YEATMAN ON WAY TO NEVADA

Reported Today That He Has Instructions to Stop Smelter Construction.

TILL FINANCIAL SKIES CLEAR.

Cumberland Ely Will Go On—Something About the Plans.

Pope Yeatman, managing director of the Stope Valley Smelting and Mining company, and associated concerns, and one of the chief mining experts of the Guggenheim mining interests, passed through the city last evening en route for Nevada.

Mr. Yeatman's objective will be the new plant of the aforementioned company located about 14 miles from Ely, at present under construction and his visit will have, it is believed, but one result, namely, the closing down of the entire works until such time as financial conditions readjust themselves.

The mines of the Nevada Consolidated company were closed some time ago, and the only remaining property is situated with the Stope Valley plant which will do any work for the present is being sunk and other development work prosecuted.

At the big smelting plant only the first unit of the concentrator together with the necessary tanks and track extensions, will be continued. The power house and a part of the machine shop may continue under operation for a time but it is definitely stated by those in a position to know that even these will be closed within a short time, unless copper conditions should so change as to warrant the reopening of the entire plant.

The plant of the Stope Valley Smelting & Mining company, when completed, was to have been the largest of the kind under one management in the country. Its concentrator of three units was to have an estimated daily capacity of 20,000 tons of ore and its recuperators, converters, roasters, etc., were to be built in proportion.

In the neighborhood of 20 miles of railroad tracks traverse the plant from end to end and from two to four locomotives are at all times engaged in distributing freight and hauling material to the various parts of the plant. In the neighborhood of 1,000 men are present on the payroll, about 400 of whom are Greek laborers. This number does not include those in the employ of contractors.

Local ore buyers are making settlements today on the basis of 100 cents per ounce for silver; 125 cents a pound for casting copper; 15 cents a pound for cast-iron copper and $1.75 per 100 pounds for lead.

All the excavating work was completed some time ago and with the exception of one or two buildings all the substructures are practically completed. At the new power house nearly all the machinery is in place and work on the walls is progressing rapidly.

It is hard to foresee the effect of the closing of such a plant, but it is generally felt that the town of Ely and the Ely mining district will be heavy sufferers.

MAMMOTH ASSESSED.

Probable End of Eight Years of Testimonies.

The Mammoth Mining company has been assessed damages to the amount of $41,219 and interest at the rate of 5 percent per annum, making a total of $44,917.36, in favor of the Grand Central Mining company. This is the net result of the eight years of litigation and will probably be the end of the famous lawsuit.

The Grand Central originally set out to collect $300,000 in ore claimed to have been mined within the boundaries of Grand Central ground by the Mammoth company. On showings made during the progress of the various actions bearing on the case, this amount was cut down to about $268,000, while the Mammoth company claimed that it was responsible for damages at all the points not for more than an ore extracted which it claimed had a market value of only a little more than $22,000.

In all the litigation the Mammoth company has claimed the right to mine as it did through holding the apex of the ledge from which the ore was taken. It was decided that while the Mammoth company might have the apex of the ledge in question in its territory, somewhere, it was not in the claim set out as holding it. Decisions have heretofore been against the Mammoth.

The text of the decision rendered by Judge Joshua Greenwald is as follows:

"After a full, complete and careful examination of the testimony given in the case, I am of the opinion that one-third of the material taken out of the disputed territory was waste, and that two-thirds was ore, and when on an average net value of $14 per ton, which equals $91,349; that the plaintiff is entitled to interest upon the same for eight years at the rate of 5 percent per annum, which is $55,463.36, making an aggregate total of $146,812.35, for which amount the plaintiff is given judgment against the said defendant, together with its costs."

RICH MAMMOTH ORE.

One hundred thousand dollars for a car load of ore is not so bad. But this is what the Mammoth Mining company has received for the three lots of rich gold ore shipped from the mine last week and which was placed under guard until the railroad company assumed the responsibility of conveying the product safely to the smelters in the Salt Lake valley.

Twenty tons of it returned the fabulous values of 14 ounces in gold, besides some silver; 17 1/2 tons sent 30 ounces in gold and 18 tons yielded 20 ounces in gold. In the same car were 10 sacks of high grade silver ore which gave returns of 532 ounces in gold besides 552 ounces a ton in the white metal.

The returns from this ore are almost sufficient to pay off the judgment rendered against the company and in favor of the Grand Central Mining company. That the Mammoth company should receive the proceeds from this fabulously rich ore on the day that the court fixed the amount of the judgment in the Grand Central case is a somewhat noteworthy coincidence.

