LOGAN.

Last Saturday night the students resorted to the B. Y. college took place. They were received by the faculty with President Smith, Miss Nibley and other members of the board at the Nibley hall, which was artistically decorated with potted plants and ferns. President Smith welcomed them after a most excellent and most enjoyable remarks by President Joseph F. Smith. Bishop Nibley also spoke to the students. After a musical selection, they gathered at the B. Y. gymnasium, where the time was spent in dancing. The hall was profusely decorated with the college colors—green and gold. The different classes of which the fourth year's display special mention, added to the decorations and general attractiveness of the hall in the way of booths which were carried out in their class colors. They were artistic and attractive, and served as inviting cozy corners for the evening. Delicious refreshments were served in the library.

Last Monday night the Daughters of the Biondo gave a dancing party in the B. Y. college gym. The affair was the nature of pioneer days. Many new costumes, and the dances of pioneer days were revived in which many of the old people mingled with the young. The hall was artistically decorated with the national colors. Booths were arranged in the corners of the hall, from one of which refreshments were served. This booth was blue and white and artistically decorated with carnations combined with greenery. The other booths were made of burlap, with cushions and cushions, arranged for the comfort and pleasure of the pioneers. A pioneer program was another pleasant feature of the evening.

Prof. George Hendricks of the Agricultural college entertained his classes at dinner Tuesday evening, at the Hendricks home on First North street.

After the dancing party at the pavilion last Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Rudolph entertained the Beta Alpha fraternity with their partners at a luncheon at their home, on First South.

Congressman and Mrs. Howell returned Tuesday from St. George, where they with Governor Spry, President and Mrs. Kingsbury of Salt Lake, and others, have been touring southern Utah. This is the first time southern Utah has been favored with a visit from a governor since President Young was governor, and Mr. Howell is the first congressman to visit there, consequently their entertainment was elaborate. The people opened their hearts and homes to the governor and his party, and made them feel in many ways the importance of their visit.

Many students and townsfolk accompanied the Agricultural college football team to Salt Lake Thursday.

Miss Barbara Howell returned Friday.

UTMOST GRACE DISTINGUISHES INDOOR COSTUMES.

Never was a season when draperies were so graceful, or frocks so replete with feminine charm. The pleated draperies, crossing the figure at the knees in front and knotted loosely at the back are particularly lovely when carried out in soft materials like this pale gray crepe de chine. The material is hung over rose pink satin which gives a delicate tinge to the gray crepe. On the bodice touches of silver lace make a dainty trimming and the girdle is held in place by ornaments made of silver soutache.

In Women's World.

Miss Ida M. Tarbell in the American Magazine, speaking of the important part women played in state affairs in the days of 1776, says:

"Taking them all in all, the revolutionary women grasped fully the ideas of her time, saw its vision and rose valiantly to meet its needs. She is a splendid type—a gallant lady from whom it is an honor to have descended. But after all it is said there is no truer test of her character and intelligence than the way she met the new ideas above her and not a rights which were born with the revolution. That upheaval, like the French revolution, gave a great impulse toward bigger living. The nation had taken a full breath and felt the air of its life. Everybody saw clearer, stepped higher, felt braver and dared more. Women, as men, shared the emotion and began to exercise their heads. These bonds were real enough. Noble and understanding as this lady of '76 was in fact and recognized by the men of her day to be, in theory she was anything but that. She was a person of inferior mind, unable to master the strong meat of education without dangerous results to her reason, unfit to be trusted with the guardianship of her property of her children, lest but suffer, not to be allowed free speech in public lest her tongue run away with her and disorder and false doctrine be encouraged, not to be allowed to mix in these gatherings or deliberations of men, lest her household, her manners and public morals suffer. The greatest men of New England are on record on these points, and the church and the law upheld them. Humility, charity, obedience, modesty, truthfulness, gentleness—these were the qualities they demanded, and they got them. How weak human nature could attain these highest of virtues so perfectly as their wives old and still be as weak and untrustworthy in mind as they theoretically were was never explained."

The ingenuity which has been shown in the development of new ideas calculated to enlist the sympathies and subscriptions of a philanthropic public has probably reached its climax in a novel use which the authorities of the London hospital have found for umbrellas and walking sticks.

A receptacle is placed in the handles of these, which will hold exactly half a sovereign or sixpence, and the holder draws the attention of their friends to a little slot which is of sufficient size to receive the coins as a donation to the funds of the hospital.

Already 400 of these umbrellas and sticks have been distributed, not only in London, but in China, Australia, South Africa and other distant parts of the world. When full they are returned to the hospital, and already a goodly sum has accrued to the coffers of the institution. The record collection in one umbrella has so far been $29 15s.

There are few shades in the fashionable color card for winter gowns. With the exception of raiment, a kind of luscious purple, the colors are much the same as those worn last spring.

A touch of peacock is added, but it is in no sense a new color, simply a shade bidding for favor.

Wistaria is popular again, judging from the variety of materials in this color, and so are the rose shades. One of the latest, though coming under the head of rose, is really verging on terra cotta. It is a peculiar tint and one that is peculiarly trying.

Another odd shade is called mustard—not a faint yellow of unadorned mustard, but suggestive of a jar of German mustard.

It is not pretty, though a shade lighter than might have been christened old gold would have been becoming. In broadcloth the modish colors are gray, taupe, peacock, mustard, raiment, old rose, catwallow, wistaria, brown and various shades of green and a line of the usual navy blue with a touch of saffron. Chop fine a handful of freshly popped corn, add an equal quantity of chopped and blanched almonds, and pound to a paste in a mortar, moistening with a few drops of rose and almond extract. Place in a mixing bowl the stiffly-beaten whites of three eggs and stir in gradually eight ounces of powdered sugar, beating the meringue steadily with a wooden spoon for five minutes. Then add the nut and popcorn paste, a spoonful at a time.

When thoroughly blended, drop pieces the size of a silver quarter on to a sheet of buttered paper, place in shallow baking-tin, and bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. Keep closely covered until ready to use, and serve in sherbet glasses around a tiny pyramid of sweetened and flavored whipped cream.

THREE AMERICAN THANKSGIVINGS.

1630—"We found the colony in a sad and unexpected condition, above eight of them being dead the winter before and the many of those alive were weak and sick. All the corn and bread among them was hardly sufficient to feed them a fortnight." When I could have meal and water and salt boiled together it was so good who could wish for better?"

"The women at low tide threw clams and mussels from the frozen beach, ate ground nuts, acorns and scall fish."

"In almost every family lamentation, mourning and woe was heard and no fresh food to be had to cherish them."

1650—"For our Thanksgiving dinner we had Winter stored clams, which is made from beef with cabbage, carrots, sweet marjoram, parsley, turnips, rutabagas and onions; French codfish fried, boiled ham, roast turkey with cranberry sauce; oyster pie; mince pie, snow, turnips, parsnips, Winter squash, coconut pudding, lemon pudding, mince pie, calves-foot jelly."

1909—"For my family's dinner, Thanksgiving, I have had a large top made for my round table, as I expect twenty guests. I am using the bay-tree decorations. I will have bonbons and crystallized fruits in tall silver cornucopias, and seated nuts in individual dishes of pierced silver."

"I will use my handiworkst tablecloth, ornamented with white beads of blue lace and my monogram, and my large dinner napkins with the monogram; white china with my monogram in gilt and glasses of rock crystal. I will add a touch of color to the group of glasses by using one Venetian pink, with gold decorations. The name-cards bear turkeys done in water-colors and signed by the artist's name. These cards are tied with red white and blue ribbons. During the dinner a harpist will play patriotic airs and simple songs, and we will have dinner at seven o'clock on account of the football game in the afternoon."
