Elections.

MEMPHIS, 11.—A special from Little Rock says Hawk, Democrat, has a majority in the latest district of 7,000; Snyder, Republican, is doubtless elected in the 2d; and Edwards, Democrat, in the 3rd. The Democrats are confident of carrying the Legislature, thus securing a United States Senator.

NEW YORK.

Bazaine interviewed.

NEW YORK, 10.—A special to the Herald, from London of to-day, says: The Herald's correspondent, from Casel, writing on the 7th inst., gives an account of an interview with Bazaine. The Marshal said, in defending himself against personal slander, that he had a way of his own, which never failed. Said he: "Let Gambetta call me a traitor to my country. I shall not answer this babbling, who never smelt powder. To do so would admit his right to sit over me in judgment. Time will clear up the case, and work out truth and justice."

Bazaine said his relations with the Prussian officers, after the surrender, were excellent. He should be grateful to Prince Frederick Charles for ever. The latter said to Bazaine in parting: "If your personal honor should ever be assailed, call on me to defend it." Bazaine said a proclamation of the Republic in Metz would have paralyzed all action. He could then have counted no longer upon his best troops. When his spies brought him the "abominable doings of the 6th of September," he sent inquiries to the Prince to know whether it was true; but confessed he did not believe even him until he transmitted a copy of the Journal Officiel. Bazaine then told his soldiers that the Emperor was prisoner, that the Empress and young Prince had left France, and that Gen. Trochu stood at the head of the national defense committee. The Republic never was proclaimed. In reply to a question concerning his political creed, Bazaine said: "I have sworn loyalty to the Emperor and the Constitution. The Emperor is a prisoner, but the constitution is in France. Neither I nor my comrades will ever acknowledge any other government, until we previously obtain a discharge from our oath by the Emperor." He also said, "I reported to the government at Tours and Paris everything that occurred at Metz—always the strict, naked truth, but never received a reply or notice of any kind."

Bazaine stated that he had beaten the Prussians often and severely, but the final result was always unfavorable to him.

In answer to the question if hunger at last forced him to open negotiations, he replied: "I never had not been hungry I would have done it. One day I learned that not Republicans but a mob governed in Paris, Lyons and Marseilles. One day I learned that the army was insulted, and the memory of men reviled whom I venerated; but it was hunger, and nothing but hunger. You would have been mistaken were you to think I took the responsibility upon myself. I acted only as executive of the council of war, whose members ascertained the opinions of the generals, colonels and majors of the army previous to making up their votes. I had daily slaughtered 350 horses, fifty of which I gave to the inhabitants of the town. I called the Council together on the 10th, and again on the 12th of October, when it was unanimously resolved that by the 19th I must commence the steps of capitulation. I then requested permission of the Prince for General Boyer to go to the headquarters of the King. It was granted after some delay. You have certainly seen in print that his mission resulted in a failure. I proposed to march out with the army, to pledge our honor not to fight again in this war, and to be permitted to convene and protect the French Chamber against a second attempt by the mob; Bismarck named it street loafers. I detect politics. We only wanted to do what Gambetta did: re-establish our loyalty by calling together the representative body." Bismarck it seems would have agreed to Bazaine's propositions, but Moltke rejected them. He believed the Marshal could not prevent the departure of his troops, who would then have strengthened the forces of the Franco-Prussians. Bazaine further said: "I have yet to tell you that a council of war had no authority to make peace which should be solely the province of the government acknowledged by the Chambers. One of the conditions of capitulation was that the honor of the army should remain unsullied. We obtained its acceptance, and our terms are better than any allowed to troops who have capitulated during the war. There was no chance whatever to make our way out. Our artillery horses had been slaughtered, and also our cavalry horses. The troops were despairing. Our casualties from August 14th, not counting the sick and invalid, amounted in the Rhine army to twenty-four Generals, 2,140 officers, and 42,369 men. Look at the hole in my epaulet! Why did not this confounded splinter of a grenade go deeper! I would not have outlived my reputation as a soldier; nor would I as a Frenchman have known that day of everlasting ignominy—the 4th of September."

The correspondent adds: I may mention a funny communication made by Bismarck to General Boyer, at the conference between them. "General Barnside has just returned from Paris," he said, "and has given me a description of affairs inside, characterizing the city as a mad-house, inhabited by monkeys."

NEW YORK, 11, TOURS, 11.—A dispatch from the General commanding the army of the Loire, received by the minister of war last evening, has just been given to the public as follows: "We have taken possession of Orleans after a fight of two days. The aggregate losses in killed and wounded do not reach 2,000; those of the enemy are much larger. We have made more than a thousand prisoners thus far, and are continually adding to them as we follow up the fleeing enemy. Among the property captured are two cannon of the Prussian model, twenty ammunition wagons, and a great number of vans and provision wagons. The host of the fight took place around Coulmiers, on Wednesday, the 9th, notwithstanding the bad weather and other unfavorable circumstances. The plan displayed by the troops was remarkable. General De Paladines, on occupying the city, issued the following congratulatory order: "To the officers and soldiers of the Army of the Loire: The action of yesterday was a glorious one for our army. Every position of the enemy was vigorously carried, and the enemy is now retreating. I have informed the government of your conduct, and am instructed to return to you its thanks for your victory. Amid the disasters in which France is plunged, your eyes are upon you, and she counts upon your courage. Let us all make every effort, in order that this hope may not be mistaken."

Elections.

ST. LOUIS, 11.—It is reported that the vote from fifty-four counties, in this State, gives Brown a majority of 30,911, and indicate that his majority in the whole State will be 35,000 to 40,000. The Republicans claim to have returns and estimates from ninety-five counties, with the following result for the Legislature: House, Democrats, sixty-seven; Fusion, fifteen; Liberals, sixteen; Republicans, twenty; Senate: Democrats, 7; Fusion, 7; Liberals, 4; Republicans, 2. The Liberals have their county marshal, clerk of circuit court, and assistant prosecuting attorney for the county; the Democrats have all the other county officers by handsome majorities, including the judge of the circuit court.

FOREIGN NEWS.

CREAT BRITAIN.

Rumored alliance—Capitulation—Rumored Surrender of Garibaldi.

LONDON, 11.—Late last evening a report was received here that the garrison at New Breisach had hoisted the white flag. The rumor was confirmed here to-day by official dispatches announcing the capitulation of the fortress yesterday afternoon. Five thousand prisoners, including 100 officers, fell into the hands of the Germans. No guns were captured.

A roundabout rumor from Bern and Berlin states that Garibaldi has surrendered to the Germans. No particulars. The report is generally discredited. A sharp reply has been returned to Austria from Belgium, in response to her note offering mediation, on the ground that Austria having armed at the beginning of the war, was disqualified now to act as a neutral. It is generally thought Prussia will prefer the annexation of Alsace and Lorraine to any guarantee the neutral powers may see fit to make. Prussia's relations with Austria and Russia are not such as to render any guarantee of theirs acceptable.

There is great distress among the poorer classes of the French; owing to the government having seized all the money in the savings banks. The dismantling of Alt Breisach has already commenced, now that the French works on the opposite side of the river are all in the German hands. The Baden artillery has been thanked by the Prussian government for its gallantry.

LONDON, 11, 3 p.m.—The stock market has been greatly depressed this afternoon, by rumors that Austria has joined France against Prussia; that the French troops have retaken Orleans, and that the French fleet have made important captures.