NEVADA DOUGLAS PUSHING THINGS

Four Car Loads of High Grade Ore Reached Market Today.

MANAGER OREM RETURNS.

Driving Tunnel Ahead—Picture Ore In Ludwig—To Sink Incline.

The Nevada Douglas Copper company is pushing development work at its mines at Yerington, Nev., with a full head of steam and is in the market today with four car loads of ore which average from 15 to 14 1/2 per cent copper.

"These are some of the things that count," remarked Manager Walter C. Gavin today, "who has just returned from a trip of inspection accompanied by his father, A. J. Gavin. 'When you ask me to tell you how things are moving at the Nevada Douglas, that is about the best way I can put it. Nevada Douglas is responding splendidly. The main tunnel is forging ahead by the use of machine drills at a rapid pace and the east drift from it has been in ore for the past 20 feet which average from 6 to 8 per cent copper."

"In the Ludwig section we are showing up lots of ore. On the 550 level, we are still driving ahead in chalcocite copper ore carrying almost phenomenal values. We will have a carload of it in the market in a few days and, according to the mine assays furnished me by Supt. Ayres, it should return about 35 per cent copper."

"On the 550 level, a new shoot of ore has been recently opened; for 50 feet it has been followed along its strike and is showing up mighty well. It is 10 feet wide and runs better than 10 per cent copper. All the ground between the 400 and 550 levels is virgin territory; hence we ought to produce an immense tonnage from this shoot alone."

"We have mapped out a very vigorous campaign at the Nevada Douglas mine," continued Mr. Gavin, "but development for the present will be confined largely to the driving of the deep tunnel in the Douglas, as well as also in sinking the incline in the latter."

"The past year's development with the aid of the modern equipment we have installed," Mr. Gavin went on, "has placed us in position to develop tonnage very rapidly in the drifts from the deep tunnel in the Douglas, as well as in the incline and on the 650 and 750 levels of the Ludwig."

One of the remarkable things about the Ludwig mine, Mr. Gavin says, is that the large amount of leached goan material outcropping at the surface to a width of from 10 to 75 feet, is changing to unleached ore on the lower levels. This fact is particularly in evidence on the 550 level where two shoots—one known as the hanging wall shoot, the other the footwall shoot—have been developed. The combined width of the two is about 40 feet and the ore runs from 12 to 15 per cent copper.

"The camp in general is in good shape and is not feeling the effects of the late money stringency as much as some others in Nevada."

During the past week some rich specimen ore has been taken out of the Ludwig; some of the pieces assaying from 10 to 30 per cent copper.

JOPLIN GETTING BUSY.

Ready to Receive Visitors to American Mining Congress.

Joplin, Mo., Nov. 2.—This great lead and zinc district has completed the preliminaries in the organization of a stock exchange, to be known as the Joplin Stock exchange, to handle not only mining stock but industrial stocks as well. Articles of incorporation have been filed with the secretary of state of Missouri, and rooms are being arranged in which to begin business as soon as possible.

From the Carolina's to California; from Louisiana to Michigan, the governors of the various states in the Union have appointed delegates to the American Mining congress which meets here Nov. 11, a fact significant of the importance of mining as an industry.

Looking back over the long road of time since the early fifties when that veteran editor and founder of the New York Tribune, Horace Greeley, traveled overland to California, it seems as if he must have had a prophetic vision, when he stopped in Nevada at a mining camp to make a speech, in which he is quoted as saying: "If I did not believe that God never made a useless thing, I am sure that the country between here and the Mississippi river, with its sagebrush, spreading cactus, its arid plains and rocky mountains was His one useful creation, but since I am convinced that there is nothing without its use, and that there is nothing on the surface of this vast stretch of country to entice a man to make it his abode, I am led to believe that stored beneath its surface must be immense bodies of metals, and if it is so it will take a million men, a million years to discover its unbounded richness." What does the time that has been given to mining count for, when compared with what the great future has to reveal to the prospector?

After centuries of mining, it is now the one industry on which all else that is worth while depends for its success or for advancement. Here in Joplin district after 20 years of mining, new fields are being opened to astonish the fee holder of the ground.

The 20 years have passed since the ore of this camp were worked, this district has kept pace with commerce, and like all other sections has been affected by the financial panic, but it has held its own, and will present a busy place to the visitors to the American Mining congress, and the whole district in welcoming the delegates to this city.
