THE TEXANS HAVE GONE. Now the El Pasoites Will Start Whoop ing it Up for Noxt Year.

The Texans got off in good shape in their two special cars attached to Rio Grande No. 4, Saturday night. They were delighted with their stay, and carry away the pleasantest of recollections. Chairman J. A. Smith received a number of congratulatory telegrams from El Paso Saturday, and he stated that just as soon as the delegation got back work would begin on the program for the 1904 convention of the irrigation the 1904 convention of the Brighton congress. He said there are three large hotels in El Paso, and that what dele-gates these could not take care of, would be cared for in private homes. There will be no trouble in looking af-ter the comfort of the crowds. Chair-man Gruth use secult conved by here man Smith was greatly amused by his caricature in the Herald, and carried home with him several copies of that issue. He said every move by the dele-gation had been successfully carried out. It was largely the aggregation of Mexican hats and Mexican band that carried the day. The band was practi-cally an afterthought, as the matter was brought up immediately after dinner on the evening of departure, and materialized before train time at 9 p. m. It was something of an effort to hunt It was something of an enort to hunt the men up and gather them together ready to move before the train left. Every delegate was "sober as a judge" when the train puled out of Sait Lake for the east Saturday night, and there wasn't the sign of a bottle any-where in the Pullman; but the smoke from the Mexican cligats was thick where in the Pullman, but the smoke from the Mexican cigars was thick enough to cut with a knife. Every dole-gate was in the best of humer, and the delegation passed resolutions of thanks to the Rio Grande road in general and Col. Benton, Harry Cushing and Agent Bidd in particular for attentions and Ridd in particular for attentions and courtestes received. The departure of the train was emphasized by waving of hats and cheers for the convention of 1904.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL. Billboard Ordinance So Declared by Judge Morse.

The billboard ordinance of this city has been declared unconstitutional by Judge Morse of the district court. The Judge Morse of the district court. The case in which the ordinance was at-uncked was that of Salt Lake City vs Scott W. Anderson. It was charged in the complaint that Anderson, on Sept. 13, 1902, constructed a billboard on the corner of Third South and State on the corner of third south and State streets which did not comply with the city ordinance regulating said boards, in that the same was not built back on the lot 12 feet from the sidewalk nd a space of two feet was not lef hetween the bottom of the board and he ground. Anderson was convicted perfore Judge Dichl and then appealed

It was contended by Attorney Rich-ard W. Young, who defended Anderson, that the city council had no right to pass an ordinance which would deprive pass an ordinance which would deprive parties of the use of their private prop-erty without due process of law. Hence the ordinance, which in effect says that defendant shall construct these bill-boards 12 feet back on his own property, thus deprives defendant of the use of that amount of his ground with out due process of law, and is therefore unconstitutional. Judge Morse held that the contention of the attorney for the defense is good and he therefore declared the ordinance unconstitutional and dismissed the case

"Most of us have our supper before we leave home. We must provide amuse-ment for the young, but we must see that it is of the right sort. If we do not provide the amusement they will provide their own, and they may not always pick out the best sort." Ellas S. Woodruff also dealt with the same subject, speaking in favor of en-couraging the talent in the wards. He called attention to the danger of card playing and to the fact that President Smith had called attention to this dan-ger and had expressed his fears that it was being carried to the extreme and that the result could not be other than harmful.

ELDER SMITH SPEAKS.

Elder John Henry Smith made the losing address and spoke against the langer of going to extremes. "Not only in amusements, but in the more serious matters of life," said he, "we are inclined, as we grow older, to get other too serious or too frivolous." The eaker's remarks were in favor of igher manhood and womanhood, and he urged his hearers to strive for it, so that the world would look with ad-miration at the spiendid types of young men and women sent out fro The convention closed by from Utah singing Prayer is the soul's sincere desire, and the benediction was pronounced by

WEATHER WAS COLD.

Fort Douglas Light Battery Boys Had a Taste of Real Winter.

The two light batteries of artillery stationed at Fort Douglas, returned Saturday night, from their outing in the Strawberry country, and a hard time they had of it. The artillerymen ran into cold weather almost as soon as they reached the high plateaus, while the denizens of the valleys were sweltering in heat. A heavy snowstorm began the fourth day of the encampment, nd after that snow flurrlese were frequent. The snow lay on the ground until the next noon, when the tem-perature would moderate—for the time being. The soldiers had a breezy, chilly time of it, and did some tall stove hugging, while winter supplies wer-dealt out. However, there was sucessful field practise and mountain drill, the surrounding cliffs giving evidence of good artillery aim. The experience was not without its profit, notwith-standing the cold; but the boys are glad to get back to their post quarters.

And Crosses the Divide. On Saturday night there passed away at Farmington a woman that will, with her husband, be remembered by many of the "Mormon" Elders who visited England years ago. She is Mrs. Susan

Tuck, wife of John Tuck. She vas born at Hilgey. Norfolk, England, in 1841. On hearing of the doctrines preached by the "Mormons" she identified herself with them and the advocates of the new faith found food, shelter and welcome in the Tuck home. In 1889 the Tucks came to Utah and settled at Farming-ton, where they continued to reside un where they continued to reside up o the present time. The deceased was a good woman and leaves many friends to mourn her death. The husband is left entirely alone, their children all dying prior to the removal of the parents to this country. The funeral will be held from the
