THE PATENT Wire Gauze Oven Door

IS THE LATEST IMPROVEMENT ON THE

It Produces Practical Results in Baking and Roasting never before attained in any Cooking Apparatus, and will

Revolutionize the Present Methods of Cooking

ITS THEORY

Is that all Food Baked or Cooked, should be cooked in fresh air freely admitted to the oven. This is done by discarding the close oven door heretofore used, and substituting for it a door containing a sheet of Wire Gauze nearly as large as the door itself.

Through this Gauze Door the air freely circulates, facilitating the process of cooking, and producing food that is unequalled in flavor and nutrition, and actually cooked with less consumption of fuel than in an oven with a closed door.

It makes an enormous saving in the weight of meat.

It also produces larger Loaves of Bread, requires less attention from the cook, and promotes the health of the family by the SUPERIOR QUALITY OF THE FOOD COOKED IN IT.

OPINION OF AN EXPERT.

MRS. MARY B. WELCH, Teacher Domestic Economy, Iowa State University, says: "My deliberate judgement is that the oven of the Range, as compared with others, is not only more equally heated in every part—front and rear—but as a result of its superior ventilation the food placed therein is better cooked, while retaining a sweeter flavor, and a larger proportion of its best juices. I find, also the consumption of fuel in this Range is much less than any other for same work.

EVENING NEWS.

THE WHITECHAPEL FIEND.

THE MURDERER IS SUPPOSED TO BE A YOUNG RUSSIAN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The New York Zeitung of today contains a cable from Paris, a translation of which is herewith given:

A few weeks ago while sitting in the Cafe de Boulevard, I happened to look in an English newspaper. Suddenly my interest was awakened by a notice stating that the corpse of a young girl had been found in Whitechapel. She had evidently been murdered. Added to this was the statement that a few days ago a murder had taken place on the same spot under similar circumstances, which had caused great excitement among the lower classes of the population. Involuntarily this newspaper notice brought my thoughts back to the time of my stay in Paris years ago. At that time a series of atrocious murders had filled all Paris with horror and indignation and spurred the Parisian police on to a feverish activity. The fiendish deeds at that time had an astonishing similarity to the brutal murder, the account of which I had just read. The horrid mutilation of the body in all cases was the same. I soon, however, forgot the fearful coincidence, and would not have thought of it more, had not some time afterward the news of another horrible Whitechapel murder attracted my attention. Then, again, those fearful reminiscences came with force to my mind, and I remembered all the circumstances as they were impressed upon it fifteen years before. My memory did not retain the name of the murderer, who afterwards — not through the ability of the police, but more through an accident—had been brought to trial, but I remember that the murderer did not pay with his life for the fiendish deed, and the possibility that the same man had now regained his liberty shot into my head. Was the same man who was then called "the savior of lost souls" by the people still living and at liberty? The conclusion was terribly logical that he had begun this bloody activity now on the other side of the channel. So the first thing I wanted to know was whether this man had regained his liberty. In my inquiries I found that his name was Nicholaus Wassily, and that he had left the Russian city of Firaspol in the department of Chersan, where he had been imprisoned since the first of January of the year. This does not, however, yet prove the identity of "the savior of lost souls" with the woman-killer of Whitechapel, but it is perhaps a clue which will awaken interest the world over. The following facts are gathered from diligent researches from the acts of the Palais de Justice in Paris and from the private lunatic asylum in Bayonne.

In the year 1873 there was a movement in the orthodox church of Russia against some sectarians which caused a good deal of excitement. Some of the people who were menaced because of their religion fled from the country. Most of them were peasants, who, without many pangs, could take leave of their homes, where suffering stared them in the face on all sides, but Nicholaus Wassily left a good home. His parents were quite wealthy. They had him well educated and had even sent him to the college at Odessa. But Nicholaus was a fanatic sectarian, and he soon assumed the role of leader among them. The chief belief of his sect was in the renunciation of all earthly joys in order to secure immortal life in Paradise after death. Members of the sect, whether male or female, were strictly forbidden to have anything to do with the opposite sex. Wassily fled to Paris. He was an excellent type of a Russian. He had a tall, elastic figure, a regular, manly physiognomy, burning, languishing eyes and a pale, waxen-like complexion. He avoided all contact with his countrymen, taking up a small lodging in the Quartier Mouffetard, where all the poor and miserable of Paris live. Here he soon became a riddle to his neighbors. He used to stay all day long in his room, studying books. At nightfall he went out and wandered through the streets until the morning dawned. He was often seen talking with abandoned women in the streets, and it soon became known that he followed a secret mission in doing so. That is why the voices of the people called him "the savior of lost souls." First he tried mild persuasion in speaking to the poor fallen creatures. By the light of the street lanterns he lectured them, telling them to return to the path of virtue and give up their life of shame. When mere words had no effect he went so far as to put premiums on virtue, and gave large sums to the cocottes on condition that they commenced a new life. Some of the women were realy touched by his earnestness and promised to follow his advice. He could often be seen on the street corners preaching to gaudy nymphs who bitterly shed tears. His mission did not seem to be crowned with success. He often met on the streets girls who had taken a holy oath that they would sin no more. Then there was a change. He would approach a woman, speaking to her in a kindly way, and would follow her home. Then, when alone with the helpless creature, he would take out a butcher knife, kneel on her prostrate body and force her to take an oath not to solicit again. He seemed to believe in these forced oaths, and always went away seemingly happy. One evening "the savior of lost souls," as usual, left his home. In the Rue de Richelieu he met a young woman, not with that impertinent smile which leaves nobody in doubt about her vocation, but in a decent way she crossed his path. She had an elegant figure and beautiful eyes. Wassily was armed against the glances of woman, but this girl's look seemed to make a deep impression on him. He spoke to her—she was a lost one, too—but not with brutal force. With kindness he touched her so deeply that she told him the whole story of her life—the story of a poor parentless girl who through fate had been torn from happiness and splendor into a world of misery and shame. Wassily for the first time in his life fell in love with a women. He procured a place in a business house for her and paid liberally for her support, although he made her believe that she was supporting herself.

