DESERET EVENING NEWS: THURSDAY, MAY 28, 1903.

Famous Old Men Who Are Still In the Harness Some And Are Setting a Lively Pace For Their Young Rivals

16

HERE is a widespread | ing to the fact that Mr. Morgan had sold his "troublesome Park avenue flats," "I don't know about the flats on impression almost amounting to a con-Park avenue, but I'll bet you a doughviction that this is nut to a double eagle that he has not not only "the young parted with his interest in the flats on Wall street." man's day," but that under the pressure of is in the sear and yellow leaf when finds a way of running the universe to he reaches fifty and that when he has his satisfaction, has greater financial passed sixty it is vain for him to at- interests at stake than any other manin in the battle for existence. While it is undoubtedly true that youth is pressing Clews, who can never be persuaded t to the fore with greater energy than at any time in the history of the world, it business in Wall street for nearly is a great mistake to assume that the forty-five years, is yet another finan ties than they had a hundred years ago. The world is traveling at a more rapid pace, perhaps, but its really big men, be they youths or septuagenariaans, will always be found at the head of the procession.

of storm and stress, there are many old United States senator. men who in point of mental acuteness and physical activity can put to blush their younger rivals. Towering above his fellews in this respect is Russell and Morgan, aged eighty-two and sev. Sage, who, though in his eighty-sev- enty-nine, respectively, and including fame and fortune years ago. He is at his desk every day and rarely fails to attend a board meeting of the twenty-connecticut, seventy-six: Hoar, Massafour corporations of which he is a director, for, as every one knows, Uncle cut, seventy-five; Stewart, Nevada, Russell is a thrifty soul. He is as cyn- seventy-five; Allison, Iowa, seventyical and satirical as ever, always ready four; Teller, Colorado, seventy-three;

Mr. Morgan himself is another intwentieth century life stance of the failacy of the popular imand conditions a man pression. At sixty-six years of age he tempt to cope with his younger rivals the world and is continually required to solve problems that would drive many a junior to an untimely grave. Henry older men are any less virile and capa-ble or that they have fewer opportunisition to the "refire at sixty" pointing out that many men score their greatest success after they have reached the sixty mark. Then there is Chauncey M. Depew, the famed after dinner speaker, who at sixty-nine no only retains an active interest in rali-In this country, pre-eminently a land road affairs, but is prominent as a

In the United States senate is a distinguished galaxy of veterans, headed by the two Alabama senators, Pettus enty-nine, respectively, and including chusetts, seveniy-six; Platt, Connectito get in a dig at some high and mighty finanoial nabob. Only recently, when fold that J. Plerpont Morgan had sailed mont, seventy-one. The senators of the se for Europe, Mr. Sage remarked, allud- sixty and over are numerous, these answering the roll call: Platt, New York, | from public life might be named the seven another national figure. Then | thority on international law, Frederic Clark, Montana, sixty-four; Bacon, ty-two. Georgia, sixty-three; Dryden, New Jer- Form sey, sixty-three; Money, Mississippi, sixty-six, again looming large on the than many younger sea dogs, and all those who have but recently retired an's running mate in 1900, is at sixtyenth year, plunges into the fray of Wall many who have grown gray in the sixty-nine; Quay, Pennsylvania, sixty- veteran congressman Galusha Grow, there is Whitelaw Reid, sixty-five, ed- R. Coudert, is seventy-one years old. street with the ardor that won him service of their country. Of senators nine; Cockrell, Missourl, sixty-eight; the former speaker of the house of rep- itor and diplomat, almost as much in Wayne MacVeagh at seventy was the Millard, Nebraska, sixty-seven; Mitch- resentatives, now in his eightieth year; the public eye as in the days when he choice of the coal operators as their eil, Oregon, sixty-seven: Gallinger, New ex-Congressman Grosvenor, Ohio, sixty-Hampshire, sixty-six: Foster, Washing-nine, and ex-Senators Vest. Missouri, Admiral Dewey, sixty-five: Rear Ad-strike commission. D. O. Mills of Mills ton, sixty-six; Hanna, Ohio, sixty-five: seventy-two, and Jones, Arkansas, six- miral Schley, retired, sixty-four, and hotel fame and director in cighteen im- sixty-three. Rear Admiral Walker, retired, sixty- portant New York corporations, is sev-Former President Grover Cleveland, eight, form a trio with more energy enty-seven. R. M. Olyphant, eightythree are able and willing to go into ac- fame, retains the mental vigor of a young man. Samuel Sloan, eighty-five, The popular impression is refuted in ex-president of the Delaware, Lacka- | day" also every walk of life. That eminent auwanna and Western, has as keen an interest as ever in the details of railroad management. Albert Keith Smiley, seventy-five, still leads the Lake Mohonk conferences to discuss Indian affairs and international arbitration. Joseph Jefferson, seventy-four, may yet be seen on the stage in his famous im-personation of Rip Van Winkle.

Turning to men of letters, we find in harness after many years of activity such men as Marcius Willson, eightynine, who is now at work on a new book; Edward Everett Hale, eightyone; Albert Harkness, the renowned classicist, eighty: Edward C. Sted-man, sixty-nine; William James Rolfe. he eminent Shakespearean, seventyfive; Lyman Abbott, sixty-seven; Mark Twain, sixty-seven, and William Dean Howells, sixty-six.

The story is the same if we look at the old world. The figures of many old workers in Europe stand out in hold relief. Pope Leo XIII., now in his ninetyfourth year, shows signs of rapidly failing health, it is true, but retains the mental vigor which has long made him one of the wonders of the age. Herbert Spencer, eighty-one, by no means con-siders himself a "has been" and is still quaily engaged in wrestling with philoophical problems. That advocate of realism on the stage, Henrik Ibsen, seventy-five, has not laid down the pen that made him famous the world over. Kruger, seventy-seven, had the hardest fight of his life when he was long past the age at which most men are supposed to live in peace and refirement. Then there are Tolstoi, seventyfive; Sardou, seventy-two, and Maxim,

The list might be extended to great length, but it is not necessary to do so one, of Delaware and Hudson railroad Further proof carnot be demanded. This may be "the young man's day. but it is just as surely "the old man's

TRACY M. PENNINGTON.

