Later, Sergeant Roberts went to the scene of the supposed attempted mur-der and found part of a muffler on the floor of the car. The other part he found hanging to a barbed wire fence. Returning to the city, Sergt. Roberts began to question Rasmussen. The man at first declared that, while com-ing down from Ogden, a man dressed in blue trousers, black coat and brown hat, attacked him, stabbed him of $3. Roberts asked the man how he knew the color of the clothing worn by the robber, and Rasmussen replied that as it was a moonlight night he could plainly see. As a matter of fact the moon was obscured by clouds all night and when Roberts called Rasmussen's attention to the fact the man broke down and admitted that he had tried to kill himself because he had been drink-ing heavily and was despondent. Rasmussen is a cook and came to Utah from Denver. He went to Og-den and remained there for a few days and last night started to walk to this city. When he got to the hot springs he entered a box car and there attempt-ed to kill himself by cutting his throat with a knife, but the effort proved a failure, and Rasmussen is chow the bar day in the story of robbery be-cause he did not wish any one to know that he had attempted suicide. The wound inflicted is not at all serious and he will be ns well as ever within a few days.
