

RHEUMATIC

Burning, throbbing and aching joints, muscles and entire nervous system. It may come on in the form of a flu, or as a result of exposure to cold, wet weather. It may, possibly, result from over-exercise, fatigue, lack of sleep, excessive eating and drinking, excessive sexual activity and other causes. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once.

It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once.

It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once.

It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once.

It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once.

It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once.

It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once.

It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once.

It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once.

It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once. It is a very serious condition and should be treated at once.