For several weeks the girl, who had some regard for her protector, kept straight in the path of virtue. But one day when Wassily visited her home—a thing he seldom did, and then only when an old guardian of hers was present—he found that she was gone. She had left a note to him, in which she said that though thankful to him for all his kindness, her life was a way to which he had not accustomed her, and she preferred to be left alone. Wassily was in a fearful mood after this. He wandered so restlessly through the streets as to awaken the attention of the constables. Eight weeks afterwards he disappeared. At the same time Madeline, the woman he had supported, was found murdered in the quarter where she had formerly led a life of shame. Two days afterwards, in a quiet side street of the Faubourg St. Germain, the corpse of another murdered woman was found. Three days afterwards a Paryne of the Quartier Mouffetard was butchered at night time. All the murders were perpetrated in the same horrible way as those in Whitechapel. Jewels and everything of value on the corpses remained untouched. Five more victims were found butchered in the Arrondissement des Pantheon, between the boulevard la St. Michel and De l'Hospital. Then on the Rue de Lyon an attack was made on a girl who had a chance to cry for help before she was strangled. A throng gathered, the police arrived and the would-be-murderer was captured. It was Nicholaus Wassily. The mob wanted to lynch him, but he was protected. When his trial was in progress his lawyer, Jules Glanmer, claimed that his client was insane. The jury decided that such was the case, and Wassily was sent back to Russia after a short stay in the private asylum at Bayonne. From Firaspol he was released on January 1 of this year.

This, in short, is the history unearthed. Is Wassily the Whitechapel murderer?—Denver News.

AN AUTHOR OF MEANS.—Alexander Dumas is one of the few modern authors possessing enough of this world's goods to live handsomely. He has a charming chalet near Dieppe, which is mantled by ivy and filled with pretty furniture and valuable pictures. Then he has a splendid house in Paris, which contains marvelous treasures of art. Dumas is now a strong and vigorous man, who bears his sixty-four years well, and with his keen eyes twinkling with wit and malice, his short brush-light mustache, robust appearance and erect stature, he gives one an impression that he is either a general on half pay or a retired planter.

A LUCKY FATHER AND SON.

The following narrative of the suffering of a Father and Son, will prove interesting to the readers of this paper. G. G. Bartholomew, of Kalkaska, Mich., says, I located in this place five years ago, having formerly resided in Troy, N. Y. My friends there, as well as here know that I have been a great sufferer from what the Physicians of Troy called Bright's Disease.

As a last resort I commenced the use of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, (made at Rondout, N. Y.) The result is little short of a miracle. All the terrible symptoms of this disease are gone. I do not have any more difficulty in voiding the urine, no pain or ache in the small of the back, no more soreness across the loins or over the bladder, no more Constipation of the Bowels, no swelling of feet, hands and legs, and many other symptoms of disease of the Kidneys, Liver or Bladder.

So much, help came to me In Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy.

Who would begrudge the cost of this medicine (One Dollar a bottle) for such a blessing, or refuse this simple though sincere token of gratitude, for being perfectly cured? I owe everything to Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., and hope my writing this will induce others to use the medicine who suffer from a Kidney or Blood disorder. But my recovery was not more remarkable than that of my son George, who when a boy fell from a fence, bruising his leg, which was followed by disease of the bone. Large pieces were removed by surgical operations. His

Blood Was Impure,

and the future to him was dark and gloomy, expecting to be a helpless cripple for life. He was induced to try Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y., and as sure as I am writing this grateful acknowledgement his leg is entirely healed up. He now works with me, doing a good man's work. He owes everything to Dr. D. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. Made at Rondout, N. Y. Price $1; 6 for $5.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO

Gardeners and Farmers.

BUY NORTHERN-GROWN SEEDS. WE ARE THE PRODUCERS OF seed sold by us. They are the best in the world. They are the best for all climates. They are earlier, more hardy, vigorous and productive than those grown in lower altitudes. We keep a large stock of fresh seed and believe that we can give you satisfaction. We unhesitatingly affirm that no better seeds than those we deal in CAN BE PROCURED. Bestowing such assiduous care upon them, we feel justified in saying our seeds are UNSURPASSED in purity and quality. We do not pretend to be the "only house in the west selling NORTHERN-GROWN SEEDS," but we do claim that we have the very best seed to be had anywhere; and that has not been all over the country, for several years, in commission boxes, as we do not send out any commission boxes at all, as so many do. Ask your HOME MERCHANT for our Northern-grown Seeds. OUR PRICES are as low as reliable stocks can be sold at and afford a fair remuneration for the expense and labor attending the proper conduct of the seed business. We ask a trial order from all who have not used our seeds. Write for circulars. Address all correspondence to the UTAH NURSERY CO., General Western Agency, Salt Lake City, Utah.
