

TEAMSTER BADLY HURT IN RUNAWAY

Robert Ormon Crushed by Wagon Load of Cement Being Upset.

PARALYZED IN CONSEQUENCE.

Taken to the Dr. Groves Latter-Day Saints Hospital Suffering from Serious Injuries.

Robert Ormon, a teamster 58 years of age, residing with his wife and three children at 777 east Fourth street, met with a painful and serious runaway accident shortly before noon today on Eighth South and Third West streets. The man is apparently badly hurt internally, and it is feared he will be paralyzed from the hips down. That he was not instantly killed is a most remarkable feature about the accident. A heavy rack weighing more than a ton fell on him, crushing the man to the ground and he narrowly escaped being buried under 5,000 pounds of cement.

Ormon has been employed as a teamster for some time for Mike O'Connor, a contractor. This morning he was taking a heavy load of cement from the Portland Cement works to Eleventh East. While driving along on Eleventh South street, one of the wheels of the wagon slipped into a chuck hole. The heavy load of cement shifted and the horses became frightened and started to run away. After running about a block, one of the horses ran into another hole, and the heavy rack and load tipped over. Ormon was pitched into the muddy street and the rack fell upon him. Fortunately the cement did not strike the man, otherwise his life would have been crushed out. One end of the rack struck Ormon on the body at the base of the spine, causing temporary paralysis. Both hips were badly bruised and the man was injured internally.

Word of the accident was sent to police headquarters, and the patrol wagon with Officers Moore, Phillips and McCormack hurried to the scene. The injured man was placed on a stretcher and taken quickly to the emergency hospital, where he was given medical attention. At 3 p. m. he was removed to the Dr. Groves' Latter-Day Saints Hospital.

"SAMMY IS SICK."

In Consequence "Fighting Dick" Hyland is Now Minus a Manager.

"Fighting Dick" Hyland, the San Francisco lightweight fighter who is spending a few days in Salt Lake temporarily without a manager, "Red" Sammy McClinton has passed as Hyland's manager ever since Sammy let go of Spider Welch after the latter set that terrible beating on Battling Nelson at the Salt Lake.

A few days ago Sammy and Hyland came to Salt Lake from Denver. They had heard that the fight game was to be opened here and were looking for a match. Upon their arrival, however, they discovered that the "lid" was on, and on good and tight. Then Sammy tried to drown his sorrow in the usual way. He tumbled from the water wagon with a dull thud, and in a short time was on the verge of delirium tremens. He was arrested and later taken to a hospital but after spending a day or two at the institution broke out again. Monday night he was again taken into custody and placed in the city jail. When his name was called in Judge Diehl's court yesterday afternoon and again today the jailer volunteered the information that "Sammy is sick." He is said to be in a rather serious condition and it may be several days before he is able to leave the jail. In the meantime little "Fighting Dick" is wandering about minus a manager.

A saving of seven or eight million dollars is expected and a level grade attained when the work is finished. Mr. Conner said the outlook for the coming season was not very encouraging, although he thinks the Northwestern will push its road through to completion to its western terminal at Co. Bay as soon as possible, and that M. & St. P. will work for his Seattle terminus likewise.

TALK OF COMING WAR.

Architect Hale Encounters Bellicose Sentiment on His Travels.

Architect Fred Hale has returned from a five months' absence from the city, during which he has visited Denver, the Grand canyon of the Colorado, southern California and San Francisco. Mr. Hale chanced to meet with quite a number of European tourists and traveled Americans, all of whom seemed to agree that the coming war between the United States and Japan was sure before long. The consensus of opinion was, also, that sending the great fleet of American battleships across the Pacific would have a deterrent effect on the more bellicose of the Japanese, and that the fleet as a whole would not again rendezvous in the Atlantic. Mr. Hale was told that while the heads of the Japanese were enlarged very visibly by the defeat of Russia, still the enlargement had become abnormal by the English alliance of which England is now heavily weary. The president and his cabinet have urged conditions, and they propose to be prepared. While Mr. Hale was in San Francisco, one of the local papers printed a map of San Francisco, not only with existing fortifications, but also indicating where additional military protection was to be located. For this, the other papers took this one to task, as giving valuable information to a prospective enemy. But the "San Francisco Chronicle" says that all of the information published was already in possession of the Japanese government, which was no doubt true. Mr. Hale found a feeling of satisfaction in that the absence of so many war ships from the Atlantic coast in the protection of American interests on the Pacific, would compel eastern congressmen to allow appropriations for an increase of the navy to such a sum as would enable the government to properly patrol both ocean fronts.

Mr. Hale found great activity in San Francisco in preparation for the reception of the great fleet, now emerging from the straits of Magellan, and which ought to reach San Francisco by May next. There are 16,000 men in that fleet, so that the entertainment means an expenditure of a large sum of money.

The wonderful activity in building operations continues unabated. There is more being done, in fact, than appears to the casual observer, because so many interiors are being remodelled and refurnished, the extent of which does not appear on the outside. The streets are very dirty, but by May, they will have been cleaned up. Mr. Hale is content to live in Salt Lake, and will remain here, as he considers the city an excellent one with a promising future.

It is only two dollars a year, and is laid on most of the door steps of the city and suburbs every Saturday afternoon.

PADEREWSKI IN LONDON.

Great Britain has always vied with America in its admiration of Paderewski, who is now on his seventh tour of this country, and is to make his only appearance here in the Tabernacle Friday evening. It is rarely that a spring passes without his giving at least one recital in London. Last spring his management charged a guinea ($5) for every seat in the hall and seats for days in advance were selling at a London Tribune said:
