BREVITIES.

The best substitute for silver-gold.
The Harpers employ over a hundred women.
The government has closed a contract for building soldiers' barracks, at Omaha, at a cost of $177,000.
A Dublin paper says that over 3,000 liberal voters are expected to be added to the register in that city.
An author has easy times in the world; whenever he gets out of money, all he has to do is to write for more.
The Paris Post-office has fifty-five branch offices in the city, and five hundred and forty-three boxes. There are seven deliveries daily.
C. P. Bean, of Irasburg, Vermont, has ten hives of bees, all being the product of one hive this season, and they have 500 lbs. of honey.
One-third of the railroad spikes made in the United States are turned out at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Three machines are in use, which produce 3,000 to 5,000 spikes an hour each.
There are no circumstances, however unfortunate, that clever people do not extract some advantage from, and none, however fortunate, that the imprudent cannot turn to their own prejudice.
Switzerland is not behind in the general armament question; for recently about 105,000 breech-loading rifles have been added to her stock, and the general expenditure for war material reached the sum of $875,000 up to last June.
Mr. Cochrane, of Canada, has lately received an invoice of English cattle, among which is a Durham heifer for which the sum of $5,000 was paid, on the stipulation that she should be removed from England and never permitted to return.
A young lady, when invited to partake of the pudding, replied, "No, many thanks, my dear madam. By no manner of means. I have already indulged the clamorous calls of a craving appetite, until a manifest sense of internal fullness admonishes my stay; my deficiency is entirely and satisfactorily satisfied."
There are those that say happiness is nothing; that one should not care or look for it. When you hear such a sentiment expressed, know that the speaker is saying what in his inmost soul he disbelieves. While nobody believes that happiness is the only object to be sought in life, there is not that human being who, while he lives, says what he may, is not seeking it either openly or unacknowledged to himself.
One day Mr. Digby Seymour, the celebrated counsel, had been cross-examining a young woman at considerable length upon the age of a person with whom she professed herself well acquainted. He asked her: "How old do you take me to be?" and was considerably dumfounded by her replying, to the universal amusement of a crowded court, "From your appearance six; from your question, sixteen, sir."
Some suppose that every learned man is an educated man. No such thing. The man is educated who knows himself, and takes accurate common sense views of men and things around him. Some very learned men are the greatest fools in the world; the reason is they are not educated men. Learning is only the means, not the end; its value consists in giving the means of acquiring the use of that which, properly managed, enlightened the mind.
A doctor was summoned to a cottage at Harwood, in England, and found a boy in need of his services.
"Show me your tongue," said the doctor.
The boy stared like an owl.
"My good boy let me see your tongue," the doctor repeated.
"Talk English, doctor," said the mother, and then turning to her son, said, "Hopen thy gobbler, and push out thy lolliker."
The mouth flew open, and the doctor was terribly "taken in."
"Why, Mary, my dear, how is this?—I find you sitting here so comfortably with your husband; you told me this morning you had quarreled, and he had gone for a sailor?"
"I, father! I told you nothing of the kind!"
"Oh, nonsense! I'm sure you said you had some words together."
"Yes, father, so we had. He asked me what o'clock it was; I said I didn't know; and so he left the house, saying that he was going to see—that's all I told you."
"Madam," said a husband to his young wife, in a little altercation, which will spring up in the best regulated families, "when a man and his wife have quarreled, and each suppose the other at fault, which of the two ought to advance towards a reconciliation?"
"The best-natured and wisest of the two," replied the wife, putting up her mouth for a kiss, which was given with an unctious. She was the conqueror.
An exchange says: A lady of our acquaintance, young and intelligent, called upon a celebrated physician to do something for a rush of blood to the head.
"I have been doctoring myself," said the languid fair kind M.D., while he was feeling her pulse. "Why, I have taken Brandeth's pills, Farr's pills, Strangburg's pills, Sand's Sarsaparilla, Jayne's expectorant, used Dr. Sherman's lozenges and plaster, and—"
"My Heavens! madam," exclaimed the doctor, "all these things do your complaint no good?"
"No!—then what shall I take?" asked the patient.
"Why, take off your corsets!" exclaimed the doctor.
