When Cleveland Said, "By Gosh!"

"All the inheritors of the mantle of Oklahoma Payne claimed credit, and many men in Kansas arrogated to themselves certain importance," says Emerson Hough, in Appleton's Magazine. "A long-legged friend of mine, who may be called Bill Jennings as well as anything else, always insisted that he was responsible for the opening of the Cherokee country. 'I went down to Washington,' said he, 'to see Cleveland about it. I went up to the door of Cleveland's house—right at the front door—and I knocked, and I heard Cleveland holler out to me: 'Come in!' I went in, and there was Cleveland sitting in the parlor, with all his cabinet there, too. I says to Cleveland, 'Cleveland, them Indians has got to go, and them cowmen, too.' I put it to him right plain. Cleveland, he listened, and by and by he got up and come and put his hand on my shoulder, and says he: 'Bill, by gosh, she pops!'"

Billiard Balls Made From Milk.

Billiard balls, boxes for handkerchiefs, inkwells, combs, etc., are now made from skimmed milk. Milk alone, or "galalith," as it is called, is a combination of skimmed milk and formaline, and is made by a simple process.

The equipment of the manufactory consists of a huge tank, into which the milk is pumped, and connected with his by means of an inclined trough is another tank with a wide, square opening. Over this opening are placed, one about 2 inches above another, three wire sieves, varying in fineness, the lowest one being of very close mesh.

From a huge vat into which certain chemicals have been poured the milk is pumped through short pipes into the first tank mentioned, where it is threshed about by a glass paddle for 15 minutes. The bung hole of the tank is then opened, and what was once milk is forced out by air pressure in the form of a yellowish-brown powder. This called chemically-treated "casein," and it is sent down the inclined trough through the

THIS PAQUIN MODEL SHOWS THE JAPANESE SLEEVE.

A gray and white striped English worsted is used by Paquin for this most effective visiting toilette. The skirt is cut on simple lines with a narrow train, and, as it is noted, it is provided with an old-fashioned tie-back to hold it close to the figure. The little coat is a modified empire with the armholes cut out square, and the sleeve cut in one with the shoulder and the underarm piece. The sleeve is modest in shape and set in plain in the shoulder as is the ordinary kimono sleeve.

A FILIPINO WATER CARRIER.

The picturesque and not uncommonly maiden herewith pictured is one of Uncle Sam's wards in the distant Philippines. The large towns of the archipelago under Spanish domination were provided with fresh water supplies, and the business of selling the necessity in the streets was well established. It is still carried on by the natives, who bring the water used for drinking into the cities in large vessels of domestic pottery balanced skillfully on their heads.

FLY FIXES A DATE.

Often it is the little things which bring the great results where mystery is deepest. When commentators on the works of Robert Louis Stevenson were busiest they came across a manuscript whose place of birth they could not determine. There was a crushed fly upon one of the pages. An entomologist found that the fly was a specimen peculiar to the Polynesian islands. Stevenson had written the notes in his home at Samoa.

ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY.

Owing to the effects of a sun accident in his youth, the archbishop of Canterbury has to be content with the very simplest of diets. He touches scarcely any meat and frequently subsists for months on nothing but milk foods. Like the bishop of Ripon, Dr. Davidson has never taken kindly to gallies. He is a man of inexpensive tastes and when the head of the diocese of Rochester was a constant patron of omnibuses and trams.

AN ENGLISHWOMAN AMONG THE PYGMIES.

The picture shows Major Powell-Cotton and his wife in a pygmy village in central Africa. The sensation produced by their entry was most remarkable for the little black folk had never before seen a white woman. Her white skin and long, straight hair were a source of great wonder to them, and they were inclined to regard her as a divinity.
