory

Manager Cutler also stated that the Manager Cutter also states that the Maho Sugar company, acting together, had secured the services of Mr. M. W. Ingalls, and he would act as consulting engineer for both companies, later in the year dividing his time between the three plants in Idaho, Garland and

When asked for an estimate of what the company would do for the first year, Mr. Cutler stated that this was altogether problematical. They will, of course, bend all their energies to turn out as much sugar as possible, as the bounty received from the state is to be one cent per pound on all sugar pro-duced during 1903, but next year it is reduced to one-half cent per pound. After that, it ceases altogether. The preliminary work of putting the soil in shape and educating the farmers will all fall on the first season, and this was doubtless the reason the legislature. had seen fit to give the largest bounty for that year. The general opinion is that while the Idaho treasury will be called upon for a snur sum the first year as the result of the bounty offer, the compensating advantages in the increased value of all property in Bingham county, Ida., where the factory is to be located, to say nothing of planting of such an enormous industry on Idaho soil, will vastly more than offset the outlay the treasury will be

Freedom for The Russians.

Czar Issues a Decree Granting Religious Liberty Throughout His Realm-Also Establishing a Measure of Local Self Government.

St. Petersburg, March 12.-The crar has issued a decree providing for freedom of religion throughout his dominions, establishing to some degree local self government and making other concessions to the village committees.

After referring to the efforts of his predecessors, particularly his father, to add to the welfare of the Russian people the czar announces his decision to grant freedom of religion to all his subjects who profess non-orthodox creeds, and to improve the conditions of village life and those of the local nobility and peasantry.

Among the measures outlined by the czar for the attainment of these ends is reform of the rural laws, which is to be effected with the advice of persons who possess the confidence of the people. The system of administration in the various governments and districts is to be examined by representatives of the different localities concerned with the view of effecting the necessary amend-

Measures are also to be taken to relieve the peasantry of the burdens of

The decree, which was issued in commemoration of the anniversary of the birthday of Alexander III, is considered to be the most significant act of state since the emancipation of the serfs. The public hall it as the proclamation of a new area, opening up bright prospects for the early improvement of Russian internal administration.

THE TEXT OF THE DECREE IS AS FOLLOWS

"On ascending the throne of our ancestors by the providence of God we made a solemn vow before the Almighty and our conscience to sacredly guard the centuries-old pillars of Russian power and to dedicate our life to the service of our beloved fatherland in indefatigable solicitude for our subjects. We chose, in order to assure the well-being of our people, the way indicated by the memorable deeds of our predecessors, especially our never-to-be-forgotten father. God pleased to interrupt the deeds of our father by his early death and thus laid on us the sacred duty of completing the consolidation of order and truth begun by him in conformity with the exigencies of national life The troubles agitating our country, which to our deep regret have partly been sown by designs hostile to the state and partly engendered by doctrines foreign to Russian life, hinder the general work of ameliorating the well-being of our people. These troubles confuse the public mind, remove the people from productive labor and often ruin families dear to our heart and young energies among high and low, necessary to the internal development of the country. In demanding the fulfillment of this, our will, while remaining strongly opposed to any violation of the normal course of national life and having confidence that all will loyally discharge their local duties, we are irrevocably decided to satisfy the needs for which the state has become ripe and have deemed it expedient to strengthen and decree the undeviating observance of the principles of tolerance laid down by the fundamental laws of the Russian empire, which, recognizing the orthodox church as the ruling one, to grant to all of our subjects of other religions and to foreign persuasions freedom of creed and worship in accordance with other rights and we are further resolved to continue the active carrying out of measures for the improvement of the material position of the orthodox rule clergy while enabling them to take a larger share in intellectual and public life.

"In accordance with impending measures for the consolidation of the national economy the efforts of the state credit institutions and especially the nobles and peasants' bank to be devoted to strengthening the welfare and fundamental pillars of Russian village life and that of the local nobility and peasantry. These principles marked out by us for the revision of the laws of the rural population are, when formulated, to be referred to the provincial government councils, so that with the assistance of persons enjoying the public's confidence they may be further developed and adapted to the special conditions of individual localities. In this work the fundamental principle of the inviolability of communal property is to be maintained, while at the same time means are to be found to render it easier for the individual to sever connections with the community to which he belongs if he so desires.

"Without delay measures must be taken to release the peasants from the present burdensome liability of forced labor.

"Thorough reform is to be effected in the provincial governments and district administrations by the local representatives while attention will be devoted to securing closer co-operation between the communal authorities and parochial trustees of the orthodox churches wherever possible.

"Calling upon all our subjects to co-operate in strengthening the moral foundations of family, school and public life under which alone the well-being of the people and the confidence of every one in the stability of his rights can develop, we command our ministers and chief officials concerned in this matter to submit to us their views regarding the execution of our intentions."

Although the Jewish faith is not specifically mentioned in the czar's decree it is believed that the liberty granted to "all creeds" is intended to include the

LAST DAY OF THE LEGISLATURE

Clocks of the Lawmakers Will Be Stopped in Both Senate and House Tonight at Five Minutes to Twelve and Remain Stopped Until Saturday Midnight.

This is the sixtleth day of the Legislature. According to the Constitution that is the full limit of the term. It can be no longer; and yet paradoxically it will be longer. At 11:45 tonight the clocks of the senate and house will be stopped and remain stopped until Saturday midnight at least. Perhaps they will be like the timepiece in the song of "Grandfather's Clock"-stopped never to go again. Saturday mid. night is the time the Legisature ex- the final adjournment comes.
