EDITORIAL NOTES

-On the 10th of July, at Newark, New Jersey, a large number of workmen, of whom a thousand are out of work in that city, made demonstrations before the mayor's residence. The men said they were willing to work at Madan, and many others have anything and for any wages that would support them and save them and their families from starvation. They must have, they insisted, work or bread. Some of them had had no work for eighteen months. other, but they should be fair and the most fortunate had only had work a very small portion of the their likes and dislikes, and not time. One man stated that he had misname things, nor call certain had no work for a year and a half; things great crimes which are not houses at Nelson, were burned yesself and family was very little great crimes, nor even crimes of bread but plenty of water.
