He gives expends at tention to fires on shipboard, and in the course of 12 or 14 years he has learned a lot of interesting things about fires. Some years ago after a series of very annuying fires on ships drop everyth s else and find out the cause of the fires.

He worked six or seven weeks without learning anything and was begin-ning to feel discouraged. One day he was crawling around over the bales of cotton which formed the cargo of a steamer plying between Savannah and New York. His attention was aftracted to the fact that certain disks of glass set in the deck in order to admit light have been of great benefit.